Hope to keep water out of backyards

$150,000 bank project planned for Weller Creek

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Backyards bordering Weller Creek in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect will soon stay where they belong — behind the houses instead of in the creek.

Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and the Illinois Division of Waterways are ready to move ahead on a $150,000 bank improvement project stretching from School Street in Mount Prospect, east across the Des Plaines border at Mount Prospect Road to Golf Road and south to the Washington Street bridge.

The Des Plaines City Council Monday night unanimously approved entering into a three-way agreement with Mount Prospect and IDW to contract with engineering consultants Alstot, March and Guillou. The firm, according to partner George March, expects to let contracts for the work in June and begin work shortly afterwards.

A major part of the work will be installing gabions about 6 feet 6 inches from the stream bed so the low water flow will be adjacent to the gabion, which will prevent the erosion.

A gabion is a wire basket filled with crushed stone. A similar device, a basket filled with straw and earth, was used by ancient Egyptians to save river banks.

ACCORDING TO THE Des Plaines Engineer Robert Bowen the city has attempted to prevent erosion for several years by placing broken concrete along the banks. Although the method has worked in some cases, experts suggested gabions would do a better job, Bowen said.

Grass seed and mulching will be used about the gabions to prevent further erosion.

Areas where banks have caved in will be restored to their original cross section by the project, Bowen said.

Des Plaines has appropriated money for the project from federal revenue sharing funds. Mount Prospect will spend its $50,000 from a $2 million flood control bond issue which has been passed. IDW will provide the third $50,000.

MORE THAN $3 million has been spent on Weller Creek since 1968 to prevent flooding of homes in the area. The state of Illinois in 1968 and 1969 appropriated more than $1.3 million to have the Creek widened, straightened and re-channeled under the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks in Des Plaines. Other monies were appropriated to improve the creek between Mount Prospect Road and Ill. Rte. 83 and a third appropriation went for a flood control program in Mount Prospect between Ill. Rte 83 and Central Road.

Although the millions of dollars brought some flood relief to the area, the dredging and widening created the current erosion problem.

In 1972 the state spent $90,212 to repair banks between Mount Prospect Road and Williams Street in Mount Prospect.

The contract for work wasn't even finished before the floods of 1972 hit. During 1972 residents in the Cumberland Parkway area of Des Plaines estimated that as much as four feet of their back yards had washed away.

It is expected the erosion will disappear when the current project is completed.

Woman's Club has $1,200 for parks

The Des Plaines Junior Woman's Club will donate $1,200 to the park district for an outdoor education project, said Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation Wednesday.

Park officials will receive the donation at a club meeting next week. Kunkel said the money may be used to plant trees around Lake Opeka Park near Howard and Lee streets.

WHERE ELSE but New York, N.Y. — how about St. Zachary's in Des Plaines. Marsha Lau, left, Chuck Berin and Barbara Hefty will put on Eastern airs this weekend and next during the annual Port Of Call, 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the school, 567 Algonquin Rd. See Story on Page 5.

Homeowners protest apartments

by LINDA PUNCH

Homeowners in the Cumberland-Terrace subdivision are organizing a protest against an 80-unit apartment complex proposed for a triangle of land just northwest of the Wieboldt's Distribution Center, 300 Wieboldt Dr.

Mrs. Rochelle Cerny, president of the Cumberland-Terrace Civic Assn., said yesterday homeowners plan to voice their opposition to the development at the May 21 meeting of the city's zoning board and plan commission.

"We would like to have Cumberland-Terrace remain single-family homes," Mrs. Cerny said. "We feel that 80-units would bring an influx of children into the schools and create traffic problems."

Preliminary plans for the 4 1/2 acre development were filed with city zoning officers Monday by Rauschenberg and Biasiello Developers of Morton Grove. The proposed planned unit development calls for six 12-unit buildings and one 8-unit building.

DEVELOPERS PURCHASED the land on contract from the Chicago and North Western Ry. Rauschenberg and Biasiello are asking that the parcel of land, currently zoned for light industry, be rezoned for multi-family housing.

Mrs. Cerny said Cumberland-Terrace homeowners fear the proposed development would add to flooding problems in the area.

"Cumberland-Terrace is designated as a flood plain — we already have flooding problems," she said. "The apartments won't be flooding. All the runoff will come to the homeowner."

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINNETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

'They didn't want a fight'

Happy homeowner surprised after winning appeal of tax assessment

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT Appeal. Appeal. Appeal.
Arlington Heights homeowner James F. Hendricks learned the appeal lesson Wednesday and walked away with a $2,054 reduction in his home assessment.
Hendricks, who lost an earlier appeal to Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton, was surprised. Hendricks' son, James Jr., an attorney, expected to lose his argument before the county's Tax Board of Appeals on Wednesday and had talked about a court suit testing the constitutionality of the assessment hike.
"All I can say is that they didn't want a fight," the attorney said.
HENDRICKS, 1506 E. Fremont, Arlington Heights, and numerous other homeowners in Palatine and Wheeling townships faced soaring assessment changes this year because Cullerton has switched to a new manual for estimating home value. Homeowners like Hendricks, who obtained a building permit to install central air conditioning in late 1972, were completely reassessed in 1973 and faced assessment increases between 20 and 46 per cent.

When Hendricks received his 1973 notice of assessment, the jump was from $6,365 to $8,569, a 36 per cent increase. Similar home assessments in the area were $8,037 to $9,030.
"Use of the new tax assessment manual . . . and not simultaneously for all property in Cook County is invidiously discriminatory and results in disproportionate assessments on property of substantially comparable value," James Hendricks Jr. said in a statement before the tax appeals board.
SEYMOUR ZABAN of the tax board agreed. Zaban reduced Hendricks' assessment of $8,515 — a total that is $150 more than in 1972 because of the new air conditioning.
"You could say the decision was arbitrary," Zaban told The Herald after the hearing. "It's a difficult problem. We're trying to provide equity."
Zaban said the tax board has reduced assessments to "keep values consistent in the entire neighborhood." Homeowners who have appealed large increases caused by recent building permits and reassessment have won reductions, he said.

THE HOME OF James F. Hendricks, 1506 E. Fremont, was reassessed this year because central air conditioning and a building permit were obtained in 1972-73. Hendricks' assessed valuation increased 36 per cent, from $6,365 to $8,569. Assessments on neighboring homes of similar value range from $5,930 to $6,037. Hendricks' assessment on the three-bedroom home was reduced to $6,515 after a hearing Wednesday.

"However, if a man was substantially underassessed in the past, it would be unfair to grant him a reduction," Zaban said. "The mere fact that someone's assessment has increased is not criteria for a reduction."

"We were confronted with a difficult legal situation. The assessor has a right, if a building permit is issued, to use the new manual and to change the assessment. But, our obligation is to restore a consistent assessment in relation to neighboring properties," Zaban said.

HENDRICKS BEGAN the appeal process like other homeowners; he asked for a review by Cullerton's office. The assessor refused to reduce the valuation of the three-bedroom, split-level home unless Hendricks hired an appraiser to provide evidence of value.

"We refused and were turned down" on the appeal, Hendricks' son said.

Although spokesmen for the assessor said that homeowners must show that assessment totals were higher than 22 per cent of fair market value, Hendricks was awarded a reduction by the tax board because similar neighborhood homes had lower valuations.

Other warnings that a lawyer or appraiser are necessary for successful tax appeal are untrue, Zaban said. "We do not encourage people to hire attorneys."

A 20 PER CENT assessment increase could add about $125 in taxes, Zaban said. And, an attorney's fee would reduce any gain through reduced valuation.

"We need help from the homeowner though. People bring in snapshots. People have been coming in with your paper showing how assessments have increased," Zaban said. Hendricks listed six neighboring homes with similar size for assessment comparison on his appeal.

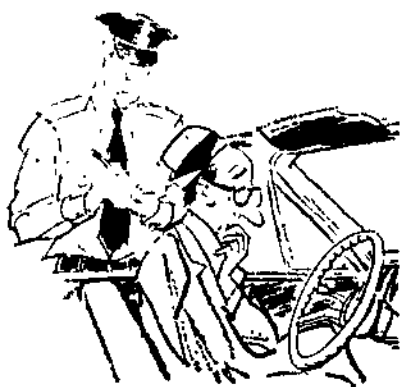

"We'll accept a letter of appraisal and consider it. It could come from a broker in the neighborhood . . . someone who has expertise," Zaban said.

Wheeling and Palatine townships were "primed for this problem" in 1973 because the areas were reassessed in 1972. "We can't run into the problem in Maine (Township)" because the quadrennial reassessment was in 1973.

Filing deadline for tax appeals board protest in Palatine Township was Wednesday. Deadline in Schaumburg Township is May 1 and in Maine is April 24.

No traffic school for this speeder

A motorist is pinched for going 58 mph in a 25 mph zone. It happens occasionally, but in this case, it was particularly embarrassing. The driver, R. J. Jorgenson, is a driver's education instructor. He entered a plea of not guilty to the speeding offense Wednesday in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Associate Judge Albert H. LaPlante handed down an order of supervision, under which Jorgenson is not punished, but can be later if he is brought in on another driving offense within 30 days. LaPlante said later he skipped the usual procedure of sending Jorgenson to traffic school to view a film on safe driving. "I thought that would be gilding the lily," said the judge.

Zoners deny Comsite apartments

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday recommended against a zoning change for Comsite Properties of Chicago to build a multi-family development in unincorporated Wheeling Township. The board said the project, proposed for property north of Palatine Road and east of Schoenbeck Road, would be "inappropriate" because the site is surrounded by single-family houses.

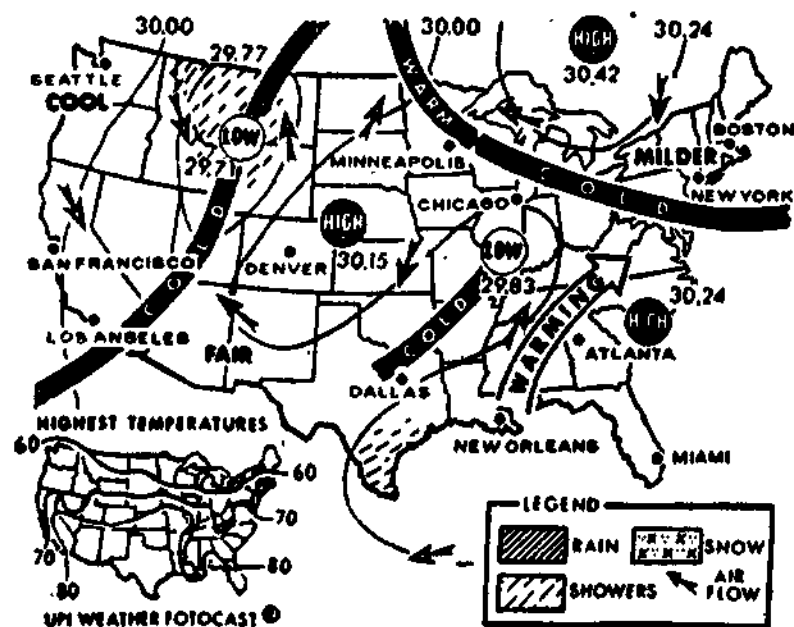

HUD OKs senior housing site

A one-acre site located near downtown Arlington Heights has been approved for senior citizens low-rent housing by the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The site, located between Miner and Wing Streets, west of Highland Ave. was chosen by local officials earlier this month as the future location of 119 units of subsidized housing. "We had an inspection of the site last week with members of HUD," said Victor Walchuk, director of the Cook County Housing Authority. "They have advised us that it appears to meet all priorities for senior citizens housing."

Boy, 14, dies sniffing deodorant

A 14-year-old Hoffman Estates boy died late Tuesday after sniffing fumes of an aerosol foot deodorant sprayed into a plastic bag. Police said Joseph Buchholz, 141 Flagstaff Ln., collapsed about 9:30 p.m. at the home of a friend who had been sniffing the aerosol spray with him. He was an eighth-grader at Helen Keller Junior High School.

Heavy fighting flares over Communist trails

Heavy fighting in South Vietnam's Central Highlands has left 2,000 Communist and government soldiers killed or wounded in the last two days, according to a Saigon command estimate. The fighting centered around Communist infiltration routes into the south. In Cambodia, an early rain was credited with halting communist attacks against government positions.

France's Prime Minister raps candidate

French Prime Minister Pierre Mesmer made a strong appeal to French voters in the May 5-19 Presidential election to back Gaullist candidates and deny the office to Communist-backed candidate Francois Mitterrand, currently shown ahead of his two rivals in opinion polls. Mesmer said France must choose between "a democratic society of liberty" and the programs of Socialism and Communism, which he termed "a dangerous adventure."

Colson follows Jaworski plea for tapes

Former presidential counsel Charles W. Colson, a defendant in the Watergate cover-up case, joined Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski Wednesday in seeking a subpoena for additional White House tapes and documents. Jaworski had filed an affidavit Tuesday for the same materials, pertaining to meetings and conversations between Nixon and aides presumed to relate to the cover-up. Also yesterday, Jaworski was accused of political motivations in the prosecution of Lt. Gov. Edward Reinecke of California, under indictment for perjury before a Senate committee. Reinecke cited earlier promises that no charges would be brought against him and moved for dismissal in a U.S. District Court.

Stans: Vesco contribution not furtive

Millionaire businessman Maurice H. Stans testified Wednesday at his federal conspiracy trial about a March, 1972, meeting with Edward Nixon, the President's brother, about a $200,000 campaign donation from Robert L. Vesco, Edward Nixon's employer. Stans denied that the stipulated contribution be made in cash for "maximum anonymity," and disputed testimony by five major prosecution witnesses linking Stans with influence peddling.

Simon calls for new energy moves

Federal Energy Administrator William Simon said Wednesday Americans must commit themselves to a two-pronged attack on energy problems or face long-term shortages. Speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, meeting in Atlanta, Simon said the country, led by Congress, must work to increase energy resources and output and at the same time find ways to reduce energy consumption. At the same meeting, former Attorney General Elliot Richardson said President Nixon has mishandled the Watergate scandal, viewing it in defensive terms, rather than using it as an opportunity to restore confidence in his administration.

Supreme Court upholds Kent State suits

The families of Kent State students shot in 1970 by National Guardsmen have been granted the right to reinstate suits seeking damages from National Guardsmen and state officials involved. In a 8-0 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned a lower decision and reinstated two suits asking $11 million from former Ohio state and university officials and Guardsmen.

CTA bus, truck crash injures 21

A truck took a right turn at a Loop intersection Wednesday and collided with an oncoming Chicago Transit Authority bus, causing minor injuries to at least 21 persons, authorities said. The bus, which was struck on the driver's side near the front, was extensively damaged and had to be towed from the scene, a CTA spokesman said.

Walker will provide campaign debt donators

Governor Daniel Walker has agreed to surrender a list of contributors who helped him meet 1972 campaign debts estimated at more than $1 million to Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey. The information will be used in a county grand jury investigation into whether some donations were illegal or made in return for political favors from the Walker administration.

Rich Chicagoan found dead in robbery

The victim of a fatal beating found Wednesday in a North Side vacant lot has been identified as a well-to-do Chicagoan with more than $250,000 in two bank accounts. Police identified the man as Buxton L. Johnson, and said he was apparently beaten to death with a rock in a robbery.

Charge auto firm with promotion scheme

The Securities and Exchange Commission brought charges in U.S. Circuit Court Wednesday against a Chicago area automotive products firm, Steed Industries, Inc., of Itasca, and 19 company officers were charged with illegally selling $13 million in sales distributorships in a nationwide "pyramid promotion scheme." An official for the exchange commission said the distributorships were equivalent to selling securities, which the firm is not registered to do.

250 try to storm Knesset; 4 teens hurt

From Herald news services
About 250 residents of Qiryat Shemona, target of a death dealing attack by an Arab suicide squad, tried to storm the parliament building in Jerusalem yesterday to demand increased security protection for their community on the border with Lebanon.

They broke through a gate into a forecourt of the Knesset (parliament), but were prevented from entering the building by policemen guarding the wooden doors to the basement entrance.

Four teen-aged boys were slightly injured in fistfights with policemen. The protestors carried leaflets listing 10 demands, foremost among them were calls for a hospital and increased security.

On the battlefield, the Israeli-Syrian war of attrition went into its 37th day and Syrian President Hafez Assad, armed with fresh promises of Soviet military and diplomatic backing, pledged to continue the fight to drive Israel from Syrian soil.

In London, UPI Diplomatic Correspondent K. C. Thaler quoted diplomats as saying the militant posture by Moscow is certain to complicate U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's efforts to work out a military disengagement agreement between Israel and Syria.

ISRAEL'S PARLIAMENTARY body, the Knesset, was stormed Wednesday by protestors (above) from Qiryat Shemona, a community on the Lebanese border which was hit by Arab Guerrillas last week. Eighteen residents died at the terrorists' hands. The protestors demanded increased security.

GOP dismayed over Michigan loss

From Herald news services
The latest Democratic victory in hard rock Republican territory sent shock waves through the GOP ranks Wednesday as news spread that the Republican candidate in Michigan's off-year congressional race lost.

The latest in what political observers say is the after-effect of Watergate is the election of Democrat J. Bob Traxler in the previously solid Republican area of Michigan's rural northeast corner.

Final unofficial figures gave Traxler 59,918 votes in the seven-county district, nearly 3,000 more than the 56,988 votes for Republican James M. Sparling.

National attention to the race was drawn when President Richard Nixon arrived in Saginaw to help Sparling campaign, and apparently to also campaign for his own presidency.

Traxler has called the outcome a vote of no confidence for Nixon, although Sparling has said it is too easy to blame his defeat directly on the president. Reaction among Republican officials was noticeably pessimistic.

Vice President Gerald Ford whose own vacated seat fell earlier this year to a Democrat said Traxler's election was a bad omen and warned that continued Democratic wins could lead to a "legislative dictatorship."

GOP National Chairman George Bush conceded he was "terribly disappointed" and Michigan GOP Chairman William McLaughlin said he was baffled by the defeat.

But Republican Gov. William Milliken said he believed that Democrats who have won in special elections this year are "riding President Nixon's coattails to Washington."

And President Nixon? The White House said Wednesday he is neither dismayed or disheartened by the defeat of Sparling. A White House spokesman said the results were far closer than were expected a few weeks ago. Asked if the President believed he was the major issue in the campaign, the spokesman said "There were many issues in the campaign."

In other related developments:

—Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., said he did not think the Michigan election would have any effect on the House impeachment vote. Railsback said he thought members of the House would be unaffected by the apparent defeat of the President's campaign in Michigan.

—Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Wednesday it would "probably" help the Republican party if President Nixon resigned Percy said the results of the Michigan election "is another ominous sign" that Watergate is having an effect on all incumbents to a degree, but especially on Republican candidates.

If U.S. Senate approves

Simon to be Treasury head

Energy Director William E. Simon was formally nominated by President Richard Nixon to replace George P. Shultz as Secretary of the Treasury.

Simon's assistant, John C. Sawhill, will succeed to the energy post.

Simon, 46, has been doubling since December as head of the Federal Energy Office and as undersecretary of the treasury.

In making the expected announcement, the White House made clear Simon responsibilities he broached as energy czar, hinting that President Nixon will actively play a role in the nation's economic problems. Before he can become

Secretary of the Treasury, Simon must be confirmed by the Senate, although there is no indication now that Senate leaders will balk at the nomination.

Shultz, a former business school dean at the University of Chicago, announced several months ago that he would be leaving some time in May. He is the last holdover from the Nixon original cabinet of 1969.

Major state tax hike seen

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Chamber of Commerce says a major state tax increase "seems inevitable within the next two years."

However, Gov. Daniel Walker, addressing the chamber's annual legislative conference Wednesday, urged members to support his attempts to hold down state spending. If he can hew to his proposed fiscal 1975 budget, Walker said, he can avoid any tax hike.

The chamber said the reason for its prediction "is simply stated. General revenue fund expenditures are increasing at a faster rate than revenues."

And, the chamber said in a bulletin. Walker is "spending down" the state's current budget surplus to support that situation without a tax increase. When the surplus is used up, the chamber said, a hike in a major state tax will be the only alternative to a cut in services.

"The questions are when the irreversible deficit will happen and how much the tax increase will be," the bulletin said.

Walker repeatedly has promised not to raise taxes during his term. Instead, he has urged tax reduction plans costing as much as $110 a year.

The chamber said Walker's estimates of fiscal 1975 revenue "may be too high" in areas such as the lottery, gasoline-related taxes and in other areas.

In addition, the governor apparently has underestimated for the second year in a row — the amount the state will need for welfare; has recommended too little money for state aid to education; and is likely to face a serious attempt to force higher payments in state-run retirement programs.

Saxbe: Patty a criminal

Attorney General William Saxbe said Wednesday that newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst is part of the group of "common criminals" who kidnaped her and that she participated willingly in their holdup of a San Francisco bank.

"It is my personal conclusion that she was not a reluctant participant," Saxbe told a news conference, referring to the $10,000 bank robbery Monday by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

Saxbe's conclusion differed with speculation by the FBI that Miss Hearst, 20, may have been forced to take part in the holdup. The FBI cited bank photos showing two SLA members pointing guns at her as an indication she might have acted under duress, but did not rule out the possibility she actively participated.

Saxbe said his opinion was based on "the way she behaved, the number of people in the bank who observed her behavior, the testimony of witnesses and actions in the bank."

One witness, Edward Shea, 66, a guard at the bank, told UPI that Miss Hearst shouted orders and obscenities during the robbery and left no doubt that she would use the submachine gun strapped around her neck.

Miss Hearst was kidnaped by the SLA Feb. 4. On April 3, after her parents sponsored a $2 million food giveaway in an unsuccessful effort to win her release, the SLA distributed a tape recorded statement in which Miss Hearst said she had decided to join her captors.

Saxbe also said Patty's stated intention to join the SLA and her participation in the bank robbery did not wipe out the crime of kidnapping. "We have got a kidnapping, if it was a kidnapping, and we have a bank robbery," Saxbe said.

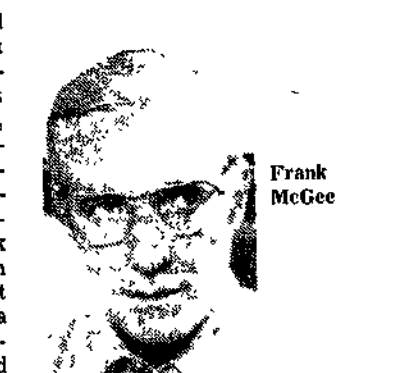

In San Francisco, U. S. Attorney James Bronning said a grand jury will have to decide whether Patricia was a willing participant in the bank robbery. Bronning said a grand jury was looking into the robbery by the SLA.

"The voluntariness of the actions is a question of fact the grand jury will have to decide," he said.

TV's 'Today Show' host, Frank McGee, dead at 52

• A national broadcast newsmen and host of NBC-TV's "Today Show," Frank W. McGee, 52, died yesterday from complications of bone cancer in New York's Columbia Presbyterian Hospital. McGee, who covered space shots, political conventions and other breaking stories before millions, continued to broadcast until last Thursday, although friends described him as having been very weak and in great pain. The cause of death was attributed to pneumonia as a direct complication of multiple myeloma, a rare form of bone cancer. . . . In Oklahoma City, Gov. David Hall ordered flags flown at half staff for 30 days for former Gov. Johnston Murray who died Tuesday, ending an era in which the Murray name was one of the most colorful in state politics. . . . Illinois Sen. Betty Ann Keegan, the first woman senator ever elected in the 34th District, died of cancer in Rockford Memorial Hospital. . . . Oak Park's David Gottlieb, 73, industrialist and founder of Gottlieb Memorial Hospital in Melrose Park died in Miami Beach, Fla. Services will be held today.

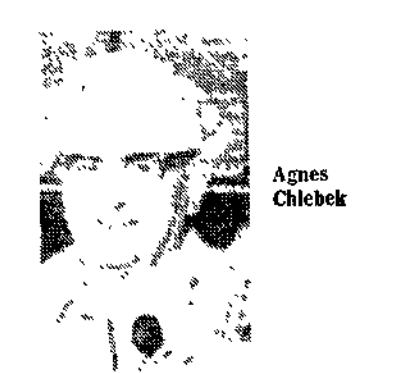

• James Roosevelt, the son of Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday denied Justice William Douglas' report of White House

He now has at least 11 volumes of signed, inscribed books he says he won't return on their April 24 due date, but will hold out for a compromise until the library and university administrators make "improvements upon present facilities."

• After raising 9 children, helping to babysit 46 grandchildren, and boasting of 60 great-grandchildren, Mrs. Agnes Chlebek became an American citizen in Detroit yesterday. Mrs. Chlebek, 84, sailed from Poland to the U. S. in 1907. She applied for American citizenship on three different occasions but was turned down twice because she could not produce documents to prove her date of entry. She became lucky on her last try and has "been smiling all day."

Costello elected board head

Jack Costello

Jack Costello will serve as president of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education during the coming year.

Costello, who has served on the board since 1970, was unanimously elected president Monday after being nominated for the job by Gene Armentano, last year's board president. Costello, a resident of Mount Prospect, served as board president in 1971.

Richard Bachhuber, also of Mount Prospect, was reelected as board secretary for the fourth consecutive year. He has served on the board since 1965 and was reelected Saturday along with board member Jack Matthews in an uncontested election.

In the official canvass of Saturday's election, Matthews received 1,884 votes and Bachhuber received 1,797. There were 35 write-in votes cast, 1,914 persons cast valid ballots in the election.

Teacher seeks tuition cut

A teacher at Arlington High School Monday asked the High School Dist. 214 board to either waive or lower the tuition it charges to out-of-district students so his daughter can attend Dist. 214.

Jerome Pugsley, a music teacher at Arlington and resident of Lake Zurich, told the board that he would like his daughter Lisa to attend Arlington High School rather than Lake Zurich High School because of the superior women's athletic program in Dist. 214.

"Lisa is very interested in sports," Pugsley said, "and she wants to major in P.E. in college. Lake Zurich has a very inadequate athletic program for girls. They only have three sports while in 214 we have 12 or 13 for girls."

Pugsley suggested that the board either provide for reduced or waived tuition for children of staff members who live outside the district. "I know there are several other teachers whose children are in similar situations," he said.

Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board that of the district's 1,000 teachers, 480 live outside the district. Those 480, he said, have 1,100 children.

The district's attorney has said the board might provide reduced tuition for staff members as a fringe benefit for employment. Gilbert said. The district tuition for out-of-district students is now $1,541 a year.

Board members said they were sympathetic to Pugsley's problem, but said they were afraid such an action might provide for a substantial financial drain on the district. Gilbert was asked to study the question, but board Pres. Jack Costello told Pugsley, "Unless something comes out of this further exploration, you have a lot of sympathy from the board for your situation, but I don't think you would have the votes."

$451,467 due from state

High School Dist. 214 will receive $451,467 from the state this year to help with this year's payment on the bonds which provided funds for Rolling Meadows and Buffalo Grove high schools.

The funds come from a new state program overseen by the Capital Development Board in which the state provides money for payment of bonds issued after 1969 and also provides funds for building new buildings.

Dist. 214 Assistant Supt. Robert Weber said the state payment represents about 25 per cent of the money the district will be required to pay on the bonds this year. The payment will mean a saving of about four cents per $100 assessed value for property taxpayers in the district, Weber said.

Oakton board wrapup

Student rep quits; says he 'lost faith'

The student representative to the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees resigned Tuesday night, saying he had lost faith in the board.

Terry Gano, coordinator of the Oakton Board of Student Affairs, had asked the board to appoint a student to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of trustee Robert Gutschick April 2. Instead the board appointed former trustee LeRoy Wauck.

Gutschick, 24, was a student at Oakton when he was elected in 1972. He resigned after he was arrested March 28 and charged with selling LSD to undercover agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG).

In a prepared statement Gano said four students had applied for the appointment to the vacancy but since the board did not choose one of them "the students viewpoint and, even more important, a student vote on the board was lost. By its own action the board has created a serious gap in its relationship with the students of Oakton Community College. The faith and trust that I had placed in this board no longer exists."

Gano later said by not appointing a student the board was saying "Bob is wrong and the students are wrong." It would have been a vote of confidence to appoint a student.

Gano said he had not talked to any of the board members about the appointment and his resignation was his own idea. "I can't sit there and take it anymore. I'm tired of having people say 'Don't rock the boat.' I know the school is going to come down on my head tomorrow but it was time for me to make my own decision," he said.

Several board members expressed their surprise at Gano's resignation. "I'm agnostic at the suddenness of this thing and I feel it is uncalled for," said board chairman Paul Gilson. Trustee Vivian Medak said Gano should have found a student to replace him before he resigned.

College Pres. William Koehnline said he would "invite students to carry on a special election" to replace Gano. By law a community college board must have a non-voting student representative.

Hartstein new board chairman

Oakton Community College trustee Raymond Hartstein from Skokie was elected chairman of the college board by trustees Tuesday night.

Hartstein was board chairman from the time the college was formed in 1969 until April, 1971. He replaces Paul Gilson who has been chairman since April, 1973.

Trustee Vivian Medak from Lincolnwood was elected vice-chairman and trustee Stephen Loska was elected secretary. Loska and Harriet Ritter began three-year terms on the college board Tuesday following a canvass of votes cast in the college election Saturday.

Residential alarms up 75%

Fire losses up 133% in three months

by JOHN MAES

Des Plaines fire losses skyrocketed 133 per cent for the first quarter of 1974, compared with a similar period last year.

According to the Des Plaines Fire Department quarterly report released this week, fire losses to buildings and vehicles totaled $37,170 so far this year, a difference of $37,170 from a loss figure in 1973 of $27,545.

The report shows that so far this year, fire has caused losses of $80,260 to buildings and contents and another $4,426 to vehicles.

In 1973, $24,190 such building damage was caused with a vehicle loss figure of $3,355. This year's three-month total represents a decrease, however, from 1972 quarterly fire losses when a total of $98,920 in damages were recorded.

DEPUTY FIRE CHIEF David Clark, in commenting on the report, said residential fire alarms, which rose 75 per cent from 32 to 56, were factors in the increased damage figure.

But the figures are also inflated from year to year based on rising housing costs, he said.

A total of $26,000 damage was caused in two separate house fires in February and March of this year.

He said also that several fires apparently set by vandals in vacant houses and buildings have contributed to damages.

About $5,000 damage was caused to a vacant house Monday at 400 Lillian Ln., when a fire, apparently set by vandals broke out. According to fire department reports, the blaze broke out in the basement and took firemen more than an hour to extinguish.

Clark said a paint can, with a rag stuffed inside was found stuck in a wall and was the method used to ignite the blaze. No one was injured.

CLARK ALSO pointed to faulty electrical wiring and overloading of electrical circuits in homes as direct causes of some of this year's fires.

The report also showed increases and decreases in building alarm responses such as:

- Nonresidential alarms, which more than tripled for the two periods from 5 in 1973 to 17 for the first three months of this year.

- Industrial alarms also tripled from four to 13 for the two quarters.

Concert pianist Moffat at Maine North

International concert pianist Denis Moffat will open Maine North High School's "Rites of Spring" on Monday, May 6 at 8 p.m. Moffat is a graduate of the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, and he studied in Paris from 1963 to 1965 on a Fulbright scholarship with Vlado Perlemuter. Perlemuter is a world renowned musicologist who is director of the American conservatory at Fontainebleau.

Moffat has performed in various European capitals and made a concert tour of Norway, presenting 16 recitals, highlighted by an appearance before King Olav.

Maryville land transfer set today

Dist. 26 and the Chicago Archdiocese will close the deal today on the transfer of ownership of five acres of Maryville Academy land.

The district is purchasing the land at Gregory Street and River Road in Des Plaines at a cost of $75,000. The site will be used for the new Maryville School, which will replace the present River Road School where Maryville students now attend class.

The land ownership transfer completes a requirement of the Illinois Capital Development Board that the school district have title to the property before money is spent to build on it.

The ICDB is providing approximately $1 million to construct the new school.

The Dist. 26 board last week approved design concepts for the school as presented by architects from Fields, Goldman and Magee of Mount Vernon, architects in charge of the project.

THE ONE-STORY building will be approximately 30,000 square feet and will probably face Gregory Street. The design will be basically rectangular with various juts for instructional modules.

A core or administration center will be surrounded by sections including a primary grade area, an intermediate grade area, a junior high area and sections for industrial arts, music and gym classes.

Architects emphasized the building is designed for flexibility with open classrooms and movable walls. The design also allows for expansion of the building around its perimeter.

Architects will present the design concepts this week to the ICDB, which must also approve them. Once the ICDB gives its okay to the concepts, architects can begin to sketch working drawings for the school. The working drawings must also be approved by the school board and the ICDB.

- Six alarms in stores and businesses were called in this year while seven such alarms were recorded last year in three months when responses for garage fire alarms dropped from five to two.

- False alarms dropped from 17 to 11 according to the report, a 35 per cent decrease.

Total responses from the city's three fire stations also increased 32 per cent from 796 to 1,053, but Clark said that jump was partly attributable to a change in department procedure for responding to building alarms.

SINCE MID-1973, firefighting equipment from two city stations have been answering such calls, even though the fire may be small or non-existent.

"Even though alarm-response totals will increase," said Clark, "the idea is for better protection."

Ambulance alarms this year accounted for 51 per cent of all fire department calls this year as opposed to 64 per cent in three months last year.

The reports indicated, however, that ambulances were called upon on 34 per cent more or 415 occasions this year as compared with 306 such responses in the 1973 quarter.

Clark said, however, that percentage decrease is due to the jump in responses to code-3 (fire) alarms.

The report also reflected drops in the number of times emergency vehicles were delayed by trains, 24 to 13, and the time of delay in minutes, 48 to 17, for the two periods.

Schools accept principal's resignation

The Dist. 26 school board voted to accept the resignation of Indian Grove School principal Martin Rupe effective the end of the school year and expunge from the record the board's decision made Saturday to terminate his contract.

The action, a 5-3 vote on the resignation and a 6-1 vote on expunging the minutes, was preceded by a lengthy discussion surrounding the board's weekend decision.

Parents at the meeting Tuesday night asked the board why the vote to dismiss Rupe was being erased from the minutes of Saturday's meeting. The board said school board attorneys said the action was appropriate and would cause the record to show that Rupe resigned and was not fired.

Board members added the action would clarify their original intent regarding the entire situation. Rupe, they said, agreed to resign Saturday. Because a letter to that effect was not submitted on Saturday, however, the board had to act to dismiss him in order to meet the legal deadline of April 15 for notification of contract termination.

"THIS IS BEING done to make Mr. Rupe look good," said board member Leora Rosen. "It certainly does not make the board look good."

Mrs. Rosen added, however, that the action was being taken to substantiate the board's original intent in the matter, which was to ask for Rupe's resignation rather than fire him.

TED WATTENBERG, who was the only board member to vote against the termination resolution Saturday and voted against both resolutions last night, vehemently opposed the status change.

"I'm in the minority and do not agree with this whatsoever. We knew what we were doing at the time and we voted to send him a letter of termination."

Board member William Haase read a three-page statement representing his viewpoint on the board's action. He listed seven factors which represent in part some of the considerations he felt are used by the board to evaluate principals and administrators.

THE LIST INCLUDED effectiveness in providing educational leadership, innovativeness in directing curriculum and educational policy, leadership in control and maintenance of the physical facilities, effectiveness in relating to parents and the community, effectiveness in guiding teachers, success in creating an atmosphere conducive to learning and relations with students.

Lloyd Demel, who joined Wattenberg in voting against accepting Rupe's resignation, said two important factors were involved in the board's decisions to expunge the minutes.

Rupe, he said, intended to hand in his resignation but because it was not done Saturday, the board had to act "regretfully." Board members agreed, however, that in reviewing the entire matter they should have acted earlier since the matter had been under discussion for some time before Saturday.

Rupe was not in attendance at the meeting.

From the library

Nostalgia for the past brings many persons to the Des Plaines Public Library for books recalling earlier years and books about earlier times — especially the period of the '20s and '30s — have been in continuing heavy demand.

The history and activities of the '20s and '30s are covered in such books as "The American Heritage History of the '20s and '30s," by the editors of American Heritage; "All the Things We Were," by Louise Tanner; "Remember When," by Allen Churchill; "The Thirties: A Time to Remember," edited by Don Congon; "The Culture of the 1920's," edited by Loren Baritz; "Babbitt and Bohemians: The American 1920's," by Elizabeth Stevenson, and "This Fabulous Century — 1920-1930 volume," by the editors of Time-Life.

The early years of motion pictures are described in Bosley Crowther's, "The Great Films: 50 Golden Years of Motion Pictures"; David Blum's, "Pictorial History of the Silent Screen"; and "Pictorial History of the Talkies"; Richard Griffith's "Movie Stars"; Kalton C. Lahue's "World of Laughter," and Brownlow's, "The Parade's Gone By."

ERA week proclaimed

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel has proclaimed this week as Equal Rights Amendment week in the city.

Numerous groups throughout the state have been campaigning to get the Illinois General Assembly to approve the amendment here.

Thirty-three states have already adopted the constitutional amendment since it was passed by the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate two years ago.

Vandals do $2,000 damage to building

Vandals caused an estimated $2,000 damage after smashing light fixtures, damaging walls and breaking benches at offices of Professional Photographers, 1090 Executive Way, Des Plaines, police said.

Company officials reported the damage Monday upon opening up their offices for business. Police said nine cement benches were broken and seven light fixtures were smashed.

A storage shed was also damaged, according to reports.

City considers making recycling center profitable

City officials are looking into the possibility of turning the nonprofit recycling center into a profit-making venture.

The Oakton Street center on the city's south side has been a collection point for more than two years for newspaper, glass and tin cans. Although sponsored by the city, the Cleveland Corp. has supplied containers, picked up materials and sold them to brokers under a no charge, no pay contract with the city.

Ald. Irene Birchfield (5th) told the council earlier this week that the two-year contract with Cleveland will expire today. She suggested the contract not be renewed and the city sell the recyclables to brokers on its own.

"In light of current prices for glass, metal and newspapers, I believe we should terminate the Cleveland contract," she said.

Although prices fluctuate daily, there is much money to be made in discarded newspapers, glass and cans, she said.

OTHER ALDERMEN, however, pointed out that the expected revenue might not be worth the trouble it would cause for the city to run the center itself.

"Before Cleveland we didn't have anybody to do this and couldn't find anybody to do it," said Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd). "We didn't expect to make any money on this — it was more an effort for ecology."

The alderman added that the problems that existed when the city tried to operate the center on its own had been cleared up once the firm was hired. "I haven't heard any complaints in the two years Cleveland has been in there," he said.

MAYOR HERBERT BEHREL was cautious about dumping Cleveland at his weekly press conference Tuesday. "Our recycling center was a mess before Cleveland — we had a devil of a time keeping it clean. In six months we spent $34,000 to $35,000 cleaning the place and hauling away," he said.

The mayor added that he wanted to make sure the city would not wind up with the same problems if Cleveland is not retained.

"We're taking back a responsibility that we haven't had to bother with for two years," he said.

The city would stand to make a profit even if a new Cleveland contract was signed. Under a new contract the firm has offered to pay the city the current rate per ton for newspapers collected (now between $20 and $25 a ton) while charging the city $40 for each container of glass hauled away.

Environmental officer Philip Lindahl told the council about four containers of glass and 20 tons of paper are recycled each month in the city. Under the new contract and if recycling remains at its current level, the city would pay the scavenger $160 per month to remove the glass while receiving about $500 per month for the paper. Cleveland would not charge for hauling away the cans but would also not pay the city.

Lindahl also said the city would have to have some type of supervision at the center if it were to take over the project completely.

"Des Plaines has a bad reputation on the quality of glass that is recycled," he said. "Many of the loads picked up by Cleveland have gone to the dump because they were contaminated and they had to pay $10 just to dump it."

HE SUGGESTED SCOUTING groups could supervise the center or a part-time employee hired to make sure recycling was done properly. "We would have to man the center so the quality and quantity is acceptable for recycling," he said.

Mrs. Birchfield maintained the city could make more money if the city sold the materials on its own to brokers — receiving money for not only paper, but glass and cans as well.

Mrs. Birchfield's proposal was tabled by the council for three weeks until more information on the opportunity for profit is compiled. Cleveland has agreed to continue picking up at the center without a contract until the city has reached a decision.

'World cruise' coming to St. Zachary's

St. Zachary's annual Port of Call will take visitors from the jungles of Africa to Greenwich Village this year. The four-night event will be held April 19, 20, 26 and 27 at the school, 567 W. Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

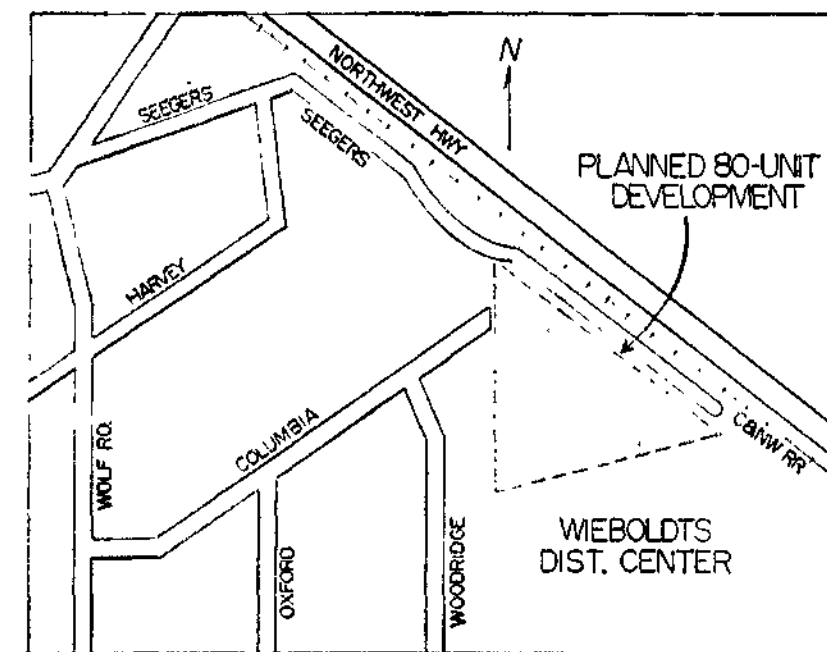

The school will be transformed into a world of entertainment for Port of Call with classrooms turned into showrooms complete with stage shows.

Six extravaganzas will be featured: "Jungle Madness," starring Tarzan, Jane and the animals; "New York, New York," with the people who come to Ellis Island and go to the East and West sides of town; "Mountain Do," featuring Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae; S.S. Caribbean, where a classroom becomes a yacht taking visitors on a cruise and includes a sing-a-long; "Blame it on Ms. Eve," a tribute to women's lib boasting such notables as Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King, with a little bit of Carrie Nation and woman suffrage thrown in for good measure.

The sixth show room is simply called "The Strip." Organizers are saying little about the show other than, "Let your curiosity get the best of you. You have to see it to believe it."

Zack's Pizzeria will be open for those who like a little food with their entertainment.

Port of Call will be open from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. all four days. Tickets at $5 each can be purchased in advance by calling 827-0974 or 936-7020.

by "allowing one apartment building you're setting a precedent for others." She noted there are several other vacant lots in the subdivision, including one at the corner of Golf and Mount Prospect roads.

"We would like to see our open land remain open," she said. "If they do build, we would prefer light industry to multi-family housing."

Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) said his "immediate reaction" is to oppose the proposed development. He noted that streets leading into the area are narrow and several are deadends.

"Multi-family housing in that area would increase the coming and going — at least with light industry, you would only have the traffic for an 8-hour period," he said.

HINDE ADDED HE doesn't like to oppose plans in the preliminary stages and "will keep an open mind" on the project.

Ald. Daniel Kisslinger (4th) said he hasn't seen the proposed plans but most of the people he has talked to "are totally against multiple family residences."

The developers will take their proposal before a May 21 joint meeting of the zoning board and plan commission.

Plan Arbor Day planting

Members of the Des Plaines Terrace Civic Association will be planting five trees for Arbor Day Friday, April 26.

The association donated $100 to the Park District's memorial tree fund to help with the cost of the tree planting.

Fifth-grade news team takes off after 'Today'

by LINDA PUNCH

"Good morning. This is the WCV nine o'clock news."

Every morning as Barbara Walters and company winds up the Today show, three Central School fifth graders slide behind a makeshift desk and begin their morning newscast.

Dressed in pullovers and slacks, the youngsters pass a small microphone back and forth as they read the latest news from rumpled newspaper clippings.

Like any self-respecting newscaster, the students sign off with a humorous story and an admonition to "Tune in next week for the WCV 9 o'clock news."

NEWS DIRECTOR and producer of the daily radiocast is fifth-grade teacher Gail Veerman, who believes that "kids can learn as much or more from other kids."

Like their counterparts on television newscasts, styles vary among the different news teams.

"It just depends on the news team. Some kids are scared and just read off the clips. Others draw up maps to illustrate the news," she said.

Mrs. Veerman's philosophy of allowing students to learn from their peers carries over into all areas, including social studies, spelling and science. The classroom is dotted with displays created by the children on subjects ranging from the energy crisis to the history of automobiles and aircraft.

RATHER THAN assigning projects to the fifth-graders, Mrs. Veerman "contracts" with each youngster for a specific assignment.

"Instead of saying do it, I sort of talk it out with each student," she said. "I tell them to do as much as they think they can. I have them put down their own expectations."

The youngsters are graded on how well they accomplish the goals outlined in their contract, according to Mrs. Veerman.

"The kids are setting their own goals and meeting their own expectations. If I know they're capable, I encourage them to do more," she said.

"The kids take on as much work as they feel comfortable with — if they lack confidence, their expectations are low," she said. "I expect them to take on more work as they gain confidence."

Most of the children take a great deal of pride in their projects, assembling dioramas of oil fields and models of airplanes. Cardboard screens in corners of the room are covered with graphs, charts and reports on various topics.

Mrs. Veerman notes that many of the children's oral presentations to the class are "very lengthy" but that the students are "more involved in the learning process when they teach each other."

"Some of these kids know more on some topics than I do," she added. "And I think they get more involved than with just sitting down listening to me."

Virgin prairie will be kept by parks, if...

The Des Plaines Park District will preserve and maintain a virgin prairie site along the Northwest Highway if the city's Bicentennial commission acquires the land, park officials said yesterday.

The area, located along Northwest Highway S-curve, is considered to be one of the few areas of virgin prairie left in Illinois. The bicentennial group is currently studying the possibility of acquiring the land as a bicentennial project.

The land is currently owned by the Chicago and North Western Ry. If the plot is acquired, the park district would take care of cleaning up the area, maintaining it and fencing the acreage off as a park site.

According to Park and Recreation Director Robert Kunkel, the land would be left in its "natural state and would not be intended for free play use." He added however that local schools would probably conduct outdoor educational programs there.

Four physicians on Pre-dict panel

A panel of four medical specialists will participate in a Project Pre-dict seminar Thursday, April 25 at 7:30 p.m. at Oakton School building, 2101 Oakton St. Park Ridge.

Members of the panel will be Dr. Seymour Metrick and Dr. Richard L. Marks, pediatricians, Dr. Jerry G. Seidel, ophthalmologist, and Dr. Philip J. Berent, psychiatrist. Each will talk briefly about his particular area of medicine as it relates to small children and their development, and then will be available to answer questions from the parents in attendance.

This federally funded program, operating under the sponsorship of the Maine Township Special Education Program and administered by Maine Township High School Dist. 207, screens, tests and provides remediation programs and activities for prekindergarten children with developmental delay problems. The project also provides consultative and training services for parents of such children. The April 25 seminar is open to the public and is part of the in-service program for parents.

The four medical men who will take part in the seminar make up Project Pre-Dict's Medical Advisory Board. Serving without pay and as a public service, they are the project's liaison with the medical profession.

'The Big Carnival' of '51 at Oakton

The Oakton Community College Film Society will present the 1951 film, "The Big Carnival," when it resumes its regular Friday night film series on this Friday following spring vacation.

The film will be shown in Building 6 on the OCC interim campus at Oakton and Nagle in Morton Grove at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

The OCC film society series is open to the public. All Oakton and MONACEP students as well as Maine and Niles Township High School students are admitted free. A 50-cent donation is requested of all others.

Second class postage paid.

These are the three things to consider when you are in the market for a communications system. First there is the equipment. Is it quality? Will it last? Is it the right communications tool for your situation?

Then there is the price. Does it include maintenance and a full guarantee? Are there hidden costs? Do you pay for maintenance whether you need it or not?

Last and most important is service. You are dependent upon your communications equipment. If it fails, who will fix it? How long will you have to wait? What will it cost? Will it be done right the first time?

Your local telephone company, a part of the Centel System, wants you to know what you should be getting for your communications dollar. Once you know the facts, you'll realize Centel is the complete communications company.

Is revenue-sharing formula cheating some suburbs?

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Quirks in federal revenue-sharing regulations are causing numerous inequities in the distribution of the funds in the Northwest suburbs.

For example, despite the physical proximity and relatively homogeneous nature of Northwest suburban communities, some municipal governments are receiving up to five times as much revenue sharing per capita as their neighbors.

Even in suburbs doing fairly well locally, some officials are unhappy with the revenue-sharing formula, which provides more money for poorer communities with stable populations than it does for rapidly growing, affluent suburbs.

A HERALD ANALYSIS of Northwest suburban population, tax and income statistics, which are used in part to determine federal revenue sharing allocations, found that:

- Elk Grove Village has received $27.54 per resident from the federal government while neighboring Schaumburg's total works out to only $5.40 per capita.

- Suburbs growing fastest — including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove — get considerably less revenue sharing per capita than more stable communities like Des Plaines.

- Communities already receiving substantial real estate and sales tax benefits from huge regional shopping centers or industrial parks located within their boundaries get even more federal money because their income from those facilities counts just as heavily in the federal formula as residential taxes do.

- Suburbs that have reduced or eliminated municipal real estate taxes do so at the expense of losing a good portion of what they would otherwise receive in revenue sharing funds. Those that raise tax levies or introduce new taxes, get more federal money.

- Communities that provide library services, fire protection or recreation as part of the village or city government fare better than those with separate park, library or fire taxing districts.

- Buffalo Grove and Hoffman Estates are hurt in the revenue sharing formula because small commercial areas yield little sales tax revenue to the villages, to be added into local tax effort.

- High assessed valuation in Elk Grove Village's Center Industrial Park benefits that village more than high real estate tax rates benefit Des Plaines or Hoffman Estates.

REVENUE-SHARING money first began to flow into the Northwest suburbs in December 1972. The $30.2 billion federal program to distribute individual income tax money back to states, counties, townships, cities and villages is scheduled to end in 1976 unless Congress decides to continue the program.

The money is distributed by computers using complicated formulas devised by Congress. The formula includes an adjusted tax figure for each local government unit which includes municipal real estate taxes, sales tax rebates from the state, license and permit fees and other local taxes.

The distribution process begins with a total allocation for the state. Its rank among other states is based on as many as five factors including population, local taxes paid compared to the personal incomes of state residents, the percentage of urbanized population in the state and whether the state has an income tax of its own.

The lump sum for Illinois is broken down with one-third of the total going to state government.

The remainder is then divided up by counties, townships and municipalities. Allen Shepard, who handles distribution of Illinois revenue sharing for the federal Office of Revenue Sharing in Washington, explained that the population of a municipality makes little difference in the amount of funds it receives.

THE OTHER TWO factors used in the formula for local governments — the amount of local taxes paid and the per capita income of residents — are much more crucial in deciding where any one government will rank, he said.

Shepard said per capita income figures are so important that even the slight variations among Northwest suburban communities could make a major difference in the amount of revenue sharing received.

He cited as examples two communities with the same number of residents receiving identical amounts of taxes from local sources. If one of the towns had twice the per capita income of the other, the town with the lower income would receive four times the revenue sharing of the richer community, Shepard said.

Inequities in distribution of the money locally result partly from the formula devised by Congress, which gives equal weight to sales tax revenue and to real estate taxes paid on homes.

THE FEDERAL formula compounds what some legislators and officials from residential suburbs have said is already an inequitable distribution of sales tax rebates created by Illinois law.

Another cause of the local inequities is the federal government's use of 1970 census population figures in computing each municipality's share of the revenue sharing total for the Cook County area.

The federal government argues it can only use updated special census populations to divide revenue sharing money within a county if every municipality in the county has a special census to update population figures. The government reliance on the 1970 figures for Cook County, however, penalizes villages like Schaumburg, which increased its population by 73 per cent between 1970 and 1973.

The chart includes figures helpful in analyzing the inequities in revenue sharing distribution. The chart shows both 1970 populations and updated special census figures if available for 10 Northwest suburbs. The per capita revenue sharing figures on the chart are computed using the most recently available official census population.

THE MUNICIPAL tax rate and municipal tax levy figures indicate the level of taxes a resident of any one community will pay.

Sales tax figures show the relative importance of high sales tax rebates if a community is to fare well in revenue sharing receipts.

The variations in the per capita income figures, while slight, can also play a major role in determining how much revenue sharing a community will receive.

The $1 million the village of Arlington Heights collects annually as a 3 per cent utility tax on electricity, natural gas and telephone bills, although not reflected on the chart, also adds to the local tax figure for that community.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS in the local communities hurt by the federal formula long ago recognized the inequities which The Herald figures point to as well as other problems with revenue sharing.

Palatine residents, for example, pay far too much federal income tax to receive such a small amount of revenue sharing funds, Village President Wendell E. Jones said.

"I think they should stop taking so much or send more back. It should be increased. We send $36 million out of Palatine annually and only get $150,000 back. It occurs to me this is blatantly unfair. If they would give us just 10 per cent or $3.6 million we could eliminate all local taxes," he said.

MOUNT PROSPECT Village Mgr. Robert Eppley complains that Uncle Sam is handing out revenue sharing money with one hand and taking away other more established sources of federal revenue to municipalities with the other hand.

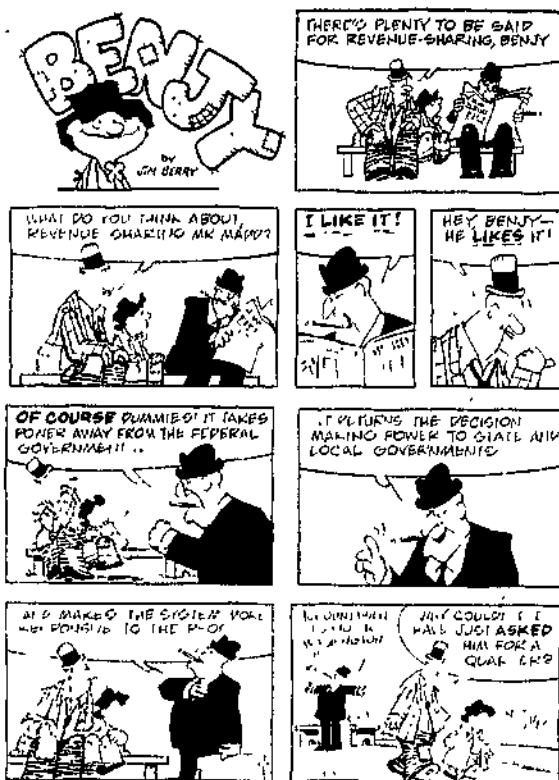

Eppley says freezing of various federal grant programs has hurt local communities. And revenue sharing "is not enough. It doesn't take the place of the whole grant program."

Officials in Schaumburg and in Buffalo Grove, the two Northwest suburban municipalities getting the smallest share of the revenue sharing pie locally, complain the formula discriminates against their communities.

Schaumburg gets burned on it because part of the formula is tax base and our village doesn't levy any kind of tax. We get hurt because if we taxed to the hilt we would have gotten more," finance director Joseph Castor said.

BUFFALO GROVE "isn't getting a fair shake," Village Mgr. Daniel Larson says, because the community has few commercial stores and receives little sales tax income.

Instead of revenue sharing making up for the village's lack of sales tax revenue, Buffalo Grove is penalized because the sales tax is included in the federal formula as part of the "tax effort" of a local community.

Many other local communities with populations the same or slightly larger than Buffalo Grove's are getting three times as much revenue sharing, Larson points out.

The revenue sharing distribution formula is "discriminatory," Larson said. "It's the same old story. The rich get richer and the poor stay poor."

BUFFALO GROVE has filed written objections to its small allocation with both the treasury department and with U.S. Senators Adlai Stevenson and Charles Percy. But so far the village has received only a small increase.

Larson reflects the wishes of most local officials when he says he would like to see Congress base the distribution on the amount of federal income tax paid by a community relative to its population, a formula that would favor rich communities.

Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer complains his community is hurt because the Office of Revenue Sharing insists on basing the distribution on Hoffman Estates' 1970 population of 22,238 instead of the 31,833 residents that a 1973 special census shows now live in the village.

New Harper board should examine campus problems

The Harper College Board of Trustees will enter a new year next week and, barring major surprises in the official vote tally, it will have three new members.

Granted, no one can be quite sure right now who those three new board members will be. It seems fairly clear that incumbents William Kelly and Robert Rausch have won three-year terms and that Shirley Munson has won a two-year term in Saturday's election, but just four votes separate Stanley Carrier and Judith Troehler, both of whom are running for a three-year term.

Having three new board members is going to mean some adjustments on the board. The new board members will have to take some time to figure out what is going on and how they should act and the old board members will have to get used to some new personalities.

So perhaps before any of the new board members take office is a good time to look at one of the things that has resulted in strained relations at the college, as exemplified by an action the board took at its last meeting before the election.

AT THAT MEETING, the board approved a recommendation from the administration that the amount of time a teacher must be at the college before he can receive tenure be increased from three years to five years.

The change will not affect any teachers now at the school — only those who are hired later. And, though there was a protest from the faculty senate president, it was relatively mild compared to irritation expressed later in the meeting about the faculty evaluation system.

But the point is that there was a protest — and many months ago anyone at all familiar with Harper could have predicted the nature of the protest.

LAST YEAR, college president Robert Lahti brought to the board's attention that there had been a lot of debate, particularly at four-year colleges around the country, about the effect of liberal tenure procedures on schools during a period of declining enrollments at colleges and universities.

Then, a committee made up of faculty members and administrators was formed and asked to study the situation at Harper in light of the national debate and to make recommendations to the board.

The committee worked for several months and finally produced a thick report, complete with footnotes and bibliography which concluded that Harper should, indeed, lengthen the period required before a teacher receives tenure — to four years instead of three.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

The committee's report was received with warm thanks from the board and referred to the Harper administration. They in turn referred the report to the director of academic affairs for the American Council on Education — who, as an "outside consultant" recommended that the school's probationary period be lengthened to five years.

THE COMMITTEE was given a chance to look at the consultant's recommendation before it was presented to the board. The members voted 14-4 against it. Faculty senate Pres. Robert Powell, who served on the committee, explained that committee members had studied all the information and concluded that the case of two-year colleges was not the same as four-year colleges.

Lahti agreed with that statement, but said, "The typical four-year college has a seven year probationary period."

The board passed the recommendation for the five-year probation.

The point of this has little to do with the issue of tenure, which is a hot one in college's around the country. Instead, the lesson future Harper board members should draw is that the fate of the tenure committee report was similar to the fate of any number of committee reports commissioned at Harper over the years.

In fact, when the original tenure committee report was given the board, several faculty members flatly predicted that the recommendation in the report would be changed by the time the board acted on it.

Now, certainly, no one should argue that the reports from all faculty committees should be accepted as gospel by the board and administration, but the tenure committee report case — so similar to other cases — does raise some questions.

WHY COULDN'T the recommendation from the outside consultant have been provided to the committee before it turned in its report? And why is the unquestioned assumption made that the outside consultant's recommendation is better than the internal committee's recommendation?

Now, as I said, there are all sorts of complicated factors involved in deciding what a school's tenure policy should be. But the question that faces Harper is why the recommendations of faculty committees always seem to be overruled before the board acts on them.

At some point, it would seem faculty members would get tired of serving on committees whose recommendations are never followed.

Admittedly, however, in the tenure committee situation, the faculty was only mildly irritated — partly, I suspect, because they had expected much worse treatment.

As one teacher said after the meeting, "We should be grateful they didn't make it seven years."

Charge EPA head with interest conflict

by LEA TONKIN

A conflict of interest jeopardizes the effective enforcement of the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System in Illinois, charges the Citizens for a Better Environment group in Chicago. In a suit filed Tuesday in U.S. district court, Chicago, CBE says Dr. Richard Briceland, director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, is serving two masters: the state and the federal cleanup agencies.

The suit calls for an annulment of Briceland's state appointment, or his removal from the federal U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Briceland has not been confirmed by the Illinois Senate.

On leave of absence from the federal agency, he continues to receive his federal paycheck. He is not listed on the state payroll. Briceland, and Russell Train, federal EPA administrator, have 60 days to answer the suit.

Philip Miller, research director for CBE, said Briceland has already compromised the state interest in the NPDES federal water permit program in Illinois. Created by the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of Amendments of 1972, the program is an effort to prevent and eliminate water pollution by regulation of dischargers. States will have to enforce water pollution control within a federal framework. If a state does not fulfill its responsibilities under this law, the federal EPA can step in to take action.

Prior to Briceland's appointment in January, the Illinois EPA denied certification of 19 dischargers under its pollutant discharge regulations. Later, Briceland withdrew the denial of certification for the polluters, and moved to table state EPA recommendations for compliance with the NPDES program. The Illinois Pollution Control Board moved ahead, despite this action to issue for public comment the NPDES proposals. Miller contends that Briceland cooperated with the federal EPA in an attempt to impose the federal standards, which contain less strict enforcement proposals.

Another conflict of interest that has not been resolved in the federal certification of Illinois NPDES standards is the appointment of Roger Seaman to the Illinois Pollution Control Board. He was previously employed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District. This represents a conflict with a federal prohibition of permit review for agencies with which a PCB member was employed within the past two years.

A spokesman for Dr. Briceland in Springfield said he had not been served with the suit, and no comment can be issued until that time.

Lake shoreline meeting

Lake Michigan shoreline management meeting is scheduled for April 25 by the Committee on Lake Michigan, Illinois House of Representatives. The 10 a.m. session will be held in the Illinois Commerce Committee hearing room, 19th floor, State of Illinois Building, 180 N. LaSalle, Chicago. Land use and public access will be discussed. The public is invited to join in the discussion. For additional information, contact Mary Ann Smith at 427-5121.

War on bird sales

Investigation and prosecution of traffickers in migratory birds will hopefully discourage the illegal commerce, said Interior Sec. Rogers C. B. Morton. It is illegal to buy, sell, barter or trade migratory birds and their parts. Morton noted that special agents in Oklahoma recently uncovered a ring of traffickers in eagles and other migratory birds. Thousands of birds were killed by the group for use in the production of war bonnets and other Indian artifacts. Many of the items were passed off as authentic art objects.

should have that information."

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong and Village Mgr. Daniel Larson could not be reached for comment Wednesday on the sticker purchases. Mrs. Clayton, however, said, "All I know is that they've (stickers) been sold to them (Grand Spaulding) since before I became clerk."

"I haven't really conversed with the village attorney on it," she said. "Looking at it in hindsight, now I wish I had checked on the legality."

Mrs. Clayton said she talked with Larson and the village treasurer about the situation more than two years ago, but does not recall what was said in the conversations. "At the time I didn't stop to think it might be illegal," she said.

VILLAGE ATTY. Richard Raysa said Wednesday he has never been consulted by village officials on the matter and was not aware the village was selling stickers to Grand Spaulding. "I will advise the village to write to them immediately and ask them where the vehicles are housed to determine whether they are attempting to evade a City of Chicago vehicle tax," he said.

Raysa continued, "I would say if the cars are not housed in Buffalo Grove it is possible they may be trying to beat the city. If they (Grand Spaulding) are illegally purchasing the stickers I would say it could be reason for a cause of action by the City of Chicago and the village against them."

When asked about the illegal purchase of vehicle stickers, Police Chief Harry Walsh said, "No, this is the first I've heard of it. But I think Grand Spaulding could call this home since they are property owners here and pay taxes to the village. I would suspect it is legal."

Grand Spaulding has sold staff and police cars to the village for three out of the last four years. Walsh, however, said the village purchased the cars from the firm because it was awarded the state contract as the lowest bidder. "We get cars from them at the lowest possible price," he said.

New banking unit meets April 28-30

The branch banking controversy sparked the formation of a new banking organization in Illinois. The first annual convention of the fledgling group, Assn. for Modern Banking in Illinois, will be held April 28-30 at the Drake Oak Brook Hotel in Oak Brook. The association was formed in 1973 by banks supporting the multiple-office banking concept. A branch banking proposal was defeated at an Illinois Bankers Assn. convention last year. Branch banking is now practiced in all states with the exception of Illinois and West Virginia.

Walter Charkton, president of AMBI and president of the First Trust and Savings Bank of Kankakee, said the group plans to concern itself with more than the branching issue. Some 200 bankers are expected to attend the Oak Brook session.

'Crises in retailing' topic

"Retailing 1974: Coping with crises" is the theme for the April 23 annual meeting of the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. in Arlington Heights. Hugh Muncy, president of the group, said the guest speaker at the luncheon session at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel will be George Burditt, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Investment clubs meeting

The Chicago Council of the National Assn. of Investment Clubs will hold its spring seminar Saturday at the Sheraton-Oak Brook hotel, 1401 W. 22nd, Oak Brook.

A hand-held air pollution monitor that displays pollution levels in lighted digits and other sophisticated laboratory instruments made by GCA Precision Scientific of Chicago, plus talks by GCA corporation's principal officers: Michael G. Zarechak, author of "The Art of Low Risk Investing"; William Stelle of Merrill-Lynch and Mrs. Lorrie Gustin, national secretary of NAIC, will highlight the meeting.

Nonmember investors and NAIC members interested in attending may obtain reservations at $10 per person from the Chicago Council, NAIC, P.O. Box 66113, Chicago, Ill. 60666, or by calling 353-1203, according to Jack Meyer, council president.

American Can declares dividend

The board of directors of American Can Co. declared the regular quarterly dividend on the common stock of 35 cents a share, payable May 25, to shareholders of record as of April 12.

Over-60 seminar April 23

"Dimension 60" seminar will be hosted April 23 by the Citizens Bank & Trust Co. of Park Ridge.

The meeting is open to all Northwest Suburban residents over 60. Explanations of Medicare and Social Security payments will be offered at the session, from 1 to 3 p.m., at the Pickwick Theater in Park Ridge.

Edward Stee, program officer for health insurance with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and Sam Joseph, Social Security representative, will be the speakers. Advance reservations should be made by calling 325-7000.

Branch banking examined by Chicago Federal Reserve

There is hardly a banker in the 7th Federal Reserve District that has not been involved, on one side or the other, in the controversy surrounding branch banking in recent years.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said that in the 7th District alone, state branching restrictions range from the complete prohibition of branching in Illinois (banks may establish a single drive-in facility not more than 1,500 feet from the main premises), to varying forms of limited branch banking in Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. At year-end 1972, there were 1,300 bank branches in Michigan, 777 in Indiana, 389 bank offices in Iowa and 299 branches in Wisconsin.

Opposition to branching, says the bank, has its origins in a 1963 interpretation of the National Bank Act of 1863. A court's strict reading of the singular noun "place" in the act precluded operation of banking offices at more than one location, and U.S. Comptrollers of the Currency from 1865 to 1922 supported this interpretation. In 1922, the Comptroller of the Currency reversed previous policy and ruled that national banks might open limited service offices in home office cities in states permitting branching.

AN IMPORTANT force working in favor of the branching movement was the high rate of bank failures during the 1920s and '30s. But the reform legislation of the '30s that improved the safety of banks all but ignored branching as a corrective. Since the Depression, the branching controversy has shifted from the federal to the state level. While few states have liberalized their branching laws in the past four decades, branching has made spectacular gains where it has been permitted, says the bank. Between 1933 and 1973, the number of branches increased from 2,730 to 26,251.

The Chicago bank concludes that it appears that branch banking is associated with a number of positive results. But, the bank goes on to say, unless accompanied by safeguards against excessive concentration in local markets, the adoption of branch banking could prove a costly mistake for the public.

Mortgage market plenty tight: exec

by LEA TONKIN

Until a few weeks ago, reminisced Jack Clark Jr., things were going great in the mortgage business. "We were making loans like there was no tomorrow," said Clark, vice president in the lending division at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn. in Arlington Heights.

Then came the turnaround in home financing. Arlington Heights Federal declared a moratorium on new mortgage commitments on April 5.

"I've heard there are some associations still making 70 per cent loans (300 per cent down payment), to customers only, but those are few and far between," Clark said.

FROM HIS vantage point, Clark sees the mortgage market as the victim of a double whammy: new higher interest rates for Treasury bills and other short-term investments that lured savers away from the savings and loan associations and income tax payouts. The result is a drain on savings and a crimp on lending to home buyers.

Clark said savings inflows in early 1974 started to offset the heavy outflows of funds recorded in the last half of 1973.

"There was a pent-up demand for money from last fall, when money was not readily available," he said. "For the first quarter of this year, I'm sure we broke all records as far as loan commitments." In a peak week, $4 million in commitments was issued by the institution.

S&L's can borrow funds to make home loans at a cost of more than 9 per cent, Clark said. However, Illinois usury law limits mortgage rates to 8 per cent.

Savings outflows, curtailed lending at Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn. in Chicago "ever since the first of April," reported a spokesman. "As far as we know, we're going from day-to-day," he said.

For mortgage commitments which are available, a 30 per cent down payment is required. The interest rate is 7.9 per cent plus 2½ per cent service charge for a 25-year loan; and 7.9 per cent plus 2.9 per cent service charge for a 29-year loan.

JAMES HOLMES, executive director of the Chicago Area Council of Savings Associations, said the association's survey results being compiled this week will show a net savings outflow.

"It doesn't look good," he said. Several S&L's have declared a moratorium on new mortgage commitments, he said. Holmes cited competition from Treasury bills and reduced savings due to inflation as the reasons for savings outflow.

"It's a disaster," said Dr. Sherman Shapiro, economist and senior vice president, Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago, of the mortgage market in Illinois. "There's been a significant turnaround in the last several weeks for two reasons," he said.

"First, the expected large inflows at S&L's haven't materialized," Shapiro said. A comparison of savings flows at 28 large S&Ls in Illinois and Wisconsin for the first 10 days of April, 1973, shows a $26 million swing. Nearly $11 million net inflow in the 1973 period was reported, compared to a net loss of more than $15 million for the first 10 days of this month. The figure for the 1972 period was a $45 million net inflow.

TREASURY BILLS. Treasury notes and other short term rates rose 1½ per cent in the past 1½ months, Shapiro said. The boost in three-month Treasury bill yield to 8.6 per cent on April 10 came at a time when savings interest is paid and large amounts of funds may be transferred to new accounts. The top rate of fered for S&L certificates of deposit (a four-year commitment) is an effective 7.9 per cent.

A second problem is the 8 per cent states usury ceiling, the economist said. S&Ls which borrow funds from the Federal Home Loan Bank pay 8.5, 8.625 or 9.5 per cent for the funds.

The prime rate boost to 10 per cent has one effect on mortgage rates, he continued. Thrift institutions occasionally borrow funds from commercial banks to finance their lending activity. "But how can they borrow funds at 10 per cent and make loans at 8 per cent?" he asked.

In other states, the rate for mortgages is 8.5 to 8.75 per cent.

For home buyers, "if you're lucky enough to have connections or an account, then you're lucky," Shapiro said. "But if you're like most people and you walk in off the street, you're going to have problems getting a mortgage."

The costs of inflation and uncertain economic conditions must be considered, he said. Shifts in spending patterns will mean more families will decide to live in an apartment, close to transportation, finding it "difficult to live in the boonies."

Victor Borge scheduled to make appearance at St. Viator's 'Night of the Lion'

The third annual "Night of the Lion," a major fund-raising event for St. Viator High School, will be held May 5 at the school, 1213 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

Victor Borge, world famous musician, pianist and comedian, will be making his first appearance in the Northwest suburbs at this event.

Tickets for the program is $50 per couple. More than 800 persons from 12 area communities representing 21 Catholic parishes are expected to attend, according to chairmen of the event.

Brother Leo V. Ryan, president of St. Viator, said that fund-raising events such as the "Night of the Lion," are means of providing funds to the school in times of rising costs.

CHAIRMAN of the program is Robert Bettis of Arlington Heights. Assisting him are Harry O'Kane, Stan Bobowski and John Gillen, all of Arlington Heights. Gillen serves as general sales manager.

Handling business contributions is Paul Bruck of Arlington Heights. Roland Ley, also of Arlington Heights, serves as ticket chairman.

In charge of special events are Dorothy Bettis, Helen O'Kane, Ann Gillen and Joan Wade, all of Arlington Heights.

Sacred Heart enters sports

Sacred Heart of Mary High School students will be competing in the Mid-Suburban League of the Illinois High School Assn. in softball and track and field.

This is the first year that the all-girl Catholic high school in Rolling Meadows has participated in the associations' track and field competition.

Track and field competitors are scheduled to meet teams from Wheeling and Arlington high schools at 4:30 p.m. April 23, at Wheeling High School. Another match will be held at 4 p.m. May 9 at Palatine High School.

Sacred Heart's entry into the track and field competition was met with a great deal of enthusiasm according to coach Cheri Neri. "We had more than 20 girls sign up for competition and another 20 for general practice," she said. The girls will be practicing on neighboring schools' tracks. Plans are being made to install a pit and high jump at Sacred Heart.

Competition games for the softball team will begin at Schaumburg High School on May 13.

Harper newspaper applications

Applications are being taken now for staff positions on next fall's Harper College student newspaper, "The Harbinger."

Positions include those of editor, activities editor, photo editor, photographers, cartoonists, and contributing staff. Applications must be filed by May 1 with Frank Borelli, director of student activities. The editor will be selected by the publications board later this spring; the new editor then names his or her staff.

Applicants may be first year students. No college credit is offered for work on the paper but some tuition rebates are given the major positions. The paper is published weekly during the fall and spring terms and is funded through the Student Activities office.

Scholarship nominees named

Twenty-seven students at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows have been nominated as candidates for scholarships provided by the Society of Outstanding American High School Students.

The candidates, including 16 Seniors and 11 Juniors, were selected by the Sacred Heart faculty on the basis of their achievement in academics, social service and school leadership.

Adoption is radio topic

Adoption will be discussed Sunday on the radio talk show "Focus: Northwest," WWMM(FM), 92.7 at 8 a.m. and 9 p.m.

Harper College associate professor and counselor Marguerite Ewald will moderate the discussion. Program participants will be Marlene Jackson, social worker at the Cradle, Evanston; Marcy Sneed, founder and chairman of the board of Prospective and Adoptive Parents of America, and vice president of the Illinois Right to Life Committee, and Jeannine Thompson, case worker, Maternity and Adoption Unity, Catholic Charities of Chicago.

Forest View bands touring

Bands from Forest View High School are touring and performing in Washington, D.C., this week.

The 90 students in the symphonic, concert, and jazz bands will perform in the Senate rotunda, on the Capitol steps, in Lafayette Square across from the White House, and McPherson Park.

During their free time band members will attend a premiere American Theatrical College production, and the musical "Mandrake" at the John F. Kennedy Center of the Performing Arts. The group will also participate in a current political events forum in Sen. Adlai Stevenson's office and visit many of the national monuments in the area.

The bands' trip was financed through fund raising drives by the band booster club.

Career information night

A college and career information night will be held at 7 p.m. on April 24 at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights for students attending St. Viator and Sacred Heart of Mary high schools.

Sophomores and Juniors and their parents are invited to attend the program, which is being sponsored by the guidance staffs at both Catholic high schools. The evening will include small-group discussions led by professional college admissions personnel on topics such as "occupational outlook in the 1980s" and "financial aid." Sister Payton Ryan, PhD., Assistant Director of Admissions, Marquette University, will present an overview of the questions involved in planning for and in choosing colleges.

School journalists initiated

The Forest View High School chapter of Quill and Scroll International Honorary Society for High School Journalists recently initiated 26 new members.

The new initiates are Cindy Abraham, Mark Buezek, Karen Cascio, Ed Dinkel, Debbie Freko, Penny Fukuya, Linda Hugen, Mary Ann Jurewicz, Sue Kawano, Don Losey, Carrie Malewski, Richard Mally, Jan Mehlman, Kathy Miller, Jane Hevins, Sue Parise, Jackie Richardson, Denise Roberts, Jeanette Saul, Neil Schmidt, Sue Stevens, Robert Strasser, Jeff Thurey, Debbie Vinikour, Loraine West, and Sue Wilson.

Sibel Melik, president of the chapter, acted as mistress of ceremonies. Guest speakers were Mr. and Mrs. Jan Wiseman. Wiseman is president of the Journalism Education Assn., a national organization of high school journalism directors, and director of community relations at Kishwaukee Community College in DeKalb. Mrs. Wiseman is a journalism teacher and school paper advisor at DeKalb High School.

'Respect Life' walk set

National interest in the problems of the aged, abortion, ecology and endangered species will be brought into focus in a "Respect Life" walk to be held Sunday, April 28. Walkers will assemble at 8:15 a.m. on the grounds of Notre Dame High School (Chapel entrance), Ozark and Dempster in Niles.

At 8:20 a.m. the walkers will proceed South on Ozark and East on Main St. for the 9:15 a.m. mass at St. John Brebeuf Church. Children will receive an American Flag.

Free bus service after the mass, will be provided back to Notre Dame High School parking lot.

Families Anonymous to meet

Forest Hospital in Des Plaines will host a meeting of Families Anonymous Sunday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital's professional building.

Families Anonymous is a program for the families of drug abusers. The weekly meetings are geared to help families share their experiences and also to help them better understand and cope with drug problems in relatives and their own attitudes about the problems.

Families Anonymous, which started in California, will be run at Forest Hospital under the guidance of a trained leader from Families Anonymous and later by participating family members.

No dues or fees are required and the meetings are not a function of the hospital. Anonymity to participants is guaranteed.

Families Anonymous is open to any interested individual or family in the general community.

For further information call Forest Hospital, 827-3811.

Father Michael awarded Ph.D.

Father James Michael, superintendent of Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows and assistant superintendent of the Chicago Archdiocesan Schools, has been awarded the Ph.D. Degree in Educational Administration by Loyola University.

The degree is the highest awarded by the university.

Daley appointees bring a 'melting pot' look to RTA

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley covered a wide spectrum Wednesday as he named his four members of the Regional Transportation Authority.

His appointments, expected to be approved by the Chicago City Council, represent the black and Chicano communities, industry and labor.

Appointed to a five-year term was Loop attorney Nicholas J. Bosen, former dean of students at the University of Chicago Law School. Pastora San Juan Caffery, widow of former CTA chairman Michael Caffery and assistant professor of the school of Social Service Administration for the University of Chicago, was named to a four-year term.

Richard J. Daley

Fellow and White House Fellow. She has master's and doctorate degrees from George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

KEMP IS A member of the executive board of the Chicago Federation of Labor-Industrial Union Council and the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission, and was a Democratic delegate to Con-Con in 1969.

Bosen is an attorney with the Berger Corp., appraisers and property analysts, and is a member of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations.

All four are residents of Chicago, as required under the RTA bill.

Two members of the RTA board representing the five counties outside Cook are expected to be named next. Board chairmen of Lake, DuPage, Will, McHenry and Kane counties have agreed to complete their selection process by April 26.

COOK COUNTY Comr. Floyd Fulls said the two representatives from suburban Cook County will be named the week of April 29, in time for the May 3 deadline allowed in the RTA bill.

The board will be convened no later than May 10 by Langhorne Bond, Secretary of the Illinois Department of Transportation and the eight appointed members will begin the process of selecting their own chairman, who will be the ninth member of the board.

Opponents of the RTA are still seeking a discovery recount of the March 19 referendum, which was passed by a narrow margin of 12,980 votes, less than 1 percent of the ballots cast. The anti-RTA legislators are also meeting with House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, in efforts to agree on amendments that would alter the RTA bill. They would like a special session on RTA and have not been able to agree after meetings this week in Springfield.

The three-year term will be filled by James Kemp, president of Local 189, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO. He is a 24-year member of the Chicago branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The shortest term, two years, goes to Ernest S. Marsh, retired chairman of the board of Santa Fe Industries Inc. He is also a life trustee of the Illinois Institute of Technology and retired director of the Harris Bank Corp. After the first series of staggered terms, RTA board members will be appointed for five years each.

Daley submitted the names to the council Wednesday, saying, "The four appointees will bring to the RTA a rich diversity of experience in transportation, business, law and industrial relations. They are exceptionally qualified to assure this six-county region of the finest mass transportation system in the nation."

TWO OF THE appointees, Marsh and Mrs. Caffery, have particular experience with transportation. Marsh worked his way to the top of Santa Fe after beginning in 1912 with the railroad. Mrs. Caffery is a trustee of the Chicago Urban Transportation District, and served as special assistant to the secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation from 1969 to 1970. She will have to resign her position on the C.U.T.D.

Mrs. Caffery also served as special assistant to the assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development from 1970 to 1971. She is a co-host of the "Minga Amigo" show on WLS television, is a member of the National Chicano Projects Council, and is a Wall Street Fellow, Smithsonian Research

Herald opinion

Was oil crisis necessary?

William Simon buried the gasoline crisis last week, to almost no one's surprise. In fact, some people said they could have predicted the date of the burial before the crisis began last fall.

Simon, you may recall, served as the U.S. energy czar during the depths of winter when gasoline was scarce, car lines were long and tempers were short. Last week he announced that Americans could plan to take their normal vacations this summer.

This news, it seems, follows from the resumption of oil deliveries from the Middle East. "Certainly by the end of May" we will have a sufficiency of gasoline, based on past production, said Simon.

The end of the crisis, as claimed by Simon, should be greeted with applause from everyone involved, for all of us have gained a little something with Simon's good news.

For those of us who drive, we've been given back the lure of the open road this summer. If we are to believe our energy czar, our campers and station wagons will never thirst for gasoline this summer.

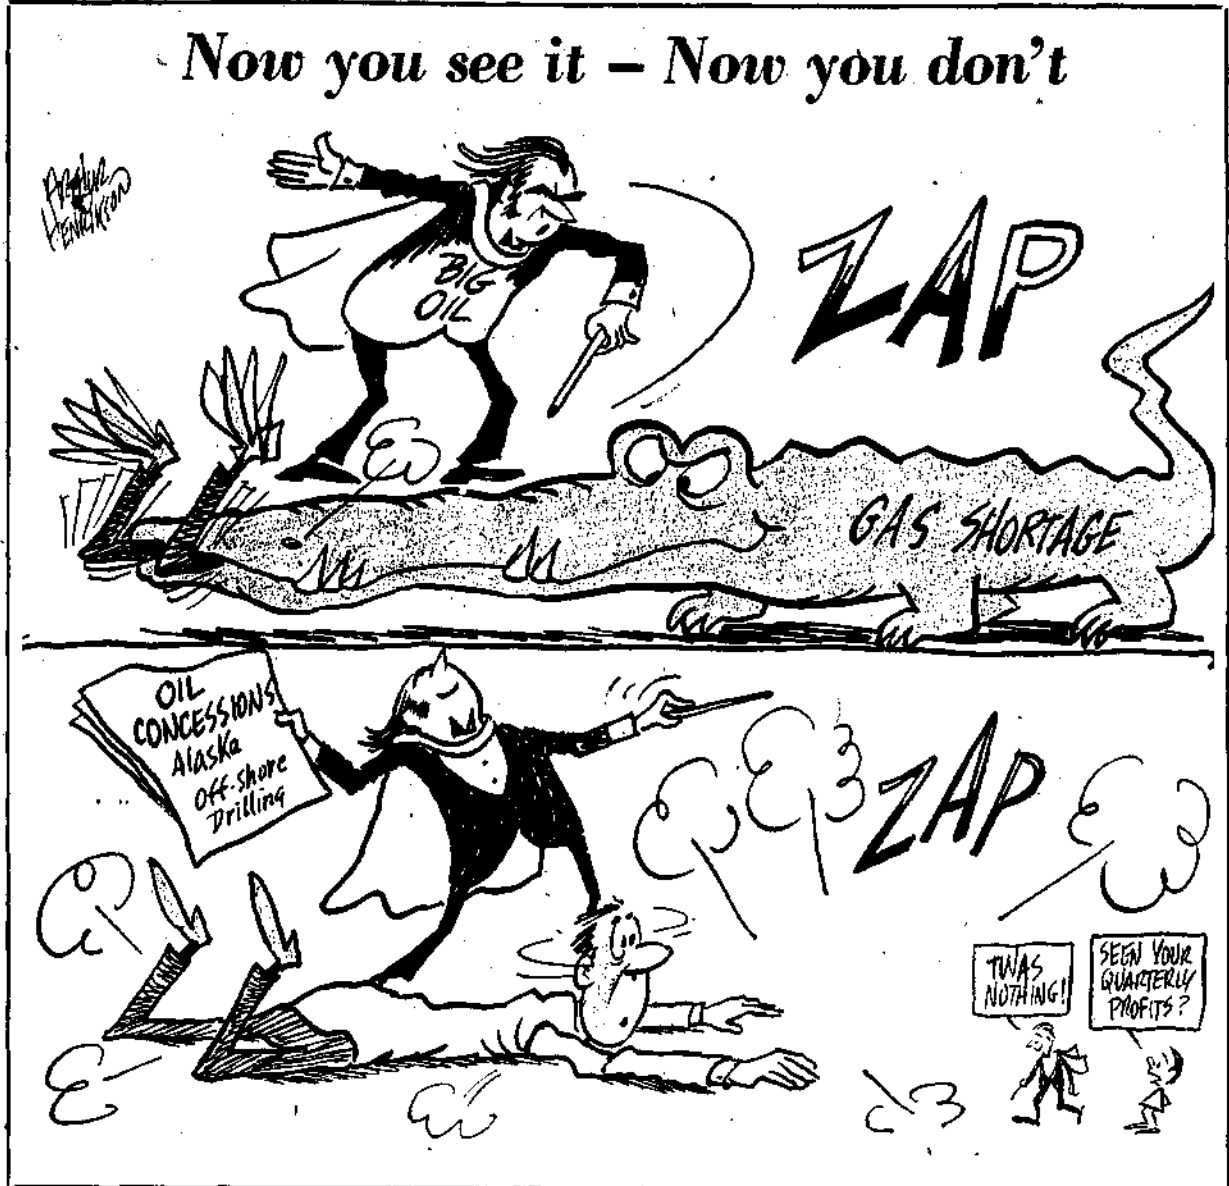

Not to be outdone, the gasoline industry has gained a little something. In fact, it has gained so many "little somethings" from the energy crisis that we continue to wonder if the energy crisis wasn't contrived for the industry's benefit.

Gasoline prices at the pump have skyrocketed. Pollution control enforcement on cars has been slowed, if not stopped. The Alaskan pipeline is under construction. Oil drilling all around the United States has increased.

In short, the oil industry gained everything it wanted while we waited in long lines at gas stations in December, January and February. All that the oil companies will suffer is the "embarrassment," as Simon puts it, of excessively high profits in coming months.

We acknowledge there is a world-wide fuel shortage, and that the development of alternative sources of energy is necessary. We don't have an everlasting oil supply under the earth, and we must find ways to conserve it.

Conservation and research is one thing, but the bloated profits of oil companies which have made a killing during the shortage is quite another. Reality during this crisis has been blurred by federal confusion and the oil industry's evasions. It's no wonder that we're suspicious and must ask the question, was this drama, as played out at our gas pumps, really necessary?

'Ogilvie moment' aids GOP

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Whenever Republican bigwigs get together these days to sing each other's praises there comes a time during the festivities that can best be described as The Ogilvie Moment.

There was such a gathering Tuesday night at the Conrad Hilton in Chicago when big names of the GOP past and present gathered to pay tribute to their candidate for Cook County sheriff, Peter Bensing.

The dais was crowded with just about every Illinois Republican you know, and a couple of dozen others, who you never heard of.

There at the head table to pay tribute to Bensing were Sen. Charles Percy, Attorney General William J. Scott, State's Attorney Bernard Carey, Cook County Chairman Floyd Full, State Comptroller George Lindberg, former Constitutional Convention President Samuel Witwer, Senate candidate George Burditt, a gaggle of Chicago aldermen, and many others too numerous to mention, let alone recognize.

So crowded was the speaker's table that such former party luminaries as past governor William G. Stratton were seated toward the back of the auditorium.

The introductions were interminable, each greeted with polite applause.

The speeches were nearly without end — Scott, Full, Carey, Lindberg. On a scale of 10, each succeeding party hero drew applause ranging from 1 to 3.

Then came The Ogilvie Moment.

The M.C. called upon the last GOP governor, and the crowd of some 1,200 tion which he seldom, if ever, enjoyed when he held the state's highest office.

Rarely does he make a public appearance at which at least one person does not express the hope that Richard Ogilvie — "the best governor this state ever had" — will seek a return to that office.

In private, Ogilvie responds to that suggestion with a wry smile and a shake of the head.

In public, he simply ignores it. But he has become the rallying point of a Republican party which is refusing to give the appearance of the wounded elephant which some had considered it to be.

It seems likely that in the coming campaign, Ogilvie will be the star performer in the key election drives of his fellow Republicans. And if his popularity endures, he might also be the lead performer in the 1976 campaign, though he insists he will not again be a candidate.

He does, however, leave the door open for some appointed post. There is talk about the chairmanship of the Regional Transportation Authority, which he helped to pass.

And it should not be overlooked that there is an open spot on the U.S. Court of Appeals, recently vacated under unfortunate circumstances by another former Illinois governor.

Peter Bensing

persons lurched to its feet almost as one person to greet him with a prolonged and enthusiastic ovation.

This is a phenomenon which greets Ogilvie at each of his public appearances these days, and it must strike him as ironic, to say the least.

Having failed to get him reelected in 1972, Illinois Republicans have since showered Ogilvie with displays of affec-

Washington window

Pat Nixon working hard

by SARA FRITZ

WASHINGTON — Despite her efforts to conceal it, Pat Nixon has been under a deep personal strain in the past year because of Watergate.

While her daughters have pursued an active campaign of speech-making, interviews and writing against the charges leveled at their father, Mrs. Nixon generally has avoided the subject. In fact, she seems to be surprised when reporters question her about it.

But when she is confronted with those questions, she fields them deftly. Her answers are quick, emphatic and expressed in such superlatives that some listeners question whether her optimism is genuine.

She talks about "how positive I feel about everything" and expressed absolute "faith in the judgment of the American people" to discern that her husband is innocent of any wrongdoing.

"The truth sustains me because I have great faith in my husband," she says. "He's an honorable, dedicated person and when you know the truth you have nothing to fear."

But until recently, Mrs. Nixon had not been asked directly to talk about the personal strain of Watergate on her.

When she was confronted with that question on her return flight from South America last month, her attitude changed.

Her face turned pale and her smile melted into a blank stare. She began to inch her way out of the airplane compartment where reporters had assembled around her.

"No," she replied, cutting the questioner short. "I really don't want to speak of it. It's a personal thing..."

At age 62, Mrs. Nixon must have anticipated that these last four years of her husband's tenure as President would be the best — the culmination of a lifetime in politics.

But Watergate has ruined that and, in a sense, has put her back on the campaign trail.

Her trip to South America, for example, was an obvious effort to focus attention away from the scandals unfolding in Washington. She and her aides made a pointed effort to thank reporters who wrote flattering stories about the trip.

Asked what she expected in the coming year, Mrs. Nixon replied, "Hard work, and loving every minute of it" — an indication that she intends to continue such efforts to bolster her husband's declining popularity. (UPI)

RISING IN OPPOSITION TO CIVIL OR POLITICAL AUTHORITY OR AGAINST AN ESTABLISHED GOVERNMENT; REBELLIOUS

Hits U.S. government

Now that Big Brother has eased up on the supply of gasoline — at least for the time being — we should take a minute for some questions and answers.

Who stopped the exploitation of our fuel supply? The Federal Government! Who shut down existing production? The Federal Government! Who blocked the Alaska pipeline, after the oil producers had spent about one billion dollars on a comprehensive study and preparation for construction? The Federal Government!

Who caused the exportation of fuel by holding down domestic prices while inflating the cost of production? The Federal Government! Who contrived the foreign policy which caused the Arabian oil embargo? The Federal Government!

Who hung that Ralph Nader emission control garbage on your automobile so it

letters to the editor

consumes twice as much gasoline? The Federal Government! Who stopped the construction of natural gas wells by freezing the wellhead price of gas while inflating the costs of production and exploration? The Federal Government!

In short, who is Public Enemy No. 1 in America today? The Federal Government!

At the risk of insulting your intelligence, dear reader, do you believe that the crafty government planners who contrived the fuel crisis did not know in advance that they were going to raise economic hell in America? We are experiencing another battle in the raging war being waged against the American people by their government. The many facets of chaos created by the fuel crisis will be used as the excuse for the imposition of more and more dictatorial power by government, ranging from rationing to possibly virtual nationalization of the energy producing industries. That, and much worse, will happen unless we the victims pull together to defeat the enemy now using the power and resources of our own government against us.

Bike check-up hit

I would like to state my feelings on the recent ruling by Buffalo Grove that bicycles have to be licensed and have lights.

As a housewife and mother of two small children, I ride my bike (which is rather an old model) around one block during daylight hours, simply for the exercise and the most time I spend out is 10 minutes. I feel that making me ride my bike to the village hall, along busy streets, to get a safety inspection is utterly ridiculous. I will never ride unless it's a sunny day, therefore I feel I do not require the unnecessary expense of lights.

I can see that people who leave their housing areas and use busy streets and highways should have properly equipped bicycles and, of course, everyone should obey traffic laws just as other vehicles, but to think that police officers should spend their time giving tickets to people like myself for not having lights, etc., on their bikes when they are simply spending a few minutes along their own streets makes me feel disgusted.

If the time and money used on this project were to be used on making Dundee and Arlington Heights Roads safer to drive along in our cars, Buffalo Grove would be a far nicer place to live.

Maureen Molitor
Buffalo Grove

Backs local trustee

In the March 18 issue of the Mount Prospect Herald, Marcia Kramer wrote a "news analysis" article on Richard Hendricks, a village trustee in Mount Prospect. The article questioned the differences in opinion between Trustee Hendricks and the other members of the village board on a variety of issues, one of them being the preservation of the Rob Roy Golf Course. I was surprised and disappointed that Miss Kramer suggested that Trustee Hendricks' motives included political gain.

On several occasions during the past few months I have had the opportunity to discuss the problems associated with this issue with Trustee Hendricks and I feel confident that his dedication to keep Rob Roy open is sincere. This article appears to be pressuring him to "go along with the rest of the board." I would urge that every board member be encouraged to seek out ways to preserve this area as hard as he has.

I am sure that Trustee Hendricks is aware of the sentiment of the residents in the Mount Prospect area and, hopefully, he will continue to represent their interests as he was elected to do. In turn, I hope the residents of Mount Prospect will contact Trustee Hendricks and the other trustees and show their encouragement of his efforts.

EDITORIAL: The Illinois Legislature should pass the Equal Rights Amendment this spring.

Candidate: 'thanks'

To the residents of Stevenson High School Dist. 125:

I want to thank all of you for electing me as one of your new board members of Stevenson High School. I will work diligently to provide a quality educational experience for all students. In canvassing over 1,400 homes during this election, I believe I sense the desires of the community and will try to express these opinions in my decision making policies at Stevenson.

Legislator will push for bus safety reforms

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — State Rep. Susan Catania, R-Chicago, Wednesday said she plans to renew her efforts to improve school bus safety standards in Illinois.

Mrs. Catania said she will amend a bill she introduced requiring installation of seatbelts in school buses. The amendment, she said, will require other changes in bus construction, including high-backed, padded seats and new mirror and lighting systems.

It also will require training and psychological testing for bus drivers and training in school bus safety for children.

"I found that seat belts can't even be used safely until we get better constructed buses with high-backed, padded seats," Mrs. Catania said. "And then I learned that the brakes, the flashing outside lights and the gas tanks, to mention just a few things, all were inadequate in most school buses."

She said it would cost school districts or bus operators about $500 to modify a bus to meet the specifications she is proposing.

However, she said, similar changes will be required in 1977 by federal law and, as long as the money will have to be spent eventually, "as the mother of four children who use school buses, I would just as soon see them made safe sooner than 1977."

Mrs. Catania's bill originally was introduced last year and, therefore, likely will be exempt from proposed House rules limiting this year's session to budget matters. It is unclear as yet, however, whether the Senate will consider non-budget bills passed by the House.

Chamber rates state legislators

by BOB LAHEY

The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce has detected what it calls a "dangerous trend" of anti-business attitudes among members of the state General Assembly.

In a study of key issues voted on in the Senate and the General Assembly, the ISCC found only a bare majority of the Senate to demonstrate what the Chamber considered a favorable attitude toward business, and less than a third of House members.

The ISCC rated 30 senators (out of 59) as favorable to business, 23 as unfavorable, and 5 "on the fence" — voting in accordance with the Chamber's position on between 40 and 60 per cent of the time.

In the House, only 58 (of 177 members) gained favorable ratings from the ISCC; 82 were ranked as unfavorable; and 33 were on the fence.

On the key votes used by the ISCC in its analysis, the organization's position was upheld in 7 of 11 votes in the Senate. But in the House, the ISCC position prevailed in only three of 13 votes.

Among Northwest suburban legislators, all five Republican senators earned favorable ratings from the Chamber. In the House, six Republican representatives were rated favorable; four were classified "on the fence"; and five — all Democrats — were rated unfavorable.

Following are the approximate scores given Northwest suburban legislators by the ISCC:

1st District: Rep. Brian B. Duff, R-Wilmette, 58 per cent; Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, 45 per cent; Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, 10 per cent; and Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, 80 per cent.

2nd District: Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, 72 per cent; Rep. Leo LaFleur, R-Bloomington, 85 per cent; Rep. Richard A. Mugallan, D-Palatine, 20 per cent; and Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, 100 per cent.

3rd District: Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, 100 per cent; Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, 70 per cent; Rep. Eugeneia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, 8 per cent; and Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, 90 per cent.

4th District: Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, 68 per cent; Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, 48 per cent; Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, 15 per cent; and Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, 85 per cent.

5th District: Rep. Richard A. Walsh, R-Oak Park, 63 per cent; Rep. Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, 50 per cent; Rep. Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, 15 per cent; and Sen. Howard Mohr, R-Forest Park, 85 per cent.

'...Throw the bastards out'

Credit Richard A. Cowen, former Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman, with the quote of the week.

Cowen, along with Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus, was appointed this week to serve on the Cook County Republican Platform Committee.

Quoth Cowen: "This committee offers a great opportunity to develop a positive and far-ranging program for candidates, to restore honesty and decency to government and to throw the bastards out."

GOP platform meeting

That platform committee will conduct two days of hearings tomorrow and Saturday at the Conrad Hilton Hotel as part of an effort to "broaden the base of the party," according to Cook County GOP chairman Floyd T. Fulle.

Among party dignitaries invited to testify are former governor Richard Ogilvie, Atty. Gen. William J. Scott and Sen. Charles H. Percy. Fulle said more than 50 civic, political and professional organizations have also been invited.

$829,000 approved; may start by late summer

State lottery on its way with Senate subcommittee's OK

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois General Assembly has begun a train of events that is expected to get the new state lottery into operation by late this summer.

A Senate appropriations subcommittee in an otherwise dull legislative session Tuesday recommended approval of an $829,000 "start-up" appropriation for the lottery. The full committee was expected to OK the money Wednesday.

State Revenue Director Robert H. Allphin, whose department is charged with administering the lottery, said he was "very pleased" with the 5-0 subcommittee vote, despite the fact that the panel cut his original request by some $57,000.

ALLPHIN wants the money so he can begin preparations for the game now.

That ground work, he said, will shorten the time between July 1 — the effective date of the lottery law passed last year — and the time the first ticket is actually sold.

Approval of the start-up money within the next few weeks, Allphin said, will mean that the lottery still can be under way by the end of the summer.

Earlier, both he and Gov. Daniel Walker bitterly criticized the lawmakers for failing to pass the appropriation during an earlier session. They charged then that a failure to approve the money would mean a loss of millions of dollars in lottery revenue, since preparations would have to be made after July 1.

Since the blast, however, Allphin has proceeded with some preparations for the game, apparently concentrating on low-cost aspects of the procedure.

IN OTHER action Tuesday, another 76 bills were introduced in the House and some 25 new measures were filed in the senate. It is unlikely, however, that any of those bills other than budget measures will be considered this session.

The Senate already has approved a procedure that sends non-budget bills to its rules committee for screening. The house rules committee was expected to put its okay on a similar rule today.

The full House reconvened Tuesday in its regular chamber for the first time since the end of the 1973 session. In the interim, workmen have completely revamped the chamber at a cost of nearly $900,000 — adding new desks, carpeting, chairs, curtains and electronic voting machinery.

They also installed a new loudspeaker system that Tuesday failed to work. The House adjourned quickly after members found they had to shout to make themselves heard.

Merlin retains the old magic

When Merlin the magician played in the bridge games at King Arthur's court, there was a special rule for him. He could not shuffle, deal or even cut the cards. This didn't keep Merlin from making some really astounding plays.

There was nothing astounding about his king of diamonds lead against three notrump. Anyone likes to lead from king-queen-jack-10.

Lancelot ducked Merlin continued the suit and Lancelot had to win. He promptly played the ace of clubs and continued with the jack.

Now Merlin went into a trance. When he came out of the trance he had figured out what to do. He went up with his king and led a heart.

This line of play was the only way to defeat the contract. It showed that Merlin had figured out exactly what Lancelot was trying to do or had seen the peerless knight's hand in his trance.

Had Merlin ducked the second club, a third club lead would have set up two tricks in dummy. Had he cashed his diamonds, Lancelot would have discarded his queen of clubs and unblocked the suit for dummy.

Little League ball for girls! Program formed nationwide

There seems to be a secret that's got the Watergate coverup beat.

Until Monday, the sports department hadn't received any information about a nationwide Little League program for girls!

Strangely enough, one local Little League president said he and men like him were informed late last year. Yet, no news releases were forthcoming from Little League headquarters in Williamsport, Pa.

Why? Possibly unconscious male chauvinism. Possibly a lack of communication. Possibly a lot of reasons.

Still, it's a fact. And, obviously, it's long overdue. Thanks to the inspiration of Cozy Collins, a 10-year-old who made both headlines and at least one television news program last weekend, this "secret" was discovered through some research.

For those of you who don't know her story, Cozy attempted to try out for a boys' team at Elmhurst. Several years before, she had asked her father, why women didn't play major league baseball.

Having two girls myself — ages 6 and 2 — made me wonder how I'd answer such a question. This was Cozy's father replied: "I told her there was no good reason, and promised her if she could learn to hit well enough, maybe she could make the majors herself someday."

Paul Logan

The outcome of Saturday's tryout made a front page headline — "You're out! League turns girl away." According to the league's (it isn't associated with the national Little League) vice president, girls don't have the fast reactions boys do. He also cited the possibility of injury, the need to obtain a doctor's advice on protective clothing and the likelihood that a special girls' league might be set up as reasons why Cozy couldn't play.

There have been court fights regarding the physical and psychological aspects of co-educational baseball. Maybe the mixture would be okay and maybe it wouldn't. The important thing is to give girls the opportunity as well as the parental approval if they show interest as youngsters.

The long wait for the establishment of a national girls' program is over. It's a positive move that obviously has been hurried along by the "umpires" in the courtroom. But the important thing is it starts this summer... hopefully here in the Herald area.

The Herald attempted to contact several presidents of baseball programs in the area, but only two were reached for comment. Arlington Heights has already begun preparations for a girls' summer league, according to Boys Baseball president Mert Taylor. Prospect Heights president Roy Swanson said his organization would be willing to help start one if there was enough interest. (See accompanying story on both towns' plans.)

According to Little League national president Dr. Creighton J. Hale, more than 50,000 girls are expected to sign up this first season.

The major difference between the girls and the boys will be 12-inch softballs instead of hardballs. The rest of the rules will be identical.

Two towns — Norridge and Elgin — have already set up charters. A Chicago chapter spokeswoman for Little League said that those were the only known ones to date.

If there's interest in a town which already has a boys' Little League charter, the same can be set up for girls. None can be established if the former doesn't already exist.

All charter members should have received notification of the new program as well as a questionnaire card. This needs to be filled out and returned to the Williamsport (Pa.) headquarters. Then a brochure on insurance and a card for a charter will be sent back.

There is still plenty of time to establish a charter, according to the spokeswoman. She said that if interested people are organized by mid-May, it would still be possible to play this summer.

The Illinois organization is hoping that there will be enough new charters to hold a state tournament. In the future, there are plans for possibly setting up a national tournament. Williamsport hosts boys teams from all over the world each year for a World Series.

It takes girls like Cozy to wake up unconscious male chauvinists like myself to the reality of such problems.

By the way, Cozy did have the chance to practice with the Pirates, who are part of the Elmhurst "farm league." She had nine hits in 10 times at bat, including three home runs!

LET'S GET TWO! St. Viator's shortstop Jim Bucaro fires to first base to complete a stylish double play against Notre Dame Tuesday. Bucaro had taken a throw from second baseman Marty Bernau in the sixth inning action. The DP helped Steve Bobowski pitch out of a jam as St. Viator defeated ND, 3-2, in the league opener. Arlington Heights group organizes softball play Arlington Heights "definitely is going ahead with a softball program" for girls, according to Mert Taylor, president of the boys baseball program.

Taylor was one of two presidents of baseball organizations contacted this week by The Herald sports department. The other was Roy Swanson, president of the Prospect Heights Little League. Other presidents could not be reached for comment.

"We sent out letters to the boys baseball participants," said Taylor, who heads up one of the largest baseball programs in the state with 162 teams and over 2,000 boys. "We told them to see if their sisters or girl friends were interested."

Close to 50 letters have been sent back so far. Because of this show of interest, one of the decisions made at Monday night's league meeting was beginning a program this summer. Taylor said he and his officers didn't know that the national Little League organization had already decided upon a girls' program. (Arlington Heights is not a charter member, so the many teams do not participate in the post season tournament.)

It was decided to hold a meeting at Pioneer Park on Saturday, starting at 11:30 a.m., so that all interested girls and their parents could attend.

"This won't be a registration as such," said Taylor. "We feel right now we have a nucleus to begin the program."

He added that the Saturday response would help the organization know just how much of a need exists. Registration will be held later this spring. If there is a large number of girls who wish to play hardball, Arlington Heights might offer that, too.

The park district had a softball program for girls last year, but it didn't meet with much success. It is hoped that the well organized way the boys' program is run will occur with the girls. However, it depends to a great extent on how the parents get behind the girls, according to Taylor.

"We would like to go to a full uniform if we could," said Taylor. The park district only offered T-shirts as uniforms. "Once we get the numbers, then we'll be able to go to the manufacturers to see if they can deliver for this summer."

For further information, call the park district at 392-0975, Monday through Friday, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Prospect Heights — the only other baseball organization reached by The Herald — doesn't have any set plans for girls as yet.

"We didn't have enough interest in our area at that time," said Prospect Heights' Swanson, referring to the new girls' program when it was originally announced. "I think we had only two requests for girls to play Little League hardball."

Prospect Heights is connected with the national organization. A team back in the 1960s made it to the state finals before losing.

Swanson said that his program caters to about 400 boys. He added that if there were any girls interested in Little League softball, they or their parents should write him at 300 Viola Lane, Prospect Heights.

All area towns who have a chartered Little League can qualify for a Little League for girls. Parents of interested daughters should contact their local president for further information.

Oakton hands Harper first Skyway setback

Harper's unblemished conference baseball record absorbed its first dent at Oakton Tuesday afternoon.

The Raiders rebounded from an opening Hawk score with runs in four straight early innings to take a 5-1 decision in the Skyway Conference clash.

It was Harper's first setback in four loop starts and lowered their overall mark for the young season to 4-2.

After getting tapped for a run in the first frame, Oakton's twirler settled down and pitched shutout ball the remainder of the way, yielding only four more hits and mixing in 11 strikeouts. His teammates, meanwhile, got to Hawk starter Bob Frantell for single runs in the second and third and then knocked him out of the box with a two-run spurt in the fourth.

Steve Perry finally turned off the Raider attack, but not before giving up a run himself in the fifth.

Mark Jesse keyed the lone Harper run production by leading off the game with a triple to deep center field. Two outs later Keith Steelman singled through the box and the guests owned a quick 1-0 lead.

After Oakton had knotted the score, coach John Elhasik's gang nearly regained the upper hand again in the third. Greg Fink reached on an error and then tried to tour the bases on Steelman's two-base clout.

Fink was cut down at the plate, however, and it was the hosts who went on to grab the lead and eventually the triumph.

Only three schools unbeaten in Mid-Suburban action

It didn't take long to trim the list of unbeaten in Mid-Suburban League baseball.

After only three afternoons of league activity, just three teams — Forest View, Fremd, and Palatine — still hold perfect records.

The Falcons, Vikings and Pirates own identical 2-0 marks after play Wednesday. Six teams stand at 1-1 overall and three have yet to win in MSL action.

KRAFT KAYOS CARDS

Randy Kraft belted out a pair of homers to account for nearly all of Fremd's scoring in a 5-2 victory over visiting Arlington.

The veteran third baseman slammed his first circuit shot in the fourth inning with a mate aboard after the Cardinals had opened a 1-0 lead one frame earlier. Two innings later with the Vikings nurturing a slim 3-2 advantage, Kraft poked out another two-run homer to put the game on ice.

It was Fremd's second conference conquest by the same score and evened Arlington's loop state at 1-1.

The Cards reached the scoreboard first when George Vukovich singled and eventually scored on Dar Townsend's pop double down the left field line. Kraft's first home run was a towering 370-foot blast two outs after Bob Burke's leadoff single.

In the top of the fifth the guests knotted things back up 2-2 on a leadoff double by John Vukovich and a sacrifice fly off the bat of Jerry DeSimone that was relayed into the dugout.

The Vikes wasted no time regaining the lead however. Pinch hitter Bill Bullard walked, advanced to third on Jeff Brisson's double and came in on a sacrifice fly by Jeff Hanisch.

And in the sixth Kraft did his thing again, this time putting it over the wall in left after Steve Dwyer had doubled.

Jeff Hanisch, with nice relief help from Jim Recher, picked up the victory. Don Kamps went the distance on the mound for Arlington and absorbed the loss.

HUGHES BROTHERS SHINE

Palatine's Hughes brothers, Rob and Buddy, combined pitching and hitting talents to clip Hersey, 4-3, in the second Mid-Suburban League contest for both teams.

Rob hurled the first six and one-third innings and limited Hersey to just four singles and Brian Nelson's booming homer before tiring in the seventh when the Huskies mounted a serious threat.

Pirate head coach Al Berman quickly summoned Buddy from his centerfield position and the senior righthander promptly fanned the next two hitters to preserve brother Rob's victory.

Buddy was also one of Palatine's hitting stars as his line drive shot in the first inning cleared the leftfield fence with teammate Jim Lubinski aboard. The Pirates made it 3-0 off Hersey lefty Tom Good in the second on Len Marchel's triple to right and Dave Bordenkircher's single.

Jim Maycan's walk and singles by Garth Chase and Marchel produced Palatine's winner in the fourth. Nelson put Hersey's first run on the board in the fifth with a drive that just sliced past the leftfield foul pole.

Hersey's final bid in the seventh knocked Rob Hughes from the box as Mark Krause walked and both Tom Good and John Caruso singled around an infield out. But Buddy came on and got one Huskie looking and the other swinging to douse the fire. Palatine is now 2-0 in the MSL and Hersey, 0-2.

LATE RALLY NIPS BISON

Forest View waited until the last minute to break open a tight game with Buffalo Grove and record their second victory of the young conference season, 5-2.

The Bison squad broke ahead early on Tony Spinelli's solo circuit blast in the opening stanza. That 1-0 lead held up until the top of the fifth when Tom Kulcar reached on a fielder's choice, stole second, advanced to third on a passed ball and eventually scored on an error.

The Falcons then jumped into a 2-1 lead in the sixth on Jim Campbell's bases empty home run to deep left field. Buffalo Grove quickly knotted things back up. In the bottom of the sixth John Arendall and Spinelli produced leadoff singles and were moved along on Dave Smithers' sacrifice bunt. Ken Corchin beat out an infielder roller after that and Arendall breezed in to tie the game at 2-2.

That set the stage for a three-run outburst by Forest View in the seventh. Ray Melnsen started it off with a single and Culkar tripped him home with the go-ahead tally.

Ken Butzen subsequently doubled home Culkar and then scored himself when Neil Schmidt's grounder was mishandled.

Don Stevens, who relieved starting View Twirler Ken Meek in the fifth, notched the winning decision. The loss was absorbed by Brad Johnson, who worked the first six frames for the hosting Grove nine.

SAXONS CLUB KNIGHTS

The Schaumburg Saxons brought out the big bats Wednesday, clubbing Prospect, 15-9, to earn their first MSL win against one loss.

Doug Olson and Frank Lipko paced the Schaumburg attack with three hits each, and Lipko and Danny Gallagher each tallied three times. The Saxons banged out 14 base hits altogether.

Dick Stephens' crew shelled Prospect's Kevin Kelley from the mound with three runs in the first and three more in the second. But the Knights fought back with three runs in the second inning and four more in the third. Prospect's Mark Hartley drove in the runs which gave his team a momentary 7-6 lead in the third frame.

But the Saxons recaptured the lead with two runs off relief pitcher George Savage in the bottom half of the third. Keith Abraham, the starting and winning pitcher for Schaumburg tied the score with a single and Gallagher drove home the go-ahead marker with a sacrifice fly.

The Saxons put the game out of reach with a six-run fourth, highlighted by Lipko's two-run single and Olson's double, good for two more RBIs.

Abraham got the win with 5-1/3 innings of work, but Ray Fairbanks mopped up in convincing fashion with an inning and two-thirds of shutout pitching.

Prospect's Savage absorbed the loss as the Knights' record fell to 1-1.

MEADOWS ERUPTS IN SEVENTH

Rolling Meadows' six-run eruption in the seventh inning lifted the Mustangs to a 9-5 victory over hosting Wheeling.

Glen Zawacki provided the most telling blow, a two-run homer to left-center, that broke a 3-3 tie. Four more runs came across before Wheeling could retire the side.

Following a walk to Tom Baugh and a single to Joe Riplinger, Dan Jordan placed a perfect squeeze bunt that went for a run-scoring single.

Mike Saugling, who was the starting and winning pitcher, walked to lead the bases. Bruce Hanson lofted a deep sacrifice fly that was dropped, allowing two more Mustangs to score. A Steve Breit-hill sacrifice fly scored the final run.

Wheeling scored twice in the bottom of the inning before losing. Both teams are 1-1 in the league.

Meadows jumped on starter and loser Gary Wennerstrom in the fifth for two runs, these coming on a bases-loaded single by Dave Thorstensen.

Wheeling came right back on a three-run homer by Al Newman, his second of the season. However, Saugling singled to tie the score in the sixth.

George Kaage led both teams with a 3-for-3 performance, including an RBI single in the seventh off Thorstensen. The latter relieved Saugling in the final inning.

PAHL DECIDES ISSUE

John Pahl blasted a long home run to lead off the bottom of the eighth inning to give Elk Grove its first Mid-Suburban League baseball victory, 5-4, in extra innings over visiting Conant Wednesday.

Pahl's shot to almost straightaway center field came off Conant's second pitcher, lefty Tim Dern, who had returned starter Bill Anderson in the sixth. The winning hurler for the Grenadiers was pint-sized Steve Kliff, who retired all four Cougars he faced in a fireman's role.

Conant, now 0-2 in the MSL, got three of its runs on a line drive homer over the left field fence by Gary Osance in the fifth. The roundtripper, which followed a pair of walks and a single by Dave Mills, came on a three-to fastball from Gren starter Rick Eckardt.

Osance's blow gave the Cougars a temporary 4-2 lead, but Elk Grove catcher Larry Laspias hammered an opposite field home run with a man aboard in the bottom of the fifth to knot the score.

Kliff, the tiny righthander, came on in the seventh with the bags jammed and two out. Using an assortment of off-speed curves, he whiffed Conant pinch hitter Mark Pellegrino.

Three Cougars were retired in order by Kliff in the top of the eighth before Pahl broke up the ball game with his four-base wallop.

Demons 3-0 in duels; West tops Maine South

Maine West and East were varsity track winners Tuesday afternoon as West's Warriors beat Maine South, 83-59, and East's Demons beat Glenbrook South, 32-60. It was the second dual meet win for West. East is 3-0 on the young season.

The Warriors swept all three places in 330-yard hurdles, long jump and shot put against Maine South. Bill Klippert (42.6), Joe Farrell (43.1) and Fred Rogers (44.0) got the act started in hurdles.

Long jumpers Dave Braun (18-8), Joe Parsons (18-6) and Mark Siska (17-10) swept as did shot putters Jeff Klester (48-6), Rich Plucienik (44-6) and Jerry Ford (41-0).

There was excellent competition although some running events were hampered by three lanes full of water on the Maine South track. Nevertheless, South ran a 48.2 440-yard relay to nip West by one-half second.

The winners for South were Mark Selbergren, Bill Grupp, Tom Ruggeri and Brian Murphy. Maine West used Klippert, Kevin Skahan, Steve Jacobsen and Rudy Martinez.

Maine South managed to sweep one event, taking all pole vault points behind Murphy (13-0), Battersby (12-0) and Ruggeri (11-6).

Maine West clocked 3:45.1 for an apparent win in the mile relay but disqualification gave first place points to South which ran 3:50.4.

The Warriors had two or more placers in 11-of-14 events, excluding the quarter-mile, half-mile and mile relays. Other winners for West were Greg Klebe in the half-mile run (2:03.5) and 440-dash (53.6), Klippert in 120 high hurdles (15.6), Joe Paul in the mile (4:44.2), Braun in triple jump (40-4), Plucienik in discus (131-9) and Mike Klebe in high jump (5-10).

Maine East had little trouble disposing of Glenbrook South. Two events were not contested — long jump and triple jump — because spring vacations have cut down the squads.

The Demons received their usual fine performances from relaymen Mike Kallal, Scott Peota, Brian Nathanson and Sem Rea. That group won the quarter-mile in 45.8 seconds, half-mile in 1:34.8 and mile in 3:34.3.

East swept the two-mile run behind Mike Biel (10:01), Dave Jenkins (10:02) and Mike McDonald (10:42). Tim Ganos (4:36.7), Lloyd Spitzer (4:40.7) and Chuck Zoke (4:55.1) gave East all possible points in the mile run.

Aside from their relay efforts, Kallal won the 220-yard dash (22.9) and Peota claimed top honors in the 330-yard hurdles (41.0). Other winners for Maine were John Hinterhauser in the half-mile run (2:02.9) and Rocky Reed in high jump (6-4).

Fremd takes point from powerful Arlington entry

by PAUL LOGAN
Tennis Editor

A first for a Dist. 211 school, a surprisingly easy victory for a Dist. 214 school and a first conference win ever highlighted a heavy day of action for Mid-Suburban League varsity tennis teams Tuesday.

AT ARLINGTON

Fremd, playing at the Arlington-hosted dual meet also involving Elk Grove and Conant, managed to win one match against the perennial powerhouse Cardinals. It came at third singles where Mike Lincoln defeated Cary Howes 6-2, 6-3. No other Dist. 211 team had ever escaped a 3-0 shutout against Arlington.

Despite the minor upset, which was helped along somewhat by Howes' hurt ankle, the Cardinals defeated all three opponents to keep its all-time varsity record intact. They posted their 71st, 72nd and 73rd dual meet victories without a loss.

Fremd defeated both Elk Grove and Conant with Conant handling the Grove.

AT HERSEY

The big shocker as far as a dual meet victory was concerned came at Hersey. The hosting Huskies handled Prospect, 3-2. And, according to Huskie coach Lohr, it very easily could have been 4-1 if his second doubles team would have been able to do better than just win its opening set.

Hersey also beat Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

Buffalo Grove notched its first success in MSL action by besting Wheeling. Prospect beat both the Grove and Wheeling.

Hawk netmen stifle Lancers

The Harper Junior College tennis team climbed over the .500 plateau with a resounding 7-0 blanking of Lake County on the Harper courts Wednesday.

The sweep boosted coach Roy Kearns' Hawk record to 3-2 with a heavy schedule waiting during the remainder of the week.

John McGowan had the most trouble disposing of his opponent, but Lake County's George Charts finally yielded the fourth Harper point, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

In doubles play, Rud and Clark Manders teamed to clip Nycz and Kaupilla, 6-2, 6-2 and Curtis Anderson and Jim Richter combined to stop Charts and Ed Anderson, 6-1, 6-0. Harper's third doubles duo of Randy Graff and Les Holland picked up the final point via a forfeit by Lake County.

Harper will face Elgin today and the University of Chicago on Friday before partaking in the four-team Joliet Invitational Saturday.

TAPE-BREAKER. Bill Jarocki of Northwestern University, who was a track star at Fremd High School, crosses the finish line with a superb 4:08 mile Saturday in the Wildcats' triangular with Illinois State and Northern Illinois. This was Jarocki's best mile time since being switched from the 880 where he was a prep standout, placing second in Illinois in 1971.

Fremd trackmen win; Cougars top Falcons

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

It was as if the Fremd track squad had been in mourning. For a week and a half, anyway.

Since Pat Brogan's Vikings were edged out by Hersey for the Mid-Suburban League indoor title two Fridays ago, they had maintained a careful distance from the track and field wars. The Vikes were busy licking their wounds and preparing for the outdoor season.

Tuesday, Brogan's boys showed that they haven't forgotten how things were done out on the track when they came out of hiding against Schaumburg and host Rolling Meadows.

By taking first place in nine events and capturing five second spots, the Vikings rounded up 79 points, good enough to nip Schaumburg, who had 76 points. Rolling Meadows managed 29.

Leading the Fremd onslaught were Dave Wickum, Steve Whited, and Jeff Overton. Wickum took first in the 440-yard dash (:52.3) and the 220 (:23.9), and Whited won both the 120-yard high hurdles (:15.8) and the 330-yard lows (:43.0). Overton notched a win in the long jump (19-11) and he was runnerup in the 100-yard dash (:10.8) and the 440 (:52.6).

Mike Rohrer ran the mile in 4:37, one of the better times in the league so far, and his Fremd teammate Chuck Ruppenthal won the two-mile run in 9:52.5.

Ed Martin paced the Saxons' second place finish with victories in the 100 (:10.8) and the triple jump. Martin's triple jump effort of 41-1 ranks as the second-best in the area.

Schaumburg's Mark Hoerich ran a 2:01.8 in the 880-yard run and the Saxons' Bruce Mahlig won the pole vault with a 13-6.

Rolling Meadows got its only win on a 53-9 shot put effort from John Sloan.

DESPITE LOSING nine of 17 events, Conant defeated Forest View, 75-64, Tuesday. Taking advantage of its depth, the Cougars of coach Ron Gummerson notched nine second places and just held on to the win while dropping three of the last four events.

Conant's only double winner was Bill

Fasig, who led the Cougars to a sweep in both the long jump and the triple jump. Doug Paape was second for Conant in both events.

Len Olson won the 100-yard dash in :10.6 for Gummerson's team and Jeff Brandt took the 120-yard high hurdles in :15.3. Scott Clark pole vaulted 13 feet for a first place and John Bond was tops for the Cougars with a 4:41.8 mile.

The Falcons turned in some impressive marks in a losing cause. Craig Brinkman heaved the shot 53-5 and he flung the discus 140-1, the best toss in the MSL this season. Forest View's other two-time winner, sophomore Steve Schellenberger, ran a 2:05.9 in the 880 and he clocked a superb :23.3 for the 220-yard dash.

The Falcons ran an excellent mile relay in 3:32.5. Coach Bill Mohrmann's boys also clicked in the 880-yard relay with a time of 1:36.9.

HERSEY CAME back from Evanston Tuesday night with six first place finishes and a handful of seconds and thirds, but the Huskies lost to the powerful Wildcats, 85-54.

Coach Larry Travis' distance runners claimed a pair of victories as Jay McCarthy won the two-mile in 9:48.5 and Ron Stephani ran the mile in a fine 4:37.7. Chris Cooney was just beaten at the wire by a tenth of a second in the 880. Evanston's Dave Jackson nipped Cooney with a 1:58.1.

Hersey's Steve Zielke won the discus with a creditable mark of 136-5, Craig Musser took the 330-yard low hurdles (:42.0), and the Huskie mile relay team captured first in 3:35.6 when Evanston dropped the baton.

The Huskies' most versatile athlete, Jim DiLenge, won the 220-yard dash in a good effort, :23.6, although the Wildcats' outstanding sprinter, Joe Stewart, pulled up lame in the race. Stewart earlier was victorious in the 100 at :10.1.

Nat Page, Evanston's Mr. Do-All, high jumped 6-2, triple jumped 41-91/2 and ran the 120-yard highs in :15.3, good for three individual wins.

River Trails plans 'International Night'

Tennis may not be quite ready to threaten soccer as the most international of sports, but the dozen countries represented in River Trails Tennis Center's first annual "International Night" doubles competition dramatize its widespread appeal.

Date for the one-night multi-flight round-robin tournament at the Mount Prospect facility is Friday, April 28. All entrants must be foreign born.

Expected to participate are Pat Freebody of Chicago, a top-ranking Chicago District woman player and former junior champion of Queensland (Australia); Klaus Paul of Schaumburg, former German provincial star; Vera Wombwell of Chicago and England, one of the Midwest's top senior women; Robby Weiss, the budding 11-year-old star from Schaumburg who was born in Canada, and Nelson Chengappa of Wheeling, who was a professional in Massachusetts after emigrating from India.

Other countries likely to be represented are the Ukraine, Latvia, Estonia, Poland, Spain, China, Pakistan, Scotland and Antigua.

Officials see the friendly strife of a low-key tournament as a vehicle of understanding.

"Sport breaks down lots of barriers," observed tourney chairmen Nelson Campbell and Ann Workman.

Des Plaines announces Tuesday night golfing

All men golfers interested in playing a Tuesday night schedule at the Des Plaines Park District's par three course should make arrangements at Lake Park no later than Tuesday, May 14. Telephone 824-7930. League play will begin on Tuesday, May 21. Tee-off time each evening will be 5 p.m. Scores will be handicapped.

Des Plaines 4A tryouts

Des Plaines boys who are 13, 14 or 15 years old may try out for 4A baseball at 1 p.m. this Saturday at either South or West Parks. In case of rain, tryouts will be postponed until Sunday. For additional information, contact the Des Plaines Park District at 827-7930.

SCOTT MIELKE ISN'T catching a few winks on the crossbar, he's clearing the high jump at 6-0. The Schaumburg trackman employed the backward roll for a third place in the Mid-Suburban League indoor meet. Mielke and his Saxon teammates resume outdoor action Thursday at Prospect.

Diamond deficits too big to overcome

Rough afternoon for East, North

A pair of defeats were written Tuesday afternoon when neither Maine East nor Maine North could overcome big deficits and lost in varsity baseball.

East was completely out of it, trailing 9-0 after three innings, before taking a 10-6 loss against Glenbrook South. North was down 6-1 after the visitors' fifth, then rallied for three runs but still lost, 7-4, to Glenbrook North.

Four hits each inning gave Glenbrook South five runs in the first and four more two innings later as the Titans ensured Maine East's third loss against two wins.

The losing pitcher was Bob Guilberg, now 1-2, who worked two innings on a yield of eight runs, six hits and three walks while striking out one. He was replaced during the third by Mark Elatkin, first of four relief pitchers.

Elatkin worked just one inning before Jeff Vukovich gave Glenbrook South its final run during his two-inning stint. Dave Scher started the sixth, loaded the bases while recording no outs, and was replaced by Mitch Glickman.

It was already 10-0 for the Titans before East utilized Mike Donatucci's run-batted-in single for a meaningless run in the fifth. He knocked home Charley Sellergren who had singled, moved to second on a fielders choice and stolen third.

The Demons made some noise with a five-run sixth off singles by Jim D'Antonio, Rob Costorno, Bob Faez, Craig Christell, Donatucci, Jeff Bergquist and Steve Stein.

Meanwhile, Glenbrook North used a four-run fifth inning, fashioned on three singles, one double and one error, to stop any threat of being caught by Maine North.

It was a two-man pitching duel all the way. Tom Budz gave seven hits, struck out two batters and walked two while losing for Maine. Ted Govedarica gave nine hits, struck out five and walked three for the GEN Spartans.

Glenbrook had a 2-0 lead after the visitors' third on two singles and Govedarica's double. Maine had a solid opportunity to take command in the home at-bat, but could produce just one run and that hurt.

The inning began optimistically when Govedarica walked Budz and Dennis Tando. Kevin Patten's infield hit loaded the bases. When Dave Lenderman hit a sacrifice fly, it was 2-1. Bob Kelley walked to reload the bags but Gary Ruske lined hard into an inning ending double play.

Scott Mohr and Budz singled in the fourth for Maine, now 0-4 on the year, but North couldn't push across a run.

After Glenbrook went ahead, 6-1, the Norsemen had their own big fifth, scoring three runs. Patten singled and scored on Lenderman's double. Ruske singled Lenderman home, then scored when the ball was misplayed in left field for a three-base error.

Glenbrook added its final run in the visitors' sixth. Patten had three hits for Maine North.

West, East beaten in tennis

Maine West unexpectedly lost to end a four-meet winning streak and Maine East was swamped Tuesday afternoon in varsity tennis.

Rick Petrucci at third singles plus the first doubles team of Jim Wittbold and Steve Niles gave West its only points during a 3-2 loss to Glenbrook North. East took a 5-0 drubbing from Niles North.

It took three sets before Petrucci could beat Glenbrook's Marty Herman, 2-6, 6-2 and 6-2. Wittbold and Niles defeated Keith Eiringer and Kent Huguette, 6-2 and 6-4.

But their teammates didn't fare as well. Jeff Trecker and Frank Lux were beaten at first and second singles. They were switched in the line-up by coach Roger King after Lux had played to a 1-5 record at first singles. Ed Addleman and Steve Semler were beaten at second doubles.

Tim Brosnan, Dave Mozdren and Bob Kosberg lost singles matches for East against Niles North. The doubles teams of Kent Silbert and John Azoo plus Dave Marder and Ken Saw were also beaten.

West's season record dropped to 4-2. East came away seeking its first win of the year after three defeats.

East loses two in varsity golf

Maine East's varsity golfers walked Broderick with a 36. His teammates who scored were Wadden 38, Nelson 40 and Frank 42. Highland Park employed Cohen 39, Emer 41, Franks 42 and Meanick 42.

Scoring for the Demons, now 0-2 in dual meet play, were Paul Aschacher 41, Chuck Stone 42, Brad Kroll 43 and Tom Drozd 44.

Meet medalist was Glenbrook South's

Devon-Higgins tryouts Saturday, Sunday

Tryout sessions for youngsters seeking berths on teams in the Little League and Babe Ruth divisions of the Devon-Higgins Baseball League get underway this weekend.

Little League candidates should report to Seminole Park, located in the south-east section of Des Plaines, Saturday and Sunday, April 20-21, starting at 10:30 each morning. Boys ages nine through 12 are eligible, and need to bring only a baseball glove.

Boys hoping to earn spots on Babe

Ruth team rosters should report Saturday at 1 p.m. to Margaret Lange Memorial Park in Rosemont. Tryouts also will be held the following Saturday at the same time. Boys ages 13 through 15 are invited from Des Plaines and Rosemont.

Drafting of players for the 10 Little League and four Babe Ruth teams will be held shortly after completion of tryouts, and boys selected will be notified as soon as possible.

Opening day for Little League is May 11 and May 26 for Babe Ruth.

Collecting coins by Mort Reed

Half-cent value increasing rapidly

The last and lowest denomination provided for by Congress in the Coinage Act of April 2, 1792, was the half-cent. By law it was to be in exact proportion to the one-cent coin in both weight and in value, but it was only a 3/16-inch smaller in diameter than the large cent, which made it excessively bulky to carry around as pocket change.

Although the half-cent is probably one of the most difficult to assemble in a consecutive series without considerable investment, it is not one of the more popular issues among coin collectors. Investors, however, find it to be one of the most desirable of the minor denominations.

Not recognized as legal tender, the half-cent denomination was discontinued by the Coinage Act of Feb. 21, 1857. Yet during its 64-year tenure, five specific types produced more varieties than any other coin in the history of American currency. As a matter of fact, it is impossible to assemble a consecutive series without including one or more specimens of noticeable errors in the set.

This is not intended as a put down of the lowly half-cent as a collectible coin. Quite the contrary — it is possible to put together a type set of the five designs with an appreciable market value in almost any condition.

THE PROFILE section of my latest book, "COINS: An Investors and Collectors Guide," illustrates the obverse and reverse of each half-cent and identifies it by its legal name and encyclopedia number. It also describes the market performance of each issue over a 20-year period.

For example: Of the Type I minted in 1793, 31,039 pieces were issued. Because of its unique position in the half-cent denomination, the Type I is a must for any type set or consecutive series.

It is collectible in seven conditions ranging from fair to uncirculated with most pricing guides and catalogs listing the most desirable condition available as very fine.

In fine condition the obverse design detail should be legible and the center vertical area worn. The reverse inscription must be discernible, with leaves in the wreath clear but worn flat.

A 20-year estimated-value profile of the 1793 half-cent in fine condition shows a market value in 1952 of $30 to $35. By 1962, it was $150 to $165, and in 1972, the value range was from $600 to $675. Today this coin will command close to $800 in the condition described above.

BY 1836 there was an abundance of half-cents flooding the market and coinage was suspended until 1849. However, dies were cut in consecutive series for the years 1840 to 1849 and proofs struck from each. During the same period, restrikes also were made in proof condition but none were issued for general circulation until late 1849.

The 20-year estimated-value profile shows an 1840 to 1849 proof original to be valued at $80 to $100 in 1952; $150 to $195.50 in 1962 and $500 to $700 in 1972. Today's value can be placed at around $800 in proof condition.

AN 1853 specimen of the Type V was worth $4 to $6.20 in 1952; $12 to $20 in 1962 and $60 to $68.05 in 1972. Today this piece will bring upwards of $100 in uncirculated condition.

A word of caution. Should you have a specimen of a half-cent regardless of the date, do not attempt to clean it. To do so may reduce its condition far below a redeemable value. Leave cleaning for the experts. Secondly, make sure the date has not been altered to bring it into a higher-priced category. This is fairly easy to do with soft copper coins.

8-cent issue to honor Winnipeg incorporation

The Canada Post Office will issue an 8-cent stamp May 3 commemorating the centennial of Winnipeg's incorporation as a city.

Designed by Jack R. MacDonald of Winnipeg, the new stamp portrays the corner of Winnipeg's Portage Avenue and Main Street as it was in 1872. It was at this intersection, the junction of two important Red River trails, that the city which later was to become Manitoba's capital, was born.

Winnipeg today has a population of 530,000 and is the seat of garment, transportation, food processing and agriculturally related industries.

For this issue the Canada Post Office has declared Winnipeg the site for official first-day cancellations. Customers are requested to send their own covers to Ottawa where stamps will be affixed and the money processed. The covers then will be shipped in bulk to Winnipeg for canceling and returned to collectors from that point.

A total of 27,000,000 stamps is being printed in four-color lithography, plus embossing, by Ashton-Potter Ltd. of Toronto. Marginal inscriptions, including the designer's name, appear in the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The total production will bear general (Ottawa) tagging.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada, K1A 0B6, enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed plus a 15-cent service fee for each cover to be affixed with less than 50 cents postage. Your remittance must be in Canadian funds.

IN 1973, the Canada Post Office issued 22 commemorative and special issue postage stamps reflecting Canada's cultural heritage and history.

A 1973 Souvenir Collection, including all 22 stamps (face value $2.13) and a detailed description of each, is now available from the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A 0B6 for $2.50.

commemorating each day of COMPEX 1974 (Combined Philatelic Exhibition of Chicagoland), will be held May 24-26 at the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago.

The first day portrays Great Britain's Universal Postal Union stamp as the center of the cachet. This stamp will be in its original color showing the logo of the UPU.

The second day portrays the 15-cent U.S. airmail stamp showing Montgomery Blair, father of the UPU.

The third day in the series of cachets, portrays a 1924 German stamp, issued for the 50th Anniversary of the UPU, with the portrait of Dr. Heinrich von Stephan.

An all-over pattern of the various signatures to the Berne Treaty of 1874 will cover the balance of the envelope in an artistic motif and color.

The cachets are 35 cents each or $1 per set of three postpaid from COMPEX '74, 216 LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, Ill. 60602.

Extra rib can be a problem, but you can live with it

My son was in the Air Force in Vietnam for approximately one year. At the end of this time he became sick and was sent to a hospital in Japan. He had some kind of infection in the lymph glands which was cleared up, but the main problem was with his left arm which kept going to sleep when held in a certain position. After many, many tests it was diagnosed as "Thoracic Outlet Syndrome." He was sent back to the States to a medical center where he went all through the same tests again.

He was told there that his top rib was very high and a vein was being pinched between his collarbone and top rib, interfering with the circulation. One doctor told him he should have it removed (the top rib), and another told him it was something he could live with and he was sent back to duty. He is now in the National Guard.

This condition still bothers him, and I think he is worried that he has something more than he was told. I would really appreciate your opinion on this matter.

It sounds to me as if your son has had some pretty smart doctors. Your description of the problem is a fairly typical one. Sometimes a person has an extra rib, off the last neck vertebrae (a cervical rib) that acts this way. Soldiers were noted to have this problem when carrying a backpack. The straps around the shoulders to the pack would pull the shoulders back under the weight of the pack. This would pull the collarbone back compressing the arteries and sometimes the veins and nerves in this area.

Another way this can happen is for certain muscles in the neck to be pulled taut over an artery or nerve and cause problems in the arm. Some people have obstructive compression from muscles or tendons in the arm. The only way to define the problem and what is causing the obstruction is by careful examinations.

When the symptoms are marked or there are problems in the function of the

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

hand or arm, the obstruction can be relieved. This eliminates the problem. If the obstruction is not severe and the symptoms are not all that troublesome, then one can ignore the problem without surgery. Incidentally, the surgery isn't all that difficult or dangerous. It is a fairly simple procedure.

I'm inclined to think, from the complete description you have made and what your son has been told, that neither he nor you have anything to worry about. I'm confident he has been told a fairly complete story regarding his health.

I read your piece about the man who used electricity to cure arthritis, and you said it was no good. I just wondered about using heating pads. I have done that often.

That's a horse of a different color. Heat, if used properly, will help to relax the muscles and prevent muscle spasm. It is very useful. It will not cure arthritis, but with a sore joint from osteoarthritis (the wear and tear kind) it can help give you relief. Some of the soreness in wear and tear arthritis is from associated muscle soreness. Of course, you should take sensible precautions and not burn yourself.

The search for mental health

Psychoanalysis: a long-term and expensive process

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Webster's dictionary defines psychoanalysis as "a method of analysis especially for therapeutic purposes based on the theory that abnormal mental reactions are due to repression of desires consciously rejected but subconsciously persistent."

Sigmund Freud, the father of psychoanalysis, meant by it a theory of personality and development with some therapeutic applications, according to

Kafka feels it is a theory of development plus a theory and technique of psychotherapy.

KAFKA, clinical professor of psychiatry at George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C., and consultant to the National Institute of Mental Health, sees psychoanalysis as having certain distinct characteristics as a therapeutic technique.

"It takes a fairly long time, the patient is seen intensively and frequently, as many as four to five times a week, and he is asked to talk about whatever comes to his mind," he said.

"It's my belief that this modality of treatment permits the deepest, greatest, most thorough understanding of oneself and allows the possibility of the greatest change in one's personality.

"It's a long term and expensive process, though," admits Kafka. "Also, a person's work must allow him to be available for his frequent, mostly daytime sessions. Psychoanalysis, therefore, is available to only a small group of individuals at present."

"In my opinion, the concentration of psychoanalysis on the individual, ignoring other therapies such as group and family, has many problems and drawbacks. At the same time, this individual work represents its greatest strength."

Some of its major contributions have come from this opportunity to study and work intensively with one individual at a time for a long time.

KAFKA believes psychoanalysis has a great influence on psychiatry and psychotherapy generally and believes that some psychoanalytic theories are applied in many different forms of therapy.

"Psychoanalysis is a very powerful research tool and its findings about personality development and psychic organization have a large application in other forms of treatment. Many analysts, in fact, do other therapies in conjunction with analysis in their treatment of patients."

Training sessions for all salespeople at F-B-K are conducted by Richard Reimann, executive vice president. Reimann, a G.R.I., with more than 13 years experience in the real estate field, oversees the three F-B-K offices and recruits and trains personnel.

Jack V. Keller, left, president of the firm, and Richard G. Reimann, executive vice-president, view their goal as being the "personal Realtors®" of their clients.

A proud reputation continues to be the byword of F-B-K Inc., Realtors®. Built on honesty, integrity and fairness, their strength and success continues to grow with each passing year. The company's concern for quality and satisfactory service for their clients is of utmost importance, rather than quantity of offices or personnel. The results are proven by the continuous repeat business and referrals by families F-B-K have served.

The first step in creating a successful real estate firm is by obtaining personable, well-mannered and understanding personnel. Training and educating their individuals in all the correct methods of real estate matters is the basis of a professional. Continual education makes that salesperson better informed to serve his clients satisfactorily. F-B-K continues to improve their quality of personnel as well as the services they render their clients.

F-B-K Inc., Realtors® is more than a real estate broker. Adherence to a strict code of ethics benefits both buyers and sellers. F-B-K, being a Realtor® is active on local, state and national committees. Keeping abreast of all matters affecting homeownership is a responsibility and a necessity.

F-B-K recommends the public be aware of the difference between Realtor® and real estate broker. Only a Realtor® may use the new trademark as displayed below. The Graduate Realtor® Institute, sales seminars, monthly periodicals and training films are all part of Realtors® continuous program to make sales personnel more proficient.

Additional steps necessary for success in real estate is to offer clients clean, modern and efficient offices — offices that make a client comfortable and equipped to answer all his needs.

F-B-K Inc., prides itself as being a family's "personal Realtor®." Just as a family has its own doctor, dentist or attorney, many have considered F-B-K Inc., their Realtor®. Whether buying or selling locally or nationwide F-B-K has the facilities to assist everyone on a moment's notice. As a member of Homeowners Relocation Service of America, F-B-K has located homes in various parts of the United States for transferred families. Giving that personal attention, plus professionalism, adds up to success.

The week of April 21 is designated as National Realtors® Week. Throughout the country Realtors® will be promoting the importance of real estate. This year's slogan is "A Voice for America's Property Owner."

When the real estate property owners talk, Realtors® listen. They do something about what they hear. Realtors® are speaking out in Washington and in state and local governments to help ease property taxes, mortgage money problems and more.

F-B-K Inc., sales personnel includes associates that are brokers, Lifetime Million Dollar Club members, Graduates of Realtors® Institute and directors of local, state and national Realtors® associations. Many are active in local civic and social organizations having friends throughout the northwest suburbs.

Baird & Warner official says pets make bad tenants

Don't let your apartment house or condominium go to the dogs or the cats, either.

That's the advice of William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird & Warner, Inc., and he means it literally.

Sally has no fear of being assaulted by pet owners. In fact, he likes pets as well as the next man.

"It's simply that rental and condominium apartments are for people, not pets," he said. "We believe in enforcing the 'no pets' rule to the letter because we know it's better for tenants, the building itself, the neighborhood — and the dogs and cats."

Buildings that permit pets usually can expect higher maintenance costs because of the damage caused by the animals; tenant and neighbor squabbles over the nuisances that pets create, and unhappy pets, too, he said.

"The owner of a pet always believes that his animal is no problem," Sally says. "It's always the tenant on the other floor or down the hall whose dog or cat is the nuisance. The only fair way to deal with the pet situation is to enforce the rules banning them."

From a management standpoint, one of the major headaches pets cause is damage to elevators, halls, lobbies and grounds. Some otherwise refined tenants permit their pets to urinate or defecate in these areas. Pet urine can kill shrubs, evergreens and grass.

"The often permanent damage these nuisances create has to be paid for out of the building maintenance fund," Sally says. "If the nuisance continues and is extensive, rents or assessments have to be raised to cover depletions of maintenance funds. The alternative is to let the building and grounds run down."

Dogs and cats have been known to cause extensive damage in apartments, too, especially when left alone. It's not unusual for a pet to try to gnaw and scratch at doors and walls. Tenants must pay for such damage or have the amount deducted from security deposits.

What's more, said Sally, pets make life difficult for other tenants.

"Some pet owners don't know because their neighbors are reluctant to criticize them that their pets cry from loneliness during the day. They see the pets only when they're quiet and docile."

"But the neighbor who is home all day listening to a cooped-up animal howl has a legitimate grievance and often one the building manager must cope with."

Then there's the dog which barks incessantly at the slightest sound even when it's not alone, such as early in the morning when it hears the paperboy or milkman in the hall, thereby awakening all the neighbors.

There are other problems, too, for tenants.

"Some building lobbies are filled with pets chasing each other in absolute chaos because everyone arrives home at the same time and decides to take Rover out for a walk. Often the first thing they do on arriving back at the lobby is to unleash the dog. Then the fun begins."

"For the tenant who doesn't have a pet, this is enough to drive him out, especially if he's occasionally cornered by a dog which may look hungry for some human flesh."

Some tenants will walk their pets late at night, propping open the rear door so they can get back in easily. While this may seem convenient for the dog-walker, it's a serious breach of security which threatens every other person in the building.

And speaking of security, Sally doesn't accept the argument that dogs are needed for protection of apartment tenants. Too many so-called guard dogs have been put out of commission by drugged hamburger or distracted by a female in heat, he notes.

Another danger to tenants is that pets can carry diseases, including rabies, salmonella, leptospirosis and visceral larva migrans, which can be transmitted to human beings. The diseases sometimes can be fatal.

There's neighborhood pollution, too, Sally pointed out.

"The average dog produces a half pound of droppings per day. This not only makes the streets of the neighborhood unpleasant but adds to the load on the city's storm sewer system. It's been estimated that 1,250 pounds of dog droppings are deposited on Chicago lawns and sidewalks every day."

Then there's the problem of animal bites.

"One out of every 25 hospital admissions involves a dog bite," said Sally, "and about 50 out of every 10,000 city dwellers are bitten by dogs in the course of a year."

"And, as if we weren't having problems enough with mail service, 6 per cent of all mailmen are bitten every year."

Bites are just a part of the overall problem of dealing with the growing numbers of dogs, cats and other animals being let loose in suburban fields and forest preserves to fend for themselves. Many are abandoned by apartment dwellers once the animal becomes a nuisance, hard to take care of and expensive to feed. Some of these animals quickly die; others run wild, posing a problem for police and humane societies.

But in all of this, said Sally, the pet is not so much the villain of the piece as its victim.

"Basically, it's unfair to keep an animal cooped up in an apartment when it should be free to run unhindered. Dogs and cats are healthiest and at their best in rural and semi-rural environments. Putting them in the concrete canyon of a city is downright cruelty."

"We really feel we're doing our part by enforcing the no pets rule in every building we manage. Apartments, we believe, are for people to live in with comfort — and that means no pets."

Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan drops interest rates on home loans

Applications for more than $2-million in home mortgages have been filed at Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association of Berwyn during the first two days of its reduced 7.77% interest rate.

Last week the savings and loan association announced its "Triple Seven" plan along with the availability of $10-million in funds for prime home loans.

After a nine-month virtual freeze in home lending throughout the Chicago region, Lincoln Federal declared it was paring its 7.9% rate to 7.77% for up to 30 year 80% mortgages and was dropping its 25-year loan service charge, which includes credit report, to 2%. On 28 to 30 year loans this charge has been reduced to 2 1/2%. In both categories a half per cent reduction is reflected.

Eliminated in Lincoln Federal's normal lending area has been its mortgage appraisal fee. Generally, beyond 35 miles from its offices, Lincoln will charge a basic $40.

President Frank J. Kinst said Lincoln's loan committee has begun to meet daily to assure earliest possible notification to applicants.

"Triple Seven" mortgage commitments will be honored by Lincoln for 90 days for mortgages that are signed within 15 days of approval by Lincoln. Both existing homes and those approaching occupancy are eligible.

Young couples should buy, then buy again, says expert

A young couple will come out ahead today by buying a "first home" instead of renting an apartment until they can afford their "dream home."

This is the opinion of Mrs. Patricia Schwartz, a residential sales representative at Trans-America Realty, Wheeling. "My specialty is counseling young couples looking for their first home," Pat says. "and the biggest problem is getting their heads out of the clouds and keeping their feet on the ground for the first few years of home ownership."

Most young people just starting out can't afford the kind of a home they see in the glossy magazines. They become discouraged and may decide to keep renting an apartment until they save enough for a bigger down payment on their "dream house," says Pat.

Usually, a couple is better off gaining experience in home ownership with a house they can afford now, says Pat.

"Owning and managing a home enables a couple to learn what they really want in a house to fit their own particular lifestyle," Pat advises. "The importance of a larger kitchen or a separate TV room becomes clear."

The most important reason for buying a first home, however, is the equity that is built up while waiting to buy that dream home, Pat advises.

"Rent payments are gone forever, but payments on a mortgage result not only in tax savings but in a reduction of the principal. Paying on a first home is like putting money in the bank, only better because of the increasing value of real estate," Pat says.

"Real estate values are rising sharply in the suburbs, and every economist sees this trend continuing in the years ahead. When you buy a home, you take advantage of this 5 to 10 per cent annual increase in the value of your property... and the increase is not just on your equity, but on the entire market value of your home," Pat points out.

Pat Schwartz is the newest addition to the residential sales staff of Trans-America. Although she is an experienced real estate representative, she majored in voice and piano at Northern Illinois University.

Pat and her husband, Richard live in Buffalo Grove.

Trans-America Realty has nationwide and international real estate affiliations, but is best known for serving residential property owners in the northwest suburbs of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

Homefinders names eight top salesmen

Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders, has announced that eight sales associates have been named "Salesman of the Month" for March.

Illinois Realtors Plaza to be dedicated in Springfield

A goal will become reality for 16,000 members of the Illinois Association of Realtors on Thursday when the new Illinois Realtors Plaza is dedicated in Springfield.

Over one-thousand people are expected to attend the dedication of the new state headquarters building. Illinois Governor Dan Walker, J. D. Sawyer, associate attorney general of the United States, John Doherty, 1974 President of the National Association of Realtors, William C. Telford, mayor of the City of Springfield, Jack Pontius, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors and 13 past presidents of the state association will attend.

The idea took seed in 1969 when Frank Burke of Peoria, during his term as state association president, emphasized the belief in widespread ownership of the land. He was the first association president while in office to work diligently toward the goal of the association owning its own headquarters building.

Later in 1974, Evanston Realtor Erven R. Luchs, president of the state association at the time, served as a further catalyst by appointing a site and building committee headed by Ray Speckman of Kankakee.

Since then countless Realtors have played vital roles in turning the building plans into reality, not the least of whom are the 338 members of the association who purchased a total of $650,000 worth of shares in a limited partnership which owns the new building.

The 44,000 square foot building is located near the intersection of Stevenson Drive and Interstate 55 in the southeast part of Springfield. The Illinois Association of Realtors will occupy space on the top fourth floor or 10% of the total space available. The remaining 40,000 square feet will be leased to other businesses. As of April 1, the building was over 70% leased.

The ultra-modern concrete and glass structure was designed by Perry and Henderson Architects, Springfield. R. D. Lawrence Construction Co., Springfield, served as general contractor. The total cost of the project was $1,850,000. The building stands on three acres of land and boasts parking facilities for 226 cars.

Douglas C. Carson of Melrose Park, 1974 President of the Illinois Association of Realtors, has guided the progress on the interior work after the building was "topped out" Sept. 1, 1973, nine months after ground-breaking. The exterior construction was accomplished under the leadership of Vincent D. Penza, 1973 state association president from Jacksonville.

Once the building is completed, the involvement by the Association will not end. A special management committee headed by Ray Speckman of Kankakee, has been established to work with the paid building manager to see that the tenants of the Illinois Realtors Plaza are happy with their new home and to ensure the future success of the project.

The dedication ceremonies on April 18 will begin at 2:30 p.m. at the Illinois Realtors Plaza. After the ribbon cutting ceremonies the new building will be open for inspection by those attending the dedication.

OVER ONE THOUSAND people are expected to attend the dedication ceremony for the Illinois Association of Realtors Plaza today in Springfield. Planning for the Plaza began in 1969.

First sales administration seminar held by Nelson Real Estate Co.

Jones, Dawn Kouras, Rosemarie Pakosta, Hubert Watson, Sally Roberts, Harris Helgeson and Patty Bigalke.

The sales seminars are conducted to offer all the latest sales techniques and methods plus review the national and local real estate market conditions. The program is designed as a continuing review of modern real estate sales practices of value to new and experienced Nelson salespeople.

Family shelter requirements

Banks held over $177 billion in loans and investments

Banks are number one in financing and servicing the shelter needs of America's families, the American Bankers Association (ABA) reported today.

Banks held over $177 billion in loans and investments in accountable support of family shelter requirements at the end of 1973, said Paul J. O'Brien, chairman of the ABA Housing and Real Estate Finance Division and senior vice president of the Security Pacific National Bank, Los Angeles. This represents over one-fourth the total of bank loans and investments that went toward housing in the United States.

Leading the financial industry as the nation's prime lender for construction of housing units, banks acquired $13 billion in residential construction loans during 1973. This amount represents almost half of all construction loans written last year by all financial institutions.

Providing $4 billion, banks again represented the major lender for home improvement loans at the end of last year.

The mobile home industry, which accounted for 44 per cent of all new single family dwellings sold in the U.S. last year relied on banks as their major source of credit. As the cost of conventional housing goes up, mobile homes have become virtually the only kind of low-cost housing that is widely available to 40 per cent of the families in the country earning under $8,000 per year.

At the end of 1973, banks had $7.2 billion in mobile home loans outstanding, representing 57.5 per cent of all such debt, the greatest share of the total financial community's commitment to the mobile home market, O'Brien said.

An estimated $4.2 billion was held by banks for the purchase of land as of June 1973. This amount again represents the largest percentage of loans made for land purchases by major lender groups. The ABA estimates that half of that amount was loaned for residential land use.

O'Brien noted that such private and municipal services as electricity, water and sewers, roads, are heavily financed by the banking community.

Additional information recently surveyed by the ABA reveals that banks hold $80 billion in municipal securities, again the leader of such holdings in the financial industry. It is estimated that $67 billion of that amount was issued to finance residential support facilities such as transportation, utilities, schools and public services.

Banks also lead the industry in providing credit assistance to the housing industry indirectly through the loans made to other financial institutions, such as savings and loan associations, mortgage bankers, life insurance companies and real estate investment trusts, totaling an estimated $15 billion.

Additional support resources are committed through bank-owned mortgage companies, bank-sponsored real estate investment trusts, origination and servicing of mortgages and Guaranteed National Mortgage Association certificates.

Banks held over $81.7 billion in residential mortgage loans at the end of 1973 and had an investment in obligations of federal government agencies involved in housing amounting to $10 billion.

"Banks also lead in the amount of unsecured loans to contractors, building suppliers and other businesses engaged in housing construction, servicing and supply, which is not included in the above totals," O'Brien observed.

"When you consider all facilities and services needed to provide for adequate housing, banks represent the major housing financial resource," he emphasized.

The ABA represents nearly 14,000 banks located throughout the nation, 96 per cent of the industry total.

Report sales of $10,477,000

Quinlan and Tyson's three northwest suburban area offices reported sales of $10,477,000 through the first three months of 1974.

The pace is about the same as last year's record-setting level, according to Marvin W. Kamps, vice president and regional sales manager for Quinlan and Tyson.

Kamps said the Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office made an excellent showing in March with sales of $4,867,000, contributing to a new all-time company high in monthly sales, $18,349,000.

The office pace is 95 per cent ahead of its goal on a year-to-date basis. The Palatine area office is 42 per cent ahead of goal, the Schaumburg Hoffman Estates area office, 38 per cent.

The figures include exclusive Quinlan and Tyson transactions and co-operative sales with other MAP brokers.

Realtor week coming up

"The Realtor — A Voice For America's Property Owner," is the 1974 theme for Realtor Week, William B. Sebastian, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors announced today.

Realtor Week is part of a nation-wide observance during April 21-27.

This year's observance emphasizes the positive role a Realtor performs as a voice for property owners on the local, state and national level.

"At present," Sebastian said, "seven out of every ten families own their own homes, and it is imperative that their voice be heard."

Sebastian pointed out that home ownership is and always will be the stable foundation of America.

"It is the single most important investment that most families will make, and certainly the best one," he added.

Sebastian stressed the fact that there was never a more opportune time for all Realtors to point out the advantages of property ownership. "The achievement of home ownership is a fundamental right," he explains.

Starck Realtors Co. salutes five top salesmen for March

For the third consecutive month, John Kotleba, a broker-salesman in the Schaumburg office of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, was named the top salesman of the month over fifty sales associates at Starck's five offices.

The other four offices reported new winners for the month of March. The other winners were as follows: Nancy Bartlett, Mt. Prospect; Dee McCall, Arlington Heights; George Collins, Palatine, and Anne Schuerings, Hoffman Estates.

Kotleba, who lives with his wife Louisa and their three children in Schaumburg, has been with Starck for three years and is a holder of the G.R.I. award. He is a two-time member of the firm's Million Dollar Club.

Bartlett has been a sales associate with Starck for over three years. She and her husband Don are residents of Mt. Prospect. She also holds the G.R.I. designation.

Dee McCall is a licensed broker and has been with Starck for two years. She is a resident of Arlington Heights.

Collins, along with his wife Susan, lives in Park Ridge. He has over three years real estate experience.

Mrs. Schuerings lives in Hoffman Estates with her husband and their three children. She is a past director of the Hoffman Estates Park District and a member of the V.F.W. Auxiliary and the League of Women Voters.

MGM's 'We Care' campaign has $3,650 in pledges so far

With some pledges still being received, $3,650 has been pledged to date by 40 MGM salespersons for the real estate company's "We Care" campaign.

"We Care" was launched April 1 and will continue through June 30. Each person participating has pledged to earn a gift for a charitable institution. To earn the gift, salespeople will receive credit in coupons equaling a percentage of their monthly earnings.

The value of the coupons will be totaled each week. When the total in coupons equals the amount of a salesperson's pledge, the charitable gift selected by the salesperson will be purchased and donated to the charity.

Since the project was announced in March, over 30 organizations have requested specific needed items. These include educational filmstrips and records, sound equipment, wheel chairs, typewriters, playground equipment, a bumper pool table and a freezer. The organizations making requests serve retarded and handicapped children, senior citizens and handicapped adults.

Progress records of the campaign will be kept at the MGM offices in Skokie, Niles and Chicago. Contributions will be announced as they are earned and presented to the charitable institution.

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

Under 30 homeseekers looking for older homes

"Builders and developers have grown adept at determining a potential home-owner's preferences by asking for the buyer's age."

So notes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, who points out one finding: "older homes are in greatest demand among young people — the under-30 age group."

IMIC, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry, works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks by insuring the top 30 to 25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

"The prime concern of most young home-seeking married couples today is to arrange financing. Once those details are settled, the search then starts for the dream house," Goss says.

In the past, the consensus was that the modern young family would only buy a newly built home — one with all of the latest conveniences. However, an increasing number of these couples are looking for — and buying — the older homes.

"They enjoy using their talents as 'togetherness time' to remodel and redecorate, making their homes fit their dreams," Goss states.

Reports indicate that when an old dwelling which is badly in need of repairs and renovation is advertised, almost all the inquiries come from young people under 30.

"After they buy it, fix it up to their liking and live in it for a few years, they are apt to sell it and usually at a healthy profit," Goss indicates.

People in their mid-30s are more sophisticated in their home buying attitudes, he points out.

"By the time they have reached that age level, they are generally in higher income brackets and feel the need for plusher, more comfortable surroundings," he emphasizes.

The townhouse is usually more suited to the life style of the middle-aged couple. They are now less than enchanted with space and lawns to mow.

"As for the widowed, single or divorced, they seek a home of their own more avidly than any other group. Owning is truly the 'in' thing with this group," he observes.

Real estate brokers course to be held at Playboy Towers

The National Institute of Real Estate Brokers will present a six-day course entitled, "Fundamentals of Real Estate Investment and Taxation — Course A." Co-sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate Board, the course will be held at Chicago's Playboy Towers Hotel, April 23-27.

Course A provides an introduction to the fundamentals of real estate investment from the standpoint of a broker who serves an investor-client. Among the fundamentals covered are demonstration of the mathematical tools to calculate the rate of return on real estate investments, analysis of mortgage loans and other common real estate problems, analysis of operating statements of income-producing real properties, the impact of alternative forms of depreciation on the return from an investment and the preparation of investment analysis forms used in client analysis and projection.

"Fundamentals of Real Estate Investment and Taxation" is one of many educational events offered by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. With 20,000 members, it is the largest professional organization affiliated with the National Association of Realtors and acts as its educational arm for Realtors and Realtor-associates. In addition to courses, NIREB sponsors an on-going program of periodicals, texts, sales aids and audio-visual programs for Realtors and the public interested in real estate brokerage.

While registration for this course is closed, information on other presentations may be obtained from the NIREB

Registration Coordinator, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Illinois 60611 or Rodger C. Wunderlich, Chicago Real Estate Board, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60603.

WHILE CHICAGO'S climate prevents having year-round outdoor floral arrangements, a greenhouse affords families an opportunity to learn and enjoy horticulture all four seasons. The greenhouses are an optional feature of Windings Villas and are manufactured by Lord and Burnham of Des Plaines.

Greenhouses are optional in Windings' townhomes

For years, having a greenhouse has been equated with the well-to-do suburban single-family resident or those living on a country estate. Today, however, because of mass-producing cost-saving factors, a new line of greenhouses is manufactured for the multi-family housing market.

The Windings Villas, secluded townhomes at The Windings of Ferson Creek, a residential recreational home-site community just west of St. Charles, are believed to be the first multi-family units in the Chicago metropolitan area to offer a greenhouse as an optional item to buyers.

According to nationwide housing studies conducted by the Urban Land Institute, a concern about ecology and total living environment has established the multi-use greenhouse concept as an attractive amenity.

"The greenhouse creates a natural transition between the indoors and outdoors in an all-weather environment," says Don Flock of the St. Charles-based architectural firm of Selleg Stevenson Peterson & Flock, Inc. (SSPF). This is a particularly enhancing element for Chicago area families. Idlehour Development Co., a division of SSPF, is designing and building The Windings Villas.

Set in the proper environs, a greenhouse at The Windings highlights the countryside atmosphere and Fox River Valley's year-round beauty, accenting a country lifestyle.

"Families are turning to the country for a place to live more than ever before, and research indicates a conscious awareness of horticulture as a growing indoor hobby," Flock says. "A greenhouse affords buyers an opportunity to expand, or perhaps, begin a family-oriented recreational amenity."

For a home's interior the greenhouse acts as an extension of the living space, whereby a family can utilize this area for more than simply growing plants. The greenhouse becomes an integral room of the total living facility, often the focal point of social and relaxing activities.

More and more, people are developing a better understanding and perspective of nature and are seeking to carry on a year-round hobby of growing plants, horticulturists report. While Chicago's unpredictable and harsh climate prevents having year-round outdoor floral arrangements, a greenhouse provides a chance to learn and enjoy horticulture first hand year-round.

Early response to the greenhouse at The Windings Villas has been favorable, reports Flock. "Providing a greenhouse should become a growing trend in multi-family housing. It is a positive element to add to the homebuyer's list of important criteria to consider when making a decision you can live with."

Price of the greenhouse ranges from $1,000-$1,500 depending on which of the units is selected. Lord and Burnham of Des Plaines is the manufacturer.

Accredited real estate class starts at Arlington May 6

The Illinois Association of Realtors and Real Estate Education Company of Chicago will co-sponsor a special course for prospective real estate salesmen in Arlington Heights starting May 6.

Since October 1, the state has required that candidates for salesmen's licenses complete 30 hours of accredited classroom instruction in the basic principles of real estate before being allowed to register to take the state's license examination.

The course in Arlington Heights is part of a program to bring classes to prospective salesmen throughout Illinois, according to Douglas C. Carson, I.A.R. president.

Classes will be held in the Arlington

Park Towers on May 6, 7, 9, 13, 14, 16, 20, 21, 23 and 28 from 7 to 10 p.m. Successful completion of the course will enable prospective salesmen to register prior to the June 14 deadline to take the real estate salesman's license examination in July.

Tuition of $100 includes textbooks and other classroom materials, according to Richard Herb, vice president of Real Estate Education Company.

Further information and registration can be obtained from the Northwest Suburban Real Estate Board, the Illinois Association of Realtors, 612 S. Second St., Springfield 62704, or from Real Estate Education Company, 500 N. Dearborn, Chicago 60610.

Inner workings of homes as important as exteriors

There's more to a house than an attractive exterior. The family room you've always dreamed of and a great fireplace in the living room.

The new homeowner has a lot to learn about the inner workings of his house, and the best time to do it is before you move in.

If you're buying a new house, the builder's the man to talk to. If it's an older home, try to have the previous owner conduct you on a thorough inspection tour to make sure you know where everything is and how it works.

If you're already in your home, but not fully acquainted with it, the time to look into things is now — not some cold night when the furnace suddenly cuts out, or during the spring thaw when water starts seeping into the basement and the sump pump doesn't pump.

Take time to set up a simple file on your house. A loose leaf notebook and an inexpensive expansion file will do it. You should also have some sturdy oak tags, an indelible marker and adhesive labels or, if you have one, a plastic label maker is even better.

Your tour of the house, with or without guide, should start in the basement or utility room. Learn the location of all water valves, circuit breakers or fuse boxes, gas valves and meters. Label each clearly.

Find out how to operate all equipment — furnace, air conditioner, humidifier or dehumidifier, water pump, hot water heater, water conditioning system, sump pump, fuel supply. Label each with information for routine operation and maintenance, any special precautions. Red labels, easily spotted in an emergency, are a good idea for master switches and the main water valve.

The kitchen should be your next stop. Find out how to operate all equipment. If the former owner is on hand, he will be able to tell you not only how equipment works, but any idiosyncrasies it may have — a dishwasher door, for instance, that sometimes needs a little extra pressure on the latch before it will start, or an oven that runs 25 degrees high or low.

Elsewhere in the house, ask about the fireplace, any special equipment such as zone thermostats, intercom system, burglar or fire alarms, auxiliary heating units, ventilating fans in bathrooms or attic. You might check on screens and storm windows.

Outdoors, determine the location of septic tank and fields, fuel storage tank or fuel inlet, well, any buried gas or power lines.

Check out carefully a swimming pool or any other recreational equipment that goes with the house. Find out what maintenance is required, what equipment — pumps, vacuums, filters — is included and how it works.

If the previous owner obviously was a gardener, inquire about trees and plantings. If there's an automatic sprinkling system, check its layout.

If a survey was made of the property, have the wooden boundary markers replaced with permanent metal ones. A coat of bright paint will make these easier to find in a few years. File your survey map. If a new survey was not made, ask for a survey map and have the previous owner walk the boundaries with you.

Try to obtain, from the builder, previous owner, or, if necessary, from the manufacturer, the instruction booklets for all equipment. Store them in your expansion file.

Try to obtain, also, all warranties and purchase slips applying to equipment in the home, and file these along with your instruction manuals. Some of these still may be in effect and can protect you. Others may apply only to the original owner, but they will indicate when the appliance was purchased and should give an idea of when it might have to be replaced.

Ask, also, for any blueprints, specifications and other paperwork pertaining to the construction of the house and subsequent changes. These aren't always available but when they are can be very helpful should you decide to remodel or add on.

Any maintenance records an owner kept may be helpful, too, but in any case you should set up your own schedule. If you don't have records, perform necessary maintenance as quickly as possible, using instruction books as a guide, or contacting manufacturers whose name appears on equipment.

Set up a page in your notebook for each item of equipment, with manufacturer, model or serial numbers, and as much information as you have. Keep a record of maintenance, repairs, etc. Be sure to add to your records and file the material for each new item of equipment you require — appliances, television, garden or workshop tools. Use this notebook, too, to record for future tax purposes any money spent for improvements.

Most owners are proud of their homes, even if they are selling them, and are only too glad to give an interested buyer information.

It is a rare person who won't be more than willing to pass along tips on the maintenance and repair people he has used, the best places to shop — even the name of the neighbor down the block who knows all there is to know about houses if you should get in a bind.

Real estate buyers, sellers are often repeat customers

Making sales is essential to any business enterprise. But when the product is a home, it's just as important to make satisfied customers because they may turn out to be repeat customers in the years ahead.

"Mortgage statistics show that existing homes change hands on the average every seven years, which means that the satisfied seller of a home today could be a customer again," observes Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, for Baird & Warner, Inc.

Even though people don't sell houses as often as they go to the local supermarket, they remember the kind of attention and service they received in their last real estate transaction. And if their recollection is favorable, they're apt to return to the same place.

Nearly one-third of the home sellers in 1973 were either former clients or were referred by former clients to Baird & Warner. Still another third of Baird & Warner sales were brought in by referrals from miscellaneous sources, including friends, other salesmen and other brokers.

According to the sales analysis, the balance, 33 per cent, of clients who used Baird & Warner to sell their homes were attracted to the firm because of its promotional activities, including publicity, display or classified advertising, signs on property, open houses, direct mail or calls and other activities.

The survey covered residential property transactions only, including single-family homes, condominiums and co-op apartment sales. Sales of commercial and multi-family apartment buildings or vacant parcels of land are not included.

Past performance was only slightly less influential in bringing buyers to the Baird & Warner network of offices last year. About 59 per cent of the buyers materialized because of referrals and 41 per cent were drawn by the company's advertising and promotional efforts.

Close to 10 per cent of the buyer referrals were produced by brokers in other cities or were a result of Baird & Warner's RESET program, which stands for Real Estate Service for Employee Transfers.

RESET was created in 1964, and two years ago Baird & Warner expanded its service to mobile employees by becoming a charter member of InterComm, a cross-country referral group. This new, two-way service enables Baird & Warner to acquaint arriving househunters with the Chicago market and at the same time to direct departing sellers to qualified correspondent brokers in many new locations.

Planned developments withstand energy crunch

PUDS — planned unit developments — are a wise place to be during energy-short times.

"Energy-conscious home buyers are finding that PUDs offer more than just man-made lakes and golf courses. They are a hedge against present and any future fuel crunches," reports the real estate arm of Esmark, Inc., Chicago, a diversified company with major interests in food, chemicals and energy, as well as insurance and varied business and financial services.

PUDs are specially designed communities ranging in size from 10 to several hundred acres, usually located near metropolitan centers. They include various types of housing, shopping centers and recreational sites, as well as a wide spectrum of public services and diverse community facilities.

The PUD report lists energy-related developments:

- Future PUDs will meet the need for more close-to-home jobs and shopping.

- The need for jobs coincides with the growing demand for convenient shopping and other services.

- Which such opportunities are being created within the PUDs, most residents will continue to commute to work via convenient transit systems.

Developers, whose phased construction plans usually call for building commercial and light industrial structures last, are revising their master plans.

"More and more PUD residents will be traveling only 10 or 15 minutes to a near-by job during the remainder of the decade," Esmark projects.

Suburban construction increasingly will be concentrated in PUDs "developed according to a coordinated plan to realize a more comfortable, efficient and livable environment."

"PUD dwellers want to be able to shop for food and clothing, attend movies, receive health care and dine in a quality restaurant, without leaving the development."

"Hotels and motel planners are looking to PUDs for future building sites as more businesses locate in them," Esmark continues.

Evaluate pros and cons of ownership before buying

Will you rent, buy or build?
Many renters wait impatiently for the day they can buy or build; others have no desire to take on the responsibilities of home ownership. Your answer to the question may differ at different times in your life. There are advantages and disadvantages to both.
How to decide which is better for you?
Household Finance Corporation's Money Management Institute, Chicago, offers some help in its booklet, "Your Housing Dollar."

To decide whether renting or owning is better for you, it advises, consider your place in the life cycle, the size of your family, your occupation, your financial situation, the housing market in your area, your personal preferences and your tax status in the light of deductions allowed for mortgage interest and real estate taxes.
You may want to rent, the Institute suggests, when:
—You cannot estimate future housing needs.

—You want to become familiar with a new community before investing in a house.
—You expect to move soon and — or frequently.
—You do not have enough money for the down payment, closing costs and other expenses involved in buying a home.
—You do not want the responsibilities of home ownership.
—You can find better housing for the amount you can afford.

Rental housing, the Institute notes, offers two important advantages — greater mobility and minimum responsibility. Should renting be the answer, the Institute offers some advice on how to make the most of it.

The most common types of rental housing include apartments, duplexes or townhouses, and individual houses.

Apartment living, it notes, requires the least amount of responsibility for the tenant. The landlord or management usually takes care of heating, yard and grounds, decorating, repairs, upkeep and maintenance. In addition, major appliances and laundry facilities may be furnished and rent may include some or all utilities.

However, apartment living generally offers little or no private yard space, limited storage area, and less privacy than a house or duplex. Before deciding on an apartment, if possible, talk to other tenants in the building. Find out what they like and dislike about the building, the landlord or management, and the neighborhood.

Renting a house usually provides more living space, better storage facilities and greater privacy than other types of rental housing.

Houses generally include a yard, parking space and possibly a garage.

Whoever you decide on, the Institute stresses the importance of checking carefully the lease, a written or verbal agreement between landlord and tenant.

Among the things to consider, it says, are the following:

—What is covered by the rent? Are any utilities included? Are decorating, window washing or other services provided without charge? Is garage or parking space included in the rent?

—Who is responsible for upkeep, repairs and maintenance? In apartments the landlord is responsible for the building and major plumbing, electrical and structural repairs. In houses the landlord usually assumes less responsibility. Find out what obligations you assume before you sign the lease.

—How and when may the lease be terminated or renewed? What notice must you give if you plan to move when the lease ends? Is the lease automatically renewed if you fail to give notice? How far in advance must you renew? What notice will you receive if the landlord intends to change the terms of the lease or renewal?

—What happens if you must move before the lease expires? Can you sublet? Is there a fee for subletting? Normally, you must carry out the terms of the lease if the new tenant fails to do so unless the landlord offers a lease to the new tenant. Can you have a clause written into the lease which cancels your responsibility if you are transferred before the lease expires?

—What extra costs must you pay? Is there a penalty for paying rent late?

Must you make a security deposit? If so, how much and when is it returned? Can the rent be increased before the lease expires — when, by how much, under what circumstances?

—When may the landlord or his employees enter your home? The landlord has a right to set up reasonable conditions for his entering — unless an emergency makes it necessary to enter without your permission.

—What rules and regulations must tenants follow in using the property? Can you decorate, keep pets, carry on business, install carpeting or equipment?

What rules govern use of facilities in the building? Are restrictions reasonable? Are they enforced?

—Does the landlord have a lien on your property? A landlord's lien permits him to hold your furnishings and belongings until you fulfill your financial obligations to him.

—Are all agreements written into the lease? Don't rely on verbal agreements. If the landlord makes promises that are not in the printed lease, ask that they be written and attached to the lease.

Ann Bartlett named manager of Homefinders' new Roselle office

Ann Bartlett has been named manager of Homefinders Realtors new Roselle office, 118 N. Prospect. It is the ninth sales office opened by Homefinders and the second organized since the first of the year.

Mrs. Bartlett reached the coveted million dollar mark in her first 256 days in real estate. She and her husband George live in Roselle with their three children. She and her family belong to the Roselle Methodist Church, where she is a past chairman of the education committee.

Mrs. Bartlett has been a consultant with the Girl Scout organization for 12 years, a secretary for the Roselle Garden Club and is currently a secretary for the Parent Teacher Organization. She is also active in the Buttonwood Homeowners' Association.

The Roselle office will handle real estate in Roselle, Bloomingdale, Itasca, Hanover Park, Glendale Heights, Carol Stream and Medinah.

Family room gains stature

A house — without a family room — can hardly be called home these days.

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

Goss reports that "for home buyers of the '70s, the family room has assumed primary importance as the focus of all family activities — the main entertainment center."

Emphasis in the family room is on versatility — and in its furnishings — durability.

"It must be a daytime play room for children, a mealtime eating area, and in the evenings proffer the family's amusement or recreation."

As for weekends, it's not inconceivable to find the family room in use virtually round the clock for family activities as well as entertainment of friends," Goss adds.

Typically, the family room is located off the kitchen where it can easily double as a dining room and provide a nearby play area enabling mother to simultaneously cook and watch the toddlers. In smaller homes, this also eliminates the need for a separate dining room.

Goss points out that "results of this trend on the status of the living room is to place it in the position of yesterday's 'parlor.' Fifty years ago the parlor was closed off and used only for a household's most formal functions — such as it well becoming the case for modern living rooms."

Consequently today's living rooms are often expensively appointed — and rarely used in comparison to the home's focal point — its family room.

"In dollar terms, however, most of a household's total expenditure on furnishings go into family room amenities. These extras include: fireplace, television set, bookshelves, built-in or portable bar, record player and other sound equipment — and possibly the kids' aquarium, baby's toy chest and even the dog's bed," Goss notes.

He further comments that where a family of a few years ago would have been content with 2,500 square feet of space, home buyers today want approximately 3,500 square feet — chiefly put into a larger family room.

"For prospective home buyers in today's market, the family room now heads their 'must' list."

"In fact, it has become the 'heart' of American homes," Goss concludes.

Insulation key to conserving energy

Good insulation is the key to saving both energy and money in the operation of air conditioning, according to Commonwealth Edison Co.

The electric company advises homeowners to prepare for the summer cooling season by installing or improving their home insulation before hot weather arrives.

Insulation should be selected on the basis of R-values, indicating how well the material resists heat flow. The higher the R-number, the more effective it is as a heat barrier.

Edison recommends a wrap-around formula of R-19 in the ceiling (attic floor), R-11 in walls and R-11 in floors over unheated spaces. A home insulated in this manner is equipped not only for economical air conditioning but also for electric heating.

Do-it-yourself home selling is not reliable, says realtor

While many home owners have succeeded in selling their home without broker assistance, the batting average is statistically quite low, according to Dick Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, a 19-office real estate firm. The horror stories of those who try and fail, noted Caruso, are seldom told with the same triumphant shouts of the few who negotiate the rocks and shoals successfully.

A "For Sale By Owner" sign in your front yard, when you are trying to sell your home yourself, is an open invitation for callers at all hours of the day or night, seven days a week. This means your home must be spic and span, ready for showings at all times because you will be holding an "Open House" continually for those who want to see your home. In addition, your family will be burdened by these unexpected sightseer visitors who can be a nuisance when they appear at inconvenient times.

These "invasions" of your privacy or personal plans are just one of the risks you take when you decide to sell your home yourself. Guarding against them and the possible horrors that can result is one of the reasons most sellers prefer to work with realtors.

Anyone with a realistic knowledge of the real estate market will tell you that the commission paid a broker, (especially one with a high degree of skill, integrity, energy and marketing ability), is as good as the fee paid to an obstetrician.

Except in rare instances when the buyers appear from around the corner or answer the first classified ad, either a broker must be retained to perform the

The appointment of Ernest B. Branch of 407 Prospect Manor, Mount Prospect, to the position of associate at Sargent &

Lundy is announced by K. W. Hamming, senior partner for the Chicago-based engineering consultant. Branch is also head of the firm's engineering mechanics division. This group is concerned with design problems relating to large power stations, such as heat transfer, fluid mechanics, and dynamic and static analysis of piping and related structures.

Branch joined Sargent & Lundy in 1969, with a B.S. in engineering mechanics from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. full range of marketing services or these functions must be performed by someone else. If the latter course is chosen, that someone else will earn the commission through the expenditure of time and effort or even greater, the expense of a lost transaction.

"The only alternative," according to Caruso, "is to test a portion of the market, which is certain to result in either a lower selling price or the burden of never really knowing whether you got all the traffic would bear."

"This testing of the market is really the job that needs to be done. Is the seller really capable of doing this testing? It isn't any buyer who is being sought, nor is it the first buyer who comes along. Neither should it be the best buyer in a limited segment of the market place."

Every seller wants the best possible price for his home, and there is no reason why he shouldn't be entitled to it. But it is sheer foolishness to suppose that anything short of maximum testing of the market will locate that best available buyer and produce the best top dollar. Those who choose not to pay a broker to do this must either perform the same services or risk the economic consequences.

Those who suggest that an attorney's fee of $200 is an attractive alternative to the broker's commission are comparing apples and oranges, unless the attorney involved will do market data research, make a preliminary appraisal, compose, place and pay for ads, conduct a mail and telephone prospecting campaign, answer all inquiries, show the home, qualify prospects, hold open house, work out financing, insurance and so forth. Few, if any, attorneys would be interested.

Actually, these are only a few of the many necessary services performed by the broker with the understanding that he gets paid only when and if these efforts are crowned with success.

"Another roadblock to saving the commission," Caruso goes on to say, "is the problem of finding a solution when the seller is a part of the problem. Once a prospective buyer is found and his interest aroused, the negotiating stage is reached. At this point, a mediator is needed who is not only free of emotional involvement, but able to probe, understand and reconcile the wants and needs of both parties in a mutually rewarding transaction."

"After years of observing real estate negotiations, I am convinced that the ability to do this is reserved to the angels in heaven. Few buyers and sellers can bring it off without either a hair pulling contest or somehow stomping out in a rage."

In many transactions, the broker or realtor-associate justifies the fee and more in the negotiation stage alone. No

McCallister is named VP

Robert G. McCallister, 544 Rob Roy Ct., Palatine, has been named an executive vice president of Skil Corp., Chicago.

Robert McCallister

In his new post McCallister will be in charge of physical distribution for the company and will oversee its Canadian operations. This is in addition to his responsibilities for U.S. sales and repair service activities.

McCallister came to Skil in 1969 as vice president-materials management. He had been with Gates Rubber Co., Denver, for 19 years.

He is a graduate of the University of Denver, with a B.S. degree in 1949 and M.B.A. in 1954, and is also vice president of the Power Saw Manufacturers Association and a member of the Hardware Marketing Council.

Two salesmen share honors

George Opt, 108 Idelstone, Schaumburg and Jim Conlon, 813 Cathy Ln., Mount Prospect shared the honor and spotlight when they both received Ekco "Marketer Of The Year" awards recently for their outstanding sales achievements in 1973. Opt also won this award last year.

They received their awards during the recent Ekco Century Club Dinner held at the Continental Plaza Hotel in Chicago. This affair is held every year for the customers of Ekco Housewares Co. who purchase $100,000 or more of Ekco merchandise at their cost, during the previous year.

one will ever tabulate the billions of lost dollars in deals which blew up when either buyer or seller said what he really thought at the critical point in head-to-head negotiations.

In a related way, is the prospect who looks at the home, gives it faint praise and says, "I'll think it over and give you a call."

It sounds great, but few return. It is up to the seller to make a follow-up if he has no broker to represent him.

A good broker or realtor-associate can draw out a prospect in a way an owner seldom can. When Mrs. Sellers shows Mrs. Prospect through her home, Mrs. Prospect knows she is talking with the owner and is likely to be noncommittal.

But to the broker or Realtor-Associate showing the home, Mrs. Prospect is apt to bring out her true feelings. She comments on her likes and dislikes about the home.

It's here that the skillful broker or realtor-associate really earns his commission. Some of these objections are trivial, and the realtor-associate can diplomatically point this out. Some are plain misunderstandings, easily corrected. Some can be offset or overbalanced by certain features. While others are idiosyncrosies of the present owner, not characteristic of the home itself. Most objections and dislikes can be countered or negated — if they are allowed to come out. The realtor-associate can bring them out in a way no seller could.

"The experienced realtor-associate," Caruso concludes, "is a knowledgeable professional, who devotes full time to helping people buy and sell real estate. He is a skilled salesman who knows which features to stress and how to counter objections. He is a skilled negotiator who has had long experience in closing sales. You can count on him to sell your home faster and at the best price. Rather than compete with the experts, why not put the experts on your selling team?"

Clarence Schiller celebrates 45th

Clarence W. Schiller, an engineer for Illinois Bell Telephone Co., is celebrating his 45th anniversary with the company.

Clarence Schiller

As an engineer Schiller is in charge of providing outside plant facilities for Illinois Bell's North Area in Chicago. His office is located at 10 S. Canal, Chicago.

Schiller, a native of Chicago and a graduate of Thorp and Schurz Schools, served with the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II. He is a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a service organization of long-term telephone employees, and Illinois Bell's Engineering Men's Club. He enjoys woodworking and attending sports events in his leisure hours.

Artist retires

Veteran advertising artist, Maury Weil of Palatine, retired from Gardner, Stein and Frank, Inc. on February 28.

Weil had been in the G/S/F art department for the past 11 years. Earlier, he worked as a freelance artist and had also operated his own studio.

Commenting on his retirement, Weil said, "I'm going to devote a portion of my leisure time to painting and craft work, but my wife is busy compiling a long list of projects that have been neglected over the past several years. So, it's safe to say I'm going to have a very 'active' retirement."

Enjoyment of fireplace dependent on wood quality

Home fireplaces are getting plenty of use during the present energy crisis. Howard L. Eckel, vice president of the Davey Tree Expert Co., offers several tips on what type of wood to use, how to stack it and what to look for when you buy firewood.

The ideal fire should burn slowly enough to take up a minimum amount of your attention and it should release its heat steadily enough so that the room temperature does not fluctuate uncomfortably.

The type of wood you burn in your fireplace is very important, not only from a comfort and safety standpoint, but also for the condition of your fireplace, according to Eckel.

Dry, well-seasoned hardwoods — hickory, oak, maple, beech and most fruit tree woods — make good fires. Softwoods, such as pine, fir, spruce and cedar, are filled with sap and resins. Besides burning too fast, the sap can be absorbed into the masonry and is extremely inflammable, sometimes sending out a shower of sparks.

Softwoods can be used for firewood if they are split and allowed to age for at least one year, preferably longer. Aging permits the sap to dry out thoroughly. However, if you burn softwood, be certain your fireplace is well screened to guard against snapping and spraying sparks.

Green wood will merely smolder and hiss or not burn at all.

Whether you cut your own wood or buy it, it is a good idea to stack it "criss-cross" or in a "tick-tack-toe" pattern so the air can get at it. Stack one row across and the next row at right angles. When logs are stacked in rows, air circulation is greatly reduced and they retain moisture and do not age properly.

In building a fire four or more inches of air space should be left at each end of the logs to allow for air flow. You should leave at least an inch-deep carpet of ashes to accumulate on the fireplace floor to insulate it and also to catch the embers and hold their heat near the logs. The ash layer also protects the floor from the heat of the fire which could deteriorate the masonry.

"Tree limbs with dry leaves still attached; evergreen boughs or large, crumpled balls of paper should never be thrown into the fire, since a flashback can singe you to your eyebrows," Eckel warned.

When you buy your firewood from a dealer, be sure you and the dealer decide exactly what you are getting — and paying for. Webster defines the standard cord of wood as: "A measure equaling a pile four by four by eight feet, or 128 cubic feet." However, some dealers sell a "fireplace cord," which is also four feet high with eight feet coverage, but is only as deep as the length of the logs — 16, 18, or 24 inches. In some areas this amount is called a "rick," a "face" or a "run."

A good habit to develop would be to get a receipt for payment of fireplace wood and have the receipt state the amount delivered. It would be worth the extra money to have the deliverer stack the wood, and you take the time to measure the stack before paying. Most dealers are reputable, of course, but with firewood in such demand this year, Better Business Bureaus across the country recommend double-checking your purchase.

Jorgensen Co. buys 52 acres in Centex-Schaumburg Park

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has announced the completion of a 52-acre land sale in their Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park to Earle M. Jorgensen Co. for a consideration in excess of $1,300,000.

Earle M. Jorgensen Co. is a major distributor of steel products principally to industry. Plans are already under way for the Jorgensen Co. to erect a one story office and crane-type warehouse and distribution building, which will contain approximately 400,000 square feet. Future plans are to eventually expand this distribution facility to approximately 1,500,000 square feet by 1985.

The site was selected because of its accessibility to major roads, including the proposed Elgin-O'Hare Expressway, which bisects the Park, and because the Industrial Park is served by the Milwaukee Road Railroad.

James H. Dana of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates, agent for the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park, represented the seller and Edward A. Rowe and Robert B. Rosen of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented Earle M. Jorgensen Co. in the transaction. Attorney for the seller was Jack N. Pritzker of Pritzker & Pritzker and Earle M. Jorgensen Co. was represented by house counsel.

Frank's Nursery Sales acquires two new stores in Minneapolis

Max Weinberg, president of Frank's Nursery Sales, Inc., recently announced the acquisition of five garden centers in Minneapolis-St. Paul from the Green Giant Company.

Frank's purchased the assets of the five locations for a cash consideration of $1,130,000 plus a warrant to purchase 40,000 shares of Frank's common stock at $6.25 per share. With this move to the Twin Cities, the Detroit-based retail nursery organization operates a total of 51 stores in the Midwest.

Frank's was founded in 1949 in Detroit, and the company is currently celebrating its twenty-fifth year. Incorporated in 1936, Frank's went public 10 years later and was listed on the American Exchange in 1967. At that time, the company's growth was centered in the Detroit area. Since then, expansion has moved the organization into market areas throughout Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Expansion plans for 1974 include two additional stores in the greater Chicago area and two new stores in the Cincinnati market.

I. William Sherr, Frank's executive vice president, stated that the Twin City garden centers are expected to generate sales of approximately $3,000,000 in the remaining ten months of 1974. This, together with the scheduled expansion in other markets, should result in sales of approximately $43,000,000 for Frank's in 1974 compared to $37,000,000 and $35,000,000 in 1973 and 1972 respectively.

William Velch has been named district manager, with operating responsibility for the stores in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area. It is his intention to retain store personnel in their present positions.

Wives' incomes contributing more to mortgages for home purchases

Home-buying couples today include a record number of working wives. An analysis of the $14 million in mortgage loans processed during March by Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association of Berwyn shows employed wives were indicated by 42 per cent of applications received.

This, according to President Frank J. Kinst, exceeds by 20 per cent the 35 per cent ratio that existed on Lincoln Federal mortgages granted in 1973.

Kinst declared, "Although the husband's income traditionally provides the criterion for mortgage feasibility, additional money earned by a wife often permits the purchase of more expensive housing than otherwise justified."

It is thus possible, he said, for a young family to acquire earlier a home meeting the needs of its more mature and affluent years.

On February 25 Lincoln Federal announced the availability of $10 million for mortgages on new and existing homes. By the last week in March, applications for $14 million had been accepted by the $142-million Berwyn institution.

Although the March program offered 80 per cent loans at 7.77 per cent interest, Kinst noted amazement at the number of borrowers who required only 40 to 60 per cent of appraised value.

Properties involved in mortgage commitments have been as far distant from Berwyn as the Fox River Valley communities, Evergreen Park and Lake Zurich.

Many applicants, Kinst said, were from the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg area, where Lincoln is breaking ground in April for a full service de novo branch.

Amounts of loans ranged from $2,500 to $45,000. The average mortgage was for $27,000, amortized over 25 years.

Effective April 1, Lincoln Federal returns to its previous 7.9 per cent mortgage rate, the "going rate" for the Chicago region.

Basic housing problem is inflation, says bank expert

The basic housing problem is inflation, not the lack of money, according to Rex J. Morthland, president of the American Bankers Association.

"Mortgage interest rates and mortgage fund availability have been in the limelight whenever housing problems are raised in Congress," Morthland observed. However, he agreed with Federal Home Loan Bank Board economists that housing credit is no longer a negative element in the national housing outlook.

Morthland is board chairman and chief executive officer of Peoples Bank and Trust Co., Selma, Ala., and the 88th president of the ABA. He indicated that from 1953 to 1973, housing costs such as land prices, materials, taxes, insurance, maintenance and repairs have skyrocketed.

"Interest rates, on the other hand, show the next to lowest percentage rise." Fuel and utilities show the lowest percentage increase. However, Morthland predicts that when the results of fuel and utility prices for '74 are in, mortgage interest rates will be at the bottom of the scale in terms of percentage rise.

"While lenders seem to have adequate funds for housing at this time," Morthland said, "a major factor in the depressed housing sales picture is the high cost of housing." Costs rose especially rapidly during the past year, aggravated by shortages of materials and fuel.

Morthland cited the fact that the average new home that sold for $35,000 in December 1972 sold for $40,900 in December 1973 — up 16 per cent in only one year.

"Land costs represent the single most costly item of increase in buying a home," he observed. "During the last 10 years, the cost of land has risen at the annual rate of 9.1 per cent per year. Moreover, lots are getting smaller."

In 1967 the average lot size for a home was 8,202 square feet, according to home builder industry statistics. In 1973, it was 6,990 square feet. Taking account of both rising lot prices and smaller lots, land costs rose at a rate of 13.4 per cent per year between 1967-73.

Despite a tight monetary situation during 1973, banks accounted for 48 per cent of all construction loans for single-family and up through four-family housing units, according to the ABA.

The ABA represents nearly 14,000 banks located throughout the nation, 96 per cent of the industry total.

Veterans' news

135,000 get medical care

Q — The Veterans Administration pays allowances for my wife and daughter along with compensation for a 60 per cent service connected disability. My daughter just married. When will the allowance for my daughter be discontinued?

A — At the end of the calendar year in which she was married.

Q — I spent three years in the military service, and was honorably discharged this year. Am I eligible for a business loan from the Veterans Administration?

A — Business loans are available to veterans from the Small Business Administration. VA's authority to make business loans is limited to those who served before Jan. 31, 1955. Suggest you try the Small Business Administration.

Q — My husband died recently as the result of a service connected disability. This makes me eligible for benefits under the Veterans Administration's dependents educational assistance program. Am I also entitled to counseling?

A — Yes. Counseling is available upon request to spouses of veterans whose deaths or permanent total disabilities were service connected.

Q — Under what conditions can the Veterans Administration restore GI home loan benefits to a veteran?

A — VA can restore GI loan entitlement to veterans or service personnel whose loans have been repaid in full and the agency released from liability and whose properties were given up for what the agency describes as "compelling reasons."

Q — My husband, a World War II veteran, passed away recently. Is he eligible for a headstone?

A — Yes. Any deceased veteran whose last period of military service was terminated honorably is eligible for this benefit, which the Veterans Administration began administering in September, 1973.

Q — Will the Veterans Administration cut off my pension because an extra large dividend put me over the income limit this year?

A — No. If the income could not have been anticipated and was of a non-recurring nature, it will have no effect on your pension.

Q — I suffered a service connected disability in Vietnam, and as a result, I wear braces on both legs. Does this make me eligible for an annual $150 clothing allowance from the Veterans Administration?

A — Probably yes. This allowance is available to service disabled veterans whose prosthetic and orthopedic devices tend to wear out or tear their clothing. However, you must apply to your VA regional office for it.

Q — The Veterans Administration started paying me $220 monthly under its dependents' educational assistance program while I was single. Now that I'm married, will my benefits be increased?

A — No. The law does not provide for additional assistance because of dependents of participants in this program.

Q — I was discharged from service June 15, 1968, and would like to enter on-the-job training. What's the time frame?

A — Veterans discharged after Jan. 31, 1955, have eight years from date of last separation or until Aug. 30, 1975, whichever is later, to use flight, farm cooperative and on-the-job training benefits provided by the Veterans Administration.

Q — I'm a Vietnam-era veteran. My employer is willing to set up an on-the-job training program for me. How does my employer go about getting approval so I can draw GI Bill benefits during training?

A — Both you and your employer should contact the nearest VA office for complete information and assistance.

Q — Can the Veterans Administration still guarantee GI home loans for widows based on deaths of their husbands in service in 1948?

A — Yes. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 restored unused, expired loan benefits to veterans and unmarried widows of World War II and later periods.

Q — I live in a state which has no burial space for veterans in its national cemetery. Will the Veterans Administration pay anything toward costs of burial plots in private cemeteries for such veterans?

A — Yes. Under Public Law 93-43 enacted in June, 1973, VA pays up to $150 in plot and interment costs of veterans not buried in national cemeteries.

Q — Under what conditions could the wife and children of a veteran receive educational assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A — When the agency has rated the veteran totally and permanently disabled from service connected causes.

Rice... world traveler

Not only is rice a staple food in many countries, but it is also one of the oldest, dating back in recorded history to 2800 B.C. in China. (And some say that it was eaten in India about 3000 B.C.) Since that time, rice has traveled to many countries, gaining acceptance wherever it was eaten. In the traditional rice-eating countries, the people like it as ... hot cooked rice ... with or without a sauced entree served on top.

In Europe and later on in the United States, the versatility of rice was further developed. For not only can rice be served under any number of saucy dishes, it can also be stirred with many other ingredients for a casserole, soup, salad, or dessert.

As rice traveled around the globe and passed through thousands of years of use, it naturally was adapted to various national tastes. A complete rice recipe book would have to cover 5,000 years! The Rice Council has researched ethnic and foreign books to compile the broadest collection of national and international rice recipes available. From the collection ... four recipes ... from Italy, China, Spain, and France. They have been adapted to feature ingredients readily available in this country.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 pound lean ground beef | 1 can (8 oz.) whole kernel corn, drained |
| 1 cup each chopped onions and green peppers | 2 1/2 teaspoons salt |
| 1 cup uncooked rice | 1 teaspoon oregano |
| 4 cups (about 1 lb.) zucchini, cut in 1/2 inch slices | 1/2 teaspoon basil |
| 2 cups beef broth | 1/4 teaspoon each garlic powder and pepper |
| 1 can (14 1/2 oz.) tomatoes | 1 cup grated Mozzarella cheese |

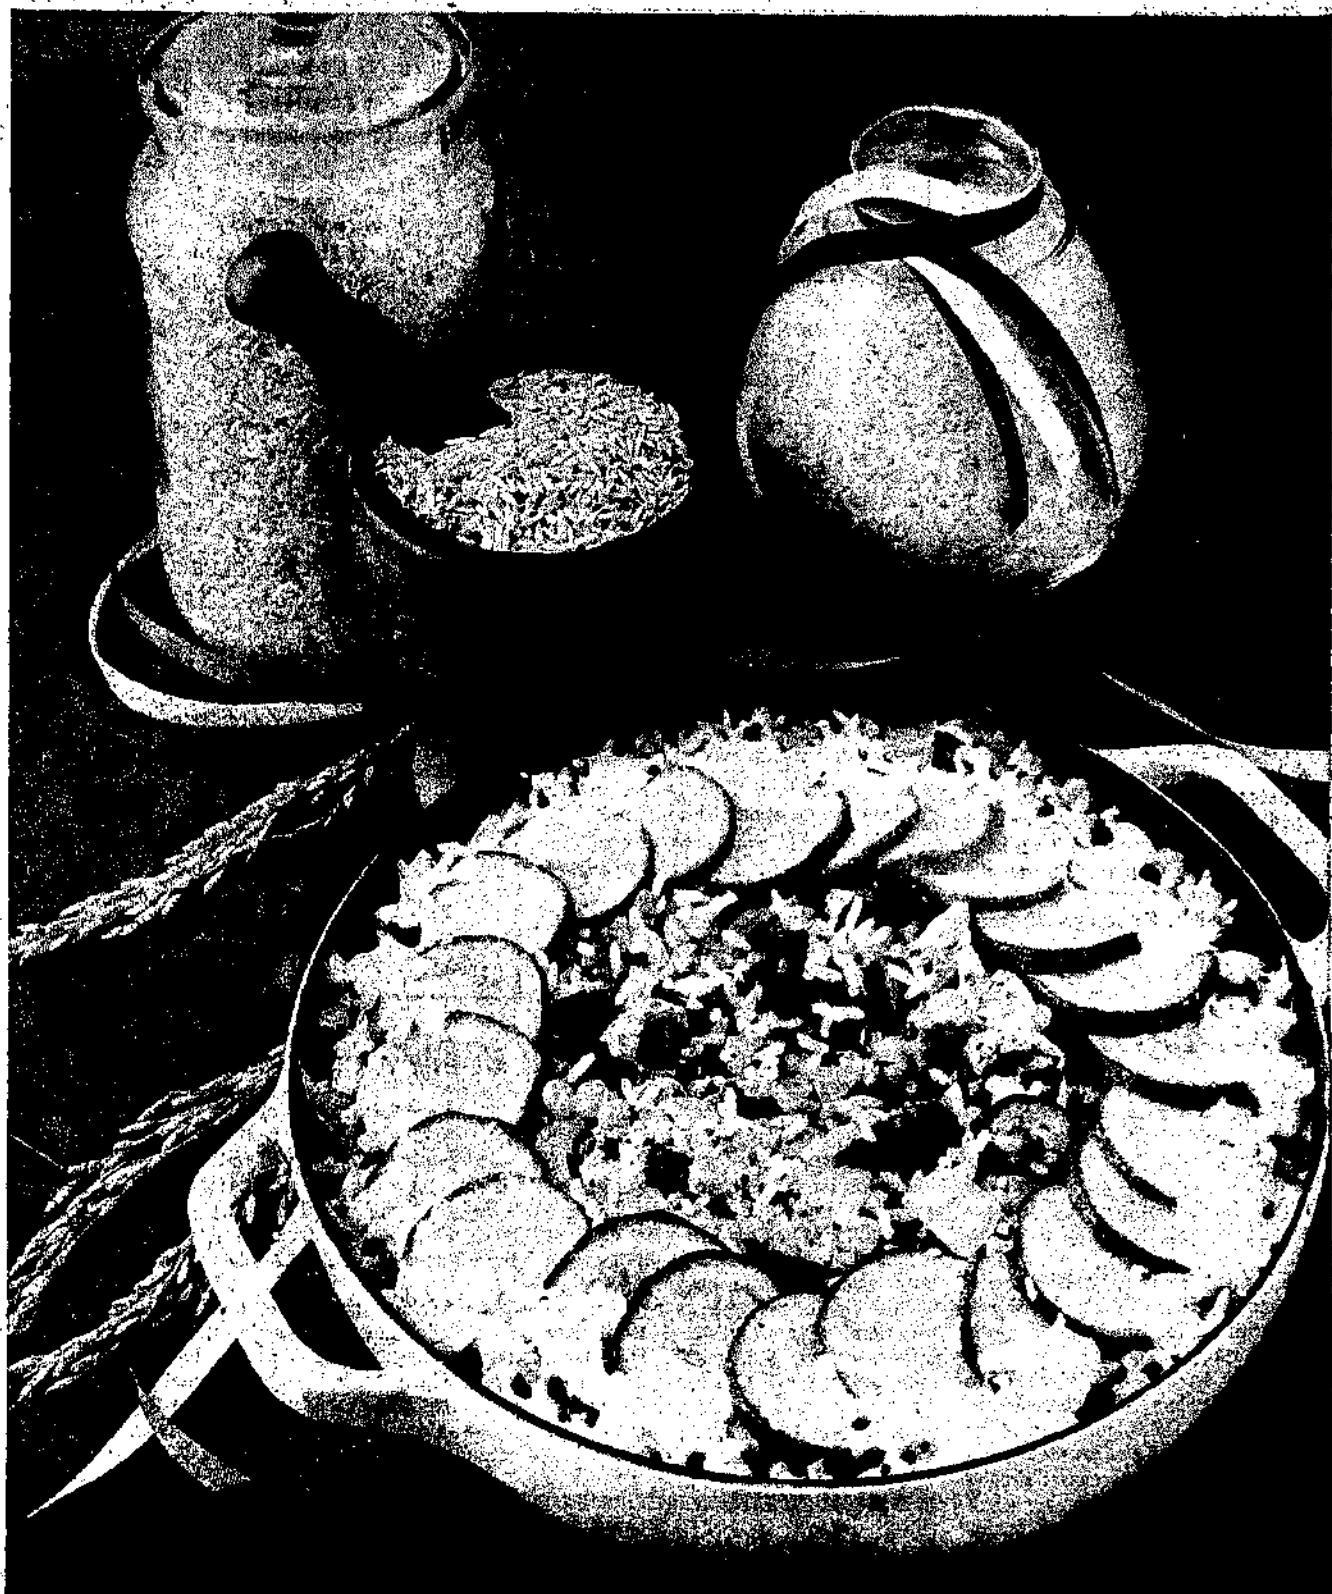

Saute ground meat, onions, and green peppers until meat loses its red appearance. Stir in rice and zucchini. Add broth, tomatoes, corn, seasonings and cheese. Bring to a boil. Stir well, cover, reduce the heat, and simmer 25 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Adjust seasonings, if necessary. Makes 8 servings.

For Party Risotto Milanese (as pictured), set aside about 1 cup of the zucchini. After spooning ingredients into casserole, cut the reserved zucchini in half (making thinner slices) and arrange on top of casserole. Cover and simmer as above. If desired, sprinkle with additional cheese.

- | | |
|--|-----------------------------------|
| 1 clove garlic, crushed | 1 teaspoon paprika |
| 2 tablespoons chopped parslev | 1/2 cup olive oil |
| 1/2 cup orange juice | 2 tablespoons butter or margarine |
| 3 boned chicken breasts (about 1 1/2 lbs.) cut in half | 1 cup chicken broth |
| 1/2 cup flour | 1/2 cup dry sherry |
| 2 teaspoons salt | 1/4 cup seedless raisins |
| 1/4 teaspoon pepper | 1 cup sliced stuffed olives |
| | 3 cups hot cooked rice |

Combine garlic, parslev, and orange juice. Pour over chicken, marinate 1 hour. Remove chicken from marinade. Reserve marinade. Dry chicken, dredge with flour seasoned with 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, and paprika. Brown in olive oil on each side until golden. Remove chicken from pan. Drain off oil. Using same skillet, blend butter and 1/2 tablespoon of the remaining seasoned flour. Stir in broth, sherry, marinade, raisins, olives, and rest of the salt. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth. Return chicken to pan. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

|--|
| 4 teaspoons cornstarch |
| 2 tablespoons soy sauce |
| 2 teaspoons minced ginger or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger |
| 2 cloves garlic, minced |
| 1/4 teaspoon pepper |
| 3 tablespoons vegetable oil |
| 2 whole chicken breasts (about 1 lb.) skinned, boned, and cut in thin strips |
| 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms |
| 1 teaspoon sugar |
| 1 teaspoon salt |
| 1 cup diagonally sliced celery, cut 1/4 inch thick |
| 1/2 cup sliced onion |
| 1 package (6 oz.) frozen (or 2 cups fresh) snow peas |
| 3 cups hot cooked rice |

Combine 1 tablespoon cornstarch, soy sauce, ginger, garlic, pepper, and 1 tablespoon oil. Pour over chicken and let stand 10 minutes. Drain mushrooms; reserve liquid, and add enough water to make 1/2 cup. Stir in remaining cornstarch, sugar, and salt. Saute chicken in remaining oil about 1 minute, stirring constantly. (Do not let chicken brown). Add celery, onions, snow peas, and mushrooms. Cook about 2 minutes. Stir in reserved liquid; heat about 1 minute until sauce is slightly thickened. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN-GREEN BEAN MORNAV FROM FRANCE:

|---|
| 2 tablespoons flour |
| 1 1/2 teaspoons salt |
| 1 teaspoon onion powder |
| 1/4 teaspoon each nutmeg and pepper |
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted |
| 1 cup chicken broth |
| 1 cup milk |
| 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten |
| 1 cup grated Swiss cheese |
| 1 can (16 oz.) cut green beans, drained |
| 2 cups cooked chicken (leave in large pieces) |
| 3 cups cooked rice |
| 1/4 cup diced pimientos |
| 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese |

Blend flour and seasonings into butter. Add broth and milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Spoon a little sauce into the egg; return all to the sauce. Stir in cheese and cook until cheese melts. Add green beans, chicken, rice, and pimientos. Mix well. Turn into a greased shallow 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees to 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Orange, pineapple and rice highlight this chicken dish

Simple but showy is the best way to describe this chicken recipe which, with mounds of steamed rice, offers a one-dish meal that may be prepared either in or outdoors.

Here is my version of a basic recipe provided by a reader from Carthage, Mo., who observes that chicken prepared this way is "man pleasing and besides it makes people feel you've really done something special when preparation is very easy."

To serve four, select a frying chicken of about 3 pounds or a little more and cut into serving pieces, including giblets. In a large skillet heat 1/2 cup cooking oil and brown lightly a medium-sized onion, chopped fine.

After chicken pieces have been washed and patted dry, coat with a mixture of flour, seasoned with salt and pepper. I use a brown paper sack for this.

When onion is browned, remove from oil with slotted spoon, and reserve. Brown the chicken pieces lightly in the oil which onion was cooked, keeping chicken warm until all is done. Drain any excess oil from skillet.

Put chicken and onion back into the skillet. Drain a 20-ounce can of pineapple chunks, saving juice. Peel and slice 3 oranges.

Add water to pineapple juice to make 2 cups and pour over chicken. Cover and simmer for about 30 minutes. Turn over chicken pieces, add pineapple chunks and orange slices. Cover and simmer for another 30 minutes. Serve over steamed rice.

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

IF YOU DON'T have a special rice cooker, use a heavy saucepan with tight-fitting cover for steamed rice. In it put 2 cups cold water, 1 cup rice, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon butter. Bring quickly to a boil, then reduce heat so rice just simmers. Cover tightly and cook 15 minutes. Uncover and let stand 5 minutes until rice is dry and fluffy. Toss with a fork. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

For a moist, Oriental type rice, wash and drain 1 cup rice and place in a deep heavy kettle with 3 cups cold water. Bring to boil and let boil for 5 minutes. Reduce heat so rice simmers, cover and cook 20 minutes. Remove from heat and let rice stand covered for 20 minutes more when it will be ready to serve to 6.

With four exceptions food prices remained generally stable from a week ago. Pork chops averaged the largest decline of 36 cents per pound, according to a Herald price survey on Monday. Grade A large eggs decreased 13 cents a dozen and whole fryers were down four cents.

Lettuce accounted for the only significant increase as the average rose 12 cents.

Frozen orange juice concentrate declined two cents.

Recorded food prices are based on averages obtained from four area food stores on Monday of each week.

Learn about versatile lamb

Lamb was once a seasonal meat — served chiefly in the spring. Now it is as versatile as the seasons. Lamb is rich in essential body-building protein, in iron, and in the B vitamins — niacin, thiamin and riboflavin. Lamb liver and kidneys are especially good sources of these nutrients.

Lamb is meat from young sheep usually less than one year old. It's pinkish red in color with white, brittle fat and the bones are porous and reddish.

How to buy it: Learn to identify the cuts; neck, rib, loin, shoulder, sirloin, fore Shank, breast and leg. Then there are other lamb cuts, boneless stew lamb (from any part of the carcass); ground lamb, lamb cushion shoulder, leg steak or saratoga chops. Variety meats, brains (soft, tender and delicate), heart (firm, but less tender variety — needs longer cooking), kidneys, liver, sweetbreads (white, soft and delicate flavor) and tongue (usually sold cooked, ready to serve).

Fresh lamb can be stored at refrigerator temperatures between 35 and 40 degrees or at lower temperatures in the meat compartments of some refrigerators. It should be loosely wrapped. Prepackaged fresh lamb may usually be refrigerated in the original wrapper if it is to be used within one or two days. Lamb variety meats, ground lamb and stew lamb are highly perishable and cannot be stored as long as other lamb cuts.

Lamb gravy and broth are highly perishable and should be cooled quickly, refrigerated, and used within one or two days.

Lamb should be cooked at low to moderate temperatures. Slow cooking makes it more tender, juicy and flavorful.

Lamb is usually preferred medium to well done with a grayish-tan interior and a tinge of pink. Well-done lamb is grayish tan with no trace of pink. A meat thermometer is the best way to check and the center of the roast should register 180 degrees; medium lamb has an internal temperature of 170 degrees.

Thawed lamb can be cooked the same as fresh lamb. But thaw meats in the refrigerator, since thawing meat or meat combination dishes at room temperature may permit dangerous bacterial growth.

What kind of seasonings should you use with lamb's natural flavor? Basil, bay leaves, celery, dill, garlic, marjoram, mint, onion, parsley, oregano, rosemary, savory, tarragon and thyme. Brown the meat first and then sprinkle seasonings on.

Energy conservation

At an electric range, always remember: you can save energy by using the lowest heat setting that will do the job.

Before opening the refrigerator door, know what you're looking for. Standing there with the door wide open runs up the electric bill and wastes lots of energy.

The trick to conserving energy with your refrigerator-freezer is in remembering one thing: it doesn't cool by blowing cold air in. It cools by taking heated air out. Opening the refrigerator door as few times as possible keeps heated air from getting inside.

Freezer to oven party meatballs

Everyone is on the search for do-ahead foods. Meatball lovers will be happy to know that a quantity of party meatballs will freeze well. Store in oven cooking bags and cook in the same bag in a roasting pan or heavy oven casserole as needed. If serving is delayed, hold the meatballs in the bag to keep them from drying out. Meatballs will keep safely in freezer storage in the plastic bags. For longer storage, overwrap them with heavy duty aluminum foil and tag with day of storage.

MAKE-AHEAD MEATBALLS

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon sage
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 4 eggs, beaten
- 4 slices soft bread, broken in small pieces
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 package (1 1/2 ounces) sauce mix
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce

Combine ground beef, onion, salt, pepper, sage and dry mustard. Mix eggs, bread and Worcestershire sauce together. Add to beef mixture. Shape 1 tablespoon of meat mixture into ball. Place in plastic oven cooking bag and continue with remaining mixture. Combine spaghetti sauce mix, water and tomato sauce. Pour over meatballs. Close bag with twist tie. Freeze. For prolonged storage, overwrap with heavy duty aluminum foil. When ready to cook, remove bag from freezer and preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place in oven bag in two-inch deep roasting pan. Make six half-inch slits in top of bag. Cook for one hour. Makes 8 dozen meatballs.

Mrs. Raymond Kessell

She budgets time but not flavor

by LOIS SEILER

Mrs. Raymond Kessell has an almost endless source of energy for managing her Schaumburg home and a wide variety of outside interests. Jeanne Kessell's current activities include collecting cookbooks, experimenting with new recipes, selling cars for Woodfield Mazda, and organizational work for the Service League of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North, of which she is founder and president.

Though Jeanne's community activities consume a great deal of time, she doesn't neglect meal planning. Fortunately her job is only a five-minute drive from home. So she has time to prepare a variety of meals for her husband and daughter Lisa, 13. And if the pace becomes too hectic, Ray helps out since he, too, enjoys cooking, said Jeanne.

The Kessells enjoy ethnic dishes; one favorite being Chicken Asopoa, a Puerto Rican chicken stew.

Jeanne is partial to one-dish meals such as this stew which combines chicken, rice, asparagus spears, peas, pimiento and stuffed olives all baked in chicken broth in a deep casserole. Colorful as well as tasty, this main dish needs only be accompanied by tossed green salad, French bread and white wine.

RAGOUT OF Beef with Celery and Walnuts is another of Jeanne's one-dish specialties. Beef cubes and onions are baked in herb-seasoned beef stock and wine. Sautéed celery, orange rind and walnuts top this casserole.

This unique combination of ingredients dresses up inexpensive cuts of meat such as boneless short ribs, although Jeanne prefers using chuck steak. Because there is lots of gravy, Jeanne recommends serving the ragout with noodles, rice, or mashed potatoes. Any vegetable and a tossed green salad will complete the menu.

The family's favorite breakfast features Oven Pancake which is somewhat similar to a solid baked custard.

The batter, which includes browned bacon and drippings, rises like a soufflé then drops when removed from the oven. Jeanne cuts the "pancake" into wedges to serve with jelly and toast.

CHICKEN ASOPOA (Puerto Rican Chicken Stew)

- 1 chicken, 2½ to 3 pounds, cut up for frying
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 quart chicken broth
- 1 4-ounce can pimientos, cut in large pieces
- 1 cup yellow or white rice
- 1 package frozen asparagus spears
- 1 package frozen peas
- 1 small jar green olives, stuffed

Sauté chicken briefly until browned on both sides in butter. Transfer to a deep dish casserole. Add all remaining ingredients. Cover and bake 45 minutes at 325 degrees until tender, or cook over low heat on top of stove until chicken is tender and rice is done. Serves 4 to 6 generously.

RAGOUT OF BEEF WITH CELERY AND WALNUTS

- 1½ pounds chuck steak, cut in 2-inch cubes
- 2 tablespoons bacon fat or drippings
- 12 small onions, peeled
- 1 tablespoon flour
- ½ cup red wine
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- Pinch of basil
- Pinch of thyme
- Salt and pepper
- 2½ cups beef stock or bouillon
- 4 to 5 ribs of celery
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ cup walnut halves

Peeled rind of ½ orange Heat fat in heavy Dutch oven or casserole. Sauté beef until brown. Remove meat and sauté onions until golden. Pour off all excess fat except one tablespoon. Stir in flour and wine. Return meat to pan and add herbs. Barely cover with stock. Bring to a boil, cover and reduce heat. Simmer for two hours, adding more wine if needed.

Cut celery in diagonal slices. Sauté celery and walnuts with pinch of salt in one tablespoon butter until lightly cooked and celery is still crisp.

Cut orange rind into very thin strips. Blanch in boiling water for five minutes. Put in cold water to cool and rinse. Drain.

Remove meat from Dutch oven and place in casserole or serving platter. Arrange celery, walnuts and orange rind on top. Serve immediately. Accompany with rice, noodles, or mashed potatoes. Serves 4 generously.

OVEN PANCAKE

- 3 strips bacon, diced
- 1 cup flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 2 cups milk

In a large, heavy oven-proof skillet, sauté bacon until crisp. Do not pour off drippings.

Sift flour; measure and sift again with sugar and salt.

Beat eggs lightly with milk. Stir into dry ingredients until smooth. Pour batter over bacon and drippings in skillet. Place in oven and bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes.

Remove from oven and cut in wedges. Serve with jellies and toast. Serves 4 amply.

Tossed green salad need not be ordinary

A tossed green salad arouses the appetite, complements a rich entree and provides valuable vitamins and minerals. It is far from commonplace on any menu.

Proper care and handling of greens can make the difference between "just" a tossed salad and a great one. Salad ingredients prepared long in advance suffer a loss of nutritive value and arrive at the table looking discouragingly limp. To serve one of the finest treats on the table, take care to have all of the ingredients as fresh as possible. In washing greens, be sure not to bruise them. Be sure, too, that they are well chilled, crisp and, especially, dry.

To insure crispness, dry the greens after washing. Let them drip in a colander, then wrap lightly in a soft absorbent towel until dry. Chill in the refrigerator until greens are dry, crisp and ready to use.

It's preferable to tear rather than cut salad greens, except iceberg lettuce, which can be sliced or shredded. Place the greens in a bowl and give them a preliminary light coating of oil. About one tablespoon of salad oil will suffice for a medium-sized head of lettuce. Toss by lifting the leaves gently with a large fork and spoon until each leaf is completely coated. This improves the salad

by Fran Heckart

from the standpoint of nutrition as well as that of gastronomy.

Follow the initial "oiling" with more oil, vinegar and further tossing. Classic proportions are three to one. Vinegar and salt release juices and impair vitamin content so add them as close to serving time as possible.

Additional dressings, condiments and trimmings may be added after oil and vinegar (or lemon juice) to produce an endless variety in flavor.

Sliced hard-cooked eggs, radishes, chopped olives, nut meats, pimiento, green pepper, sardines, slivered cheese, celery or onions may be added to the greens for additional flavor.

It is unwise to add cut-up tomatoes to a tossed salad as their juices thin the dressing. Dress them separately and use for garnishing the salad bowl.

Buffalo meat in area stores

Buffalo meat from a domestically grown herd will be available beginning today in area National supermarkets. This is the first time the product has been marketed in this area and will be available only while supplies last.

Normally a seasonal item, buffalo meat is usually available only during autumn months in the West. But a larger supply this year accounts for the introduction into the Midwestern market, according to the National Buffalo Assn.

In taste the meat is similar to beef but with a fuller, heartier flavor. It is deeper red than beef and, according to the Buffalo Assn., it is higher in protein and lower in cholesterol.

Because of its low fat content and differing texture as compared to beef, National advises that slightly different cooking techniques be followed.

The meat should never be overcooked, wrapped in foil, covered with a lid while roasting or roasted at high temperatures. Whether oven or pot roasted, cuts should be cooked slowly at low temperatures to retain natural juices and assure tenderness.

Prices are only slightly higher than beef. National is selling lean buffalo ground meat for $1.49 a pound; stewing meat, $1.59; roasts, $1.79; and steaks, $1.88. Recipes and cooking instructions will be available at meat counters.

Once considered a vanishing species, the buffalo survived through the efforts of ranchers who began to raise them domestically about 1900 and by conservationists who campaigned for federal and state buffalo preserves.

Today it is estimated there are 25,000 buffalo on private ranches; 5,000 on federal and state preserves and another 15,000 on protected lands in Canada.

In order to protect buffalo on preserves from over grazing, herds have been periodically culled and the meat sold according to the Buffalo Assn. Today, they maintain, most buffalo meat comes from domestically raised animals grown specifically for marketing.

National's buffalo supply comes from a domestic herd in Wyoming.

New twist for casserole

Casseroles can be whatever you want them to be; elegant for company, nutritious for growing children and thrifty to please the family budget.

No two casseroles are ever the same; there is no end to the personal touches you can add. For special interest try macaroni with an unusual shape. Corn Medley Casserole boasts corkscrew macaroni, which is sometimes called rotini or tortiglioni.

Most of the ingredients of Corn Medley Casserole are standbys from the pantry. Loaded with nutrition... foods from all of the Basic Four food groups are included to give you a well balanced meal. Juicy meat loaf mixture is teamed with tender kernels of golden corn, zesty green pepper and eye catching macaroni in a cheesy - tomatoey sauce which is sure to please! Best of all, Corn Medley Casserole won't bruise your food budget. Complete the budget stretching meal with a salad of freshly tossed greens. For dessert, pop a pan of gingerbread made from a mix in the oven to bake along with the casserole.

CORN MEDLEY CASSEROLE

- 1 cup uncooked corkscrew macaroni
- 1 pound meat loaf mixture
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 10 1/2-oz. can condensed tomato soup
- 1 8-oz. can tomato sauce

with cheese
5 drops hot pepper sauce
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup chopped onion
12 oz. frozen golden whole kernel corn, drained
3 slices American cheese, cut in halves or quarters diagonally

Cook macaroni according to package directions; rinse and drain. Brown meat loaf mixture in large skillet. Reduce heat; add salt, pepper, soup, tomato sauce and hot pepper sauce. Stir in macaroni, green pepper, onion and corn. Turn into a 2-quart casserole. Arrange cheese slices decoratively on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Saturday night cabbage special

Cabbage stuffed with a ham, rice and pea mixture and topped with a grape sauce makes an interesting dish to prepare for a Saturday night meal. Although this recipe calls for Savoy cabbage, other cabbages may be used as they are in season. Core and fill with the ham mixture and cook as directed.

STUFFED CABBAGE

- 1 medium Savoy cabbage
- 1/2 pound baked or boiled ham, minced
- 1 1/2 cups cooked rice
- 3 slices bread soaked in 1/4 cup milk
- 1 pound fresh peas, shelled
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 cloves garlic, minced (optional)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 8 teaspoon pepper

Remove coarse outer leaves from cabbage, do not discard. Soak cabbage for 1 hour in cold water. Blanch cabbage in boiling water for 10 minutes until leaves separate easily. Drain. Finely chop outer leaves and combine with ham, rice, bread, peas, cheese, egg, garlic, salt and pepper. Gently spread leaves exposing core, mound stuffing around core and between leaves. Reshape cabbage and tie securely in triple layer of cheesecloth. Simmer in triple layer of cheesecloth, for 35 minutes or until cabbage is tender. Meanwhile, make sauce, below. Remove cheesecloth and serve with sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Great Grape Sauce: In a small saucepan, combine 1 cup tomato sauce, 1/2 cup concord grape jelly, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper, 1 tablespoon vinegar and 1 teaspoon mustard. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Easy noodle kugel

A quickie noodle kugel combines curly-edged pasta, applesauce, raisins and spice for a delicious dessert. Topped with cream or ice cream, it is a taste cousin to the kugels which are popular in the Slavic countries, Germany and Holland but takes far less time to prepare.

NOODLE KUGEL

- 1/2 pound broad noodles or pasta
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2 jars (1 pound each) applesauce
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup California seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- Bread crumbs (optional)
- Thick cream or ice cream

Cook noodles or pasta in plenty of boiling salted water until tender. Butter a shallow baking dish and spoon half of the applesauce over bottom. Toss noodles with eggs, sugar, spice, raisins, nuts and remaining applesauce. Add to dish. Top with bread crumbs. Bake at 400 degrees 45 minutes or until top noodles are crisp and lightly browned. Serve with cream or ice cream. Makes 8 servings.

Onions in good supply

A large supply of spring onions is now available at supermarkets, in contrast to last year's shortage. Most of the nation's onion supply originates in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas during April. Adverse weather conditions last year caused a shortage of onions, but excellent growing conditions this season have given Rio Grande producers the best yield in several years.

Onions can be used to add extra flavor to a wide range of meat and vegetable dishes. They may be boiled, baked or roasted and used in soups, stew and with roasts. It's worth remembering, too, that onions are low in calories.

When buying fresh onions, look for a firm, dry product. The individual onion should be covered with a papery outer scale and be reasonably free from green sunburn spots and blemishes. Onions with wet or soft necks should be bypassed because they are immature or decayed. Other warning signs are thick, hollow or woody centers in the neck, and fresh green sprouts on the onion.

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

GARDEN-LIKE AREA of the Raymond Rice home reflects many family interests. Casual rattan complements antiques and family heirlooms. Ceramic temple stools from Italy add Oriental accents. Not only is the elevator a step-saver, it is reflective of Raymond's career as a French teacher. Mrs. Rice prefers a bare-floor look but cautions that you must have "elegant" floors for this particular treatment which she uses throughout the house.

How Suburbia Lives

Rice home teams elegance, practicality

By FRAN HECKART

"Whenever and wherever you see beauty and acknowledge it, it is yours forever. Keep your eyes and thought open."

This is the philosophy of interior designer Betty Rice, a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago. "It's all there," she said in a recent interview, "but you do have to open your thought and most importantly, acknowledge its presence."

It is not surprising that the Rice home in Arlington Heights is a reflection of this philosophy. Her home blends her interpretations of beauty and elegance, and masks the underlying practicality of the decor. To Mrs. Rice, her husband, Raymond, and son, Richard, the home is an expression of "beauty, integrity and joy."

First glimpse of the home Mrs. Rice designed (her husband builds) lends the impression of open, free-flowing space. Objects d'art, candles, flowers, windows and mirrors contribute to a garden-like effect. Colors, predominately shades of pink, are in keeping with the May day atmosphere of the rooms.

But one would never guess there are actually about 70 mirrors in the living area alone. Nor is it obvious that the deep-shag white area rug is washable. Or, the cover on the rattan chaise lounge was from a recycled bedspread, the chair seat covers made from "velvet-like" bath towels.

THESE AND other practical decorator tips were offered by Betty as she led her adult education interior design class through her home. Classroom techniques were transformed into the reality of a home environment.

The free-flowing effect is not happenstance. The rooms were designed that way. There is no set living, dining or family room in the Rice home. Betty originally wanted an Oriental home but analysis of her feelings revealed that she did not want to limit herself to a particular style.

"It was the free flowing spaces characteristic of Oriental homes which intrigued me," she recalled. "So I simply deleted the walls and did not restrict myself to a particular period. I wanted to be able to enjoy the beauty of the total house and wanted that beauty to be accessible, even if only visually."

It's very important to plan, according to Betty. As a professional she knows what works. There's a place and a reason for everything in her home.

FOR EXAMPLE, consider a basic element like lighting. With an abundance of windows, the natural light is perfect for daylight hours. But Betty creates a soft glowing effect for night time with candles and small, perfectly placed lamps. And there's not one light switch in the house which is not equipped with a dimmer system. All this is important, according to Betty, for creating the intended mood.

Decorating is not chance or guesswork. "Work on the premise that there's no limit," she advises. "Go with the idea of completion. Always check closets, basements and attics. You always have everything for the total effect but you must learn to recognize it."

Betty feels that a particular style or type of furnishing is irrelevant. The ultimate feeling is more important.

Put money into case goods — wooden and metal furniture rather than upholstered, she suggested. The wearability and versatility makes it much more practical.

HOWEVER, if you do choose upholstered pieces there are three things that will double the life: Loose cushions which can be reversed, arm caps and Scotchguard treatments.

More important than basic furnishings is the personality which Betty projects into her decor. It's the feeling of a woman who loves and appreciates art and music, has close family relationships, absolutely "adores tea parties," and finds beauty in everything around her.

Family antiques and heirlooms have special meaning in Betty's home. Landscape oils done by her uncle are just as important to her as rare antiques. A garage sale bench can be found next to a marble top table. A church window from Dubuque, Iowa "satisfied her soul for Tiffany."

Whether from France or a barn in Wisconsin, this designer's accessories are chosen to reflect her interpretation of beauty.

"However," cautions Mrs. Rice, "Don't let your possessions dictate you. Go after the effect."

THE IMPORTANT element is how you use a piece and the thought that you use, she said. It's natural to care about furnishings but never forget that you own them. They can never own you, stressed Mrs. Rice.

Regardless of the lavish appearance, Betty feels that her home is not a "show place." It's beautiful to her and not without purpose. The home stands as an example of one of Betty's pet theories — nothing has to be ugly to be practical.

AN INEXPENSIVE, inviting treatment with floral sheets is the way Betty Rice describes the master bedroom. Headboard is made from a pierced, carved screen. A soft light behind the screen highlights the design.

A GLISTENING CHANDELIER and arched mirrors afford a splendid effect in the bathroom of the Raymond Rice home in Arlington Heights. Indoor and outdoor lights are used to produce a soft, glowing effect.

BETTY RICE CALLS this recent addition to her house to obsolete what you already have," she said. Pink sheers and outdoor lights accent this area.

An Arlington Heights couple, Mary Taylor and Frank Lentine, are engaged and planning a fall wedding. Their news comes from Mary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Taylor. Frank's are the Anthony Lentines.

The young couple will graduate from the University of Illinois in May. Frank is earning his master's in physics at that time. He has a bachelor's degree in engineering physics also from the U of I.

Mary graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary High School in '70 and Frank from Arlington High in '68. She spent two years at Illinois State University before transferring to the U of I.

A June 8 wedding is planned by Deborah Lynn DeLong of Mahomet, Ill., and Peter Robert Metz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Metz of 421 N. Carlyle Place, Arlington Heights, according to news from her parents, the Robert C. DeLongs.

Deborah will graduate in May from the University of Illinois with a degree in marketing. She is affiliated with Kappa Gamma Sorority.

Peter, a '73 graduate of the U of I in advertising, is with Leo Burnett Advertising Agency, Chicago. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Lambda Fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Swanson of Arlington Heights, former Des Plaines residents, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cherie, to Gil W. Kitchen of Rolling Meadows. He is the son of Max Kitchen of Grand Rapids, Mich., and the late Mrs. Mildred Kitchen.

The wedding is planned for June.

A graduate of Maun West High School and Drake University, Cherie teaches in Dist. 62, Des Plaines. Her fiancé, a graduate of West Shore College, Grand Rapids, is an engineer with Sperry Rand Corp.

The engagement of Patricia Ann Spilthoff to Jack A. Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Myers of Carthage, Ill., is announced by her parents, the Robert Spilthoffs of Arlington Heights.

The couple will marry on Oct. 26. Pat is an editorial assistant for Reinhold Publishing Corp., since graduating last year from Northern Illinois University. Before that she attended Prospect High School. Her fiancé is a '73 graduate of the University of Illinois, where he was affiliated with Alpha Kappa Lambda Fraternity, and is now an auditor for Lake Shore National Bank.

Modern pilot lights use little fuel

Dear Dorothy: Gasoline may be back, but the experts still talk about the energy crisis. Why don't they recommend turning off the pilot lights on gas ranges? Seems to me there's an awful lot of waste energy being burnt off around the country. — Georgia Hubbard Afraid you've got the wrong range, Georgia. Actually, almost all modern ranges have mini-pilots (hypodermic type) and use very little fuel. What is important about the pilots is the safety feature. Gas can't seep into a home where the pilots are going properly. What's most wasteful about ranges is using too high a flame. When you see flames going around the sides of a utensil, then the right size pan isn't being used or there's too much heat being employed. For safety's sake, let the pilots be.

Dear Dorothy: My nylon curtains are so wrinkled I'm ready to throw them away unless you can help. Thanks — Brenda McLaughlin

Throw them away — never! I've heard

by Dorothy Ritz

of three ways which might work for you. One is to run them over wool blankets. Another is to wring out a bath towel and iron the curtain over it. And the third way is to spray lightly with liquid starch and press with a warm iron. Hope one of these does it for you.

Dear Dorothy: Sprinkling plastic garbage bags with a pine-scented disinfectant will also keep the dogs away I find, too, that it keeps the dogs away from the shrubs at our entry without any detriment to the plants. I've watched dogs give our bushes a wide berth and go over to the other side of the street. — Betty E.

Tip to neophyte cooks: Don't overcook a dish that is to be frozen. It will finish cooking when it's reheated.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Shop at the farmer's market

Start saving your shopping bags and egg cartons, is the suggestion from Hoffman Estates Woman's Club which will be holding an open air farmer's market Saturday, April 27.

The market, featuring fresh fruits, vegetables, mushrooms and eggs, will be held on the grounds of the Woman's Club Community Center, 161 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Prices on everything, including goods, will be lower than retail, according to A. J. White and Carol Jacobson, who are co-chairing the project.

Cookies, candies and name brand tents will also be offered at low prices, and shoppers may tour the newly refurbished community center which includes meeting rooms, kitchen and office space rentals.

In case of rain the market will be held Sunday, April 28.

New FTC policies open business to the public

With cries of "executive privilege!" veiling truckloads of documents in Washington these days, it is refreshing to learn that one agency, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), has issued new policies for opening up its business to the public.

FTC chairman Lewis Engman recently announced that:

- News releases will be issued at the outset announcing investigations that cover an entire industry or involve practices which pose substantial risks to public health or safety.

- An analysis of consent orders will be made available upon request. (Consent orders are agreements between the FTC and a company, in which the company, without admitting violation of the law, promises to stop a particular practice. They have been criticized by some observers as tailored to the convenience of the offending company.)

- A more expeditious method of handling requests for materials under the Freedom of Information Act will be instituted.

- Internal staff memoranda ordinarily will be disclosed to the public after a file has been closed for three years, and nearly all internal documents in closed files will be released after 10 years. (Internal memoranda is protected from disclosure by the Freedom of Information Act. The FTC is probably the first government agency to offer blanket disclosure of such documents.)

Engman has also ordered staff members in all FTC offices to keep records of all outside contacts relating to pending investigations or cases. These records will be made public when the case becomes public. The FTC commissioners have also each agreed to maintain such logs.

Golf league forming

Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club is forming a golf league to play Tuesday mornings this summer.

All interested area women are invited to an organizational meeting at the home of Mrs. Douglas Dallmer 393 Indian Hill, Wednesday, April 24, at 8 p.m. Golfers do not have to be club members to join the league.

Anniversary lunch

Rev. Dan Miller of Elk Grove Village, an ordained minister and businessman, will be speaker Thursday, April 25, at the first anniversary luncheon of Women Aglow in Christ.

The luncheon will be held at the Branded Steak House, Crystal Lake, with buffet service beginning at 11 a.m.

The group, formed last year, includes members from the northwest suburbs.

Women interested in attending the luncheon may call Marilyn Erzberger, 381-5506.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

EASTER POSTSCRIPT: Consumers who purchased Brach's chocolate-covered creme eggs this year may have noticed how much smaller they are now than they used to be. But that's not the worst of it.

The packaging seems to have remained the same, thus giving the illusion of a bigger chocolate egg. The foil paper was about twice the size needed to wrap the "shrunk" eggs, and it was wrapped loosely over each egg, on a too-big piece of cardboard, disguising a lot of empty space inside.

In contrast, Fanny Farmer put out a chocolate-covered egg that was tightly wrapped in an appropriately sized piece of foil, thus presenting to the consumer an accurate indication of the true size of the candy.

Hopefully, Brach's will not produce more of such deceptive packaging in honor of Mother's Day.

CREDIT INSURANCE: This column has learned that the Chicago office of the Federal Trade Commission is investigating three credit companies suspected of violating the Truth in Lending law with regard to credit life insurance.

Credit life insurance is sold along with loans as protection in case the debtor dies before the loan is paid off. It is strictly optional, and federal law requires that it be presented as such.

But it is apparently widespread practice for lending institutions to force credit insurance upon consumers by misrepresenting it as mandatory (see The Herald, Aug. 23, Sec. 5 p.1).

The FTC last year issued an order against Commercial Credit to stop that company's misrepresentation of credit insurance.

A rainbow over the snow

A rainbow of colors surrounded Vicki Granzin at the altar of St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, for her March 23 marriage to Robert McLaughlin of Edmonds, Wash.

Vicki and her four attendants made their own gowns for the wedding, which unfortunately took place in an unusual spring snowstorm. Outside the church it was a winter scene, but indoors the wedding party radiated a warm sunny setting.

The bride, daughter of the W. Granzins of 404 S. Emerson, Mount Prospect, made her dress of white polyester crepe with flocked nylon sleeves and bodice. She covered a cap in the same nylon and attached it to her bouffant veil.

Vicki also wore a string of pearls, a gift from the groom, and an heirloom bracelet from her maternal grandmother which had been worn by her mother and sister at their weddings.

The bridal bouquet was a nosegay of white roses, daisies, carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

HER MATRON of honor, Mrs. Ken Rosario of Chicago, wore a blue polyester crepe gown overlaid with a tiny daisy print, styled similar to the bride's. Mrs. Rosario carried a bouquet of blue daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

The three bridesmaids were Mrs. J. Hall III, sister of the bride, from Hoffman Estates; Barb Schneider, Mount Prospect; and Donna Burrow, the bride's cousin from Palatine.

One wore a yellow crepe gown made exactly like the matron of honor's, another wore pink and the other green. They matched their bouquets to their gowns.

Best man was Gary McLaughlin, the groom's brother. The bride's brothers, Gary and Bryan Granzin, and Ken Rosario, Chicago, were groomsmen. Each of the young men wore a shirt to match the color worn by the attendant he escorted.

TE GROOM is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. McLaughlin of Edmonds. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Bakken of Richland Center, Wis., were among the wedding guests, as was the bride's grandfather, J. P. Eich of Pompano Beach, Fla.

During the five o'clock nuptials, Pat Hauslein and Carol Floros, high school and Camp Fire friends of the bride, sang and played guitar music.

Afterwards there was a reception at the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn. The couple honeymooned at the Wagon Wheel in Rockton and are making their home in Lynnwood, Wash., while the groom attends Shoreline Community College nearby in Seattle.

Before her marriage Vicki worked for Diversey Chemicals, Des Plaines. She is a '70 graduate of Prospect High School.

Coldframe will hasten growing

Could you use a two-week jump on the growing season? Do you have seedlings stretching gawkily for a move outdoors, but the weather says, "no?" Would you like some homegrown lettuce about May 30th? Then consider a coldframe.

All you need is a couple of 2 by 12 boards of lumber, an old window frame with glass intact or a sheet of Vixqueen or some other six mil plastic and a husband handy with a hammer.

You don't need elaborate plans or complicated engineering. A coldframe doesn't have to be anything fancy. It is basically a bottomless box that uses the sun's heat to warm the soil inside.

LAST WEEK WE mentioned makeshift row greenhouse rigs, Baggie container make-does and bleach jugs as answers to getting an earlier start on the weather.

by Mary B. Good

Now I am inducing you to go one step farther and construct a simple rectangular garden box outdoors so you can now put out onions (from sets) beets, lettuce, radishes, start tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, cucumber and melon seeds for transplant later.

A coldframe can also be used to pot up begonias, dahlias, and caladiums, or be used to harden off greenhouse-grown plants, start root cuttings of choice shrubs or perennials.

The coldframe you make should be deep enough to provide enough space for a geranium in leaf for instance (two 2 by 12s horizontally). The top should slope so rain will run off. This means the back of the box should be a little higher than the front.

Use redwood or cedar or other rot-resistant wood. If you don't have it, be sure to use a wood preservative on the lumber. But don't use creosote as fumes are deadly to plants — even months later I know from personal experience — disaster with creosoted railroad tie retainers.

PLACE THE BOX in a sunny, southern exposure to get maximum sunshine. Watch ventilation, moisture and temperature. Put a thermometer in the cold framed and if the temp goes over 70 degrees, open the lid (particularly at noon). Close the lid at night. Below 45 degrees, delicate seedlings can be damaged.

Don't use fertilizer in the box. Seedlings cannot tolerate plant food. Use good garden loam, sand, vermiculite for the soil in the box. On extremely hot, unseasonable spring days, use a piece of Masonite as a sun filter over the top so the plants inside don't roast.

Next on the agenda

PALATINE JAYCEE WIVES

Mary Ann Hoffman will speak on "Bringing out the real you through your own fashion creations" at the meeting Thursday evening of Palatine Jaycee Wives. Election of officers will also be held at the 8 o'clock meeting which will be held in the home of Kathy Schaefer, 959 N. Williams.

EXTRA CARE CLUB

A talk on Silva Mind Control will be presented by Elliot Silber at Saturday's meeting of the Extra Care Club of United Air Lines. The pilots' wives have invited their husbands to the luncheon meeting which begins with cocktails at 12:30 in Dieterle's Restaurant, Elgin.

Taking reservations is Claudia Day, 697-7567.

ONES CLUB

"Poster Potpourri" designates the meeting Sunday night of the Ones Club, a group of single persons over 21 years of age. Members are asked to support Ones by making a poster. The meeting at the First Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion Streets, Des Plaines, begins at 7 p.m.

The following week the group has planned a hayride for Saturday night, April 27. Those planning to attend should meet at the church parking lot at 7 p.m. accompanied by a guitar wherever possible. Fee is $2.

FIFTH WHEELERS

Fifth Wheelers, an organization of formerly married men and women, will meet Sunday at 8 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church.

A fashion show for newcomers

Robin's Nest of Countryside Court, Mount Prospect will present a style show when Mount Prospect Newcomers Club meets Wednesday April 24, at 9:30 a.m. in St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Mount Prospect Spring and summer fashions, modeled by club members, will run the gamut from casual to formal.

Newcomers to the community are welcome. Further information is available from Mrs. William Stanley, 271-6892 or Mrs. Louis Hersh 398-1266.

Prolong manicure

Try this professional trick that will truly help prolong the life of your manicure. Remove a hairsbreadth of polish around the tip of each nail with a bit of cotton and polish remover. Be careful not to smear fresh polish with the wet cotton (NEA).

Court-watching program

All northwest suburban women are invited to learn more about traffic courts of the area, the court process, enforcement and prosecution, at an orientation meeting sponsored by the Illinois Conference of Women Leaders for Traffic Safety. The meeting takes place Friday from 9:30 a.m. till noon at Oehler's Funeral Home, Lee and Perry Streets, Des Plaines.

Details of Mission CATCH will be explained — Changing Attitudes Through Court Handling — a challenging pilot project of court surveillance in which women volunteers will work with the courts of their area to offer the best possible disposition of all traffic cases, especially those involving DWI (Driving While Intoxicated).

A PRESENTATION will be given by the Hon. Anton A. Smigiel, presiding judge, District Three, Circuit Court of Cook County, who will be accompanied by an associate judge and a state's attorney. Other speakers will be Captain William Gentile, commander, District Three, Illinois State Police, and a volunteer court observer from the League of Women Voters.

The Implied Consent Law is now in effect in Illinois. Cases being tried for DWI will be discussed at the meeting. The ICWLTS hopes to create citizen awareness and concern and to show women how they can help.

Those wishing further information may call Mrs. Elmer F. Anderson, 777-6110, or Mrs. Chester Novak, 827-4833.

Village plans meeting with Soo Line R.R.

The Village of Wheeling is hoping to solve its railroad woes at an upcoming meeting with representatives of the Soo Line R.R.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he will discuss three separate projects with the railroad, including the need for an additional railroad crossing between Hintz and Dundee roads.

The railroad tore out the old crossing behind Wickes, Inc. last year. Since that time, village trustees and commission members have been concerned about ways of crossing the tracks in emergencies.

CURRENTLY, there are no crossings between Dundee Road and Hintz Road. Although there is one fire station on each side of the tracks, officials are concerned about getting emergency vehicles into this industrial area in case of fire or other problems.

Village board members are now trying to get two railroad crossings in this area. Passolt said he will ask the Soo Line about replacing the old crossing behind Wickes and building a new crossing at Commercial Drive.

The board members suggested the crossing at Commercial Drive during a recent committee meeting called to consider a request to vacate the western portion of that street. Commercial Drive is currently developed only east of the tracks, although the western section has been dedicated to the village. A law firm has asked to purchase the property for a client.

Passolt said the Commercial Drive crossing is also important because it would provide a second exit from the industrial area east of the tracks north of Hintz Road.

"Our problem is really one of getting another exit from the industrial area there," the manager said. "It's a real chore for them to get out at Glenn Avenue at quitting time."

By crossing the tracks, workers in the

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

More to benefit from program

Jaycees hope to attract 200 to blood-donor drawing

Wheeling Jaycees are hoping that by expanding the coverage of the blood-donor program they will attract 200 persons to the Wheeling Community Blood Plan drawing this weekend. Currently, 50 persons have pledged to donate blood.

After this weekend, anyone who has donated blood to the program will provide blood insurance for their parents and their spouse's parents as long as they live in the continental United States. The donation will also help cover the blood needs of all Wheeling residents.

The Jaycees, however, have received only about 50 pledges for this weekend's drive, scheduled from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Wheeling High School library, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

To date, the blood plan has collected only about 140 of the 700 pints needed to continue the program. Residents have already used 14 pints of this blood.

THE PLAN IS geared to cover the blood needs of the entire Wheeling community by collecting 700 pints of blood each year. This figure represents about 4 per cent of the village population, the amount nationally estimated to cover all blood needs.

Jim Bronson, chairman of the program, said the blood plan will continue to cover the entire population as long as the amount of blood used does not exceed the amount donated. "Once we hit the break even point, we become a cooperative plan," he said. "Then you've got to give to get."

Since this weekend's drive is the last one until the summer, Bronson said he is hoping for a large turnout. "This one here is the end of it until summer time." Hopefully, we won't use all the blood before then.

He said there has been an increased use of the blood donated to the community plan. "People have got to be aware of it or they wouldn't be using it," he said. "The problem is they are using it, but nobody is replenishing it."

IF THE BLOOD plan runs dry, Bronson said the coverage will be restricted to donors and will thus eliminate a large section of the older population that cannot donate blood.

In an effort to bolster the plan, the Jaycees have asked all civic organizations to come up with 30 donors each. Bronson said so far only the Civil Defense has promised donations to the plan.

The blood plan can also expect some help from industry. The Beverly Blood Center, Inc. of Chicago has agreed to cover the needs of both industry and church groups and their families if 20 per cent of the group donate to the plan. This blood would also be used towards meeting the 700-pint quota.

Bronson said Wickes, Inc. has agreed to join the blood plan, and others are considering it. Church groups have been less receptive to the program, since many already have their own blood drives.

Parks, PHIA at odds over cash for Rob Roy

The Prospect Heights Park District and the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. are on an apparent collision course over the impending park referendum.

A committee of the PHIA, the Environmental Action Force (EAF), has decided to circulate petitions which call for opposition to the park district referendum unless the referendum contains money for a "significant participation" for the purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course.

The EAF petitions originally called for a "participation" of at least $1 million.

Such a demand would not have been acceptable to the park district in all probability as its bonding power is only about $1.5 million and its own planned improvement program calls for an expenditure of $1.1 million. It is doubtful whether the revolved petitions will be acceptable either.

Eco-group logo contest slated

A contest will be sponsored to select a symbol for the Environmental Action Force of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. The logo will be used on EAF stationery.

Although not all the details are ready, the winning symbol will earn an ornamental shrub or shade tree for its creator. Entries may be sent to the EAF or the Prospect Heights Improvement Association or to Fred Olds, 910 Wildwood Dr., Prospect Heights.

The EAF also has announced that the Citizens For Better Environment group has agreed to help the EAF in its fight against apartment developments in the Prospect Heights area. The Citizens For Better Environment group has offered both legal and fund-raising aid.

The EAF itself may offer assistance to homeowners in the Woodview subdivision of Mount Prospect. The Woodview group is fighting a planned Brickman condominium project along River Road.

Another EAF member, Richard Wolf, persuaded the group to delete the $1 million figure as "we don't want to back them (the park district) against the wall." Wolf will speak with some park board members this week to explain the EAF's stand.

A question of law that remains unanswered is whether the park district can include funds for the golf course in its referendum as the golf course does not lie within the park district boundaries. If they can include funds, there may be some limits. This is another unanswered question. It is known the park district cannot condemn land outside of its boundaries.

The EAF also intends to draw up a petition (to be circulated at the same time) which will be directed toward the Wheeling Township Board of Auditors so that group also will make public purchase of the golf course one of its top priorities.

Balloonist injured

A Barrington woman was injured slightly Wednesday when the hot air balloon in which she was a passenger made a rough landing near the intersection of Ill. Routes 53 and 83 in unincorporated Lake County.

According to a spokesman at Condell Memorial Hospital in Libertyville, the woman, Claudia Willey, was treated and released. Long Grove firemen said the woman was "shaken" and had been bruised on the head. Her unidentified male companion apparently was uninjured.

Melvin Towner, Long Grove fireman and an eyewitness to the incident, said the balloon appeared to come down with no problem, until it landed. He said the balloon bounced on the ground a couple of times and a gust of wind then blew it over. The incident occurred about 9:45 a.m.

Auto reported stolen

A burnt-red 1962 Lincoln automobile was stolen last weekend from a parking lot at 839 Valley Stream Dr., Wheeling police said.

The car, valued at $200, is owned by Richard L. Rudy, 839C Valley Stream Dr. The car has no license plates and, police said, a two truck reportedly was seen in the parking lot area. The managers of the apartments, however, allegedly told police they did not order the car towed.

DOUG WILTSE closeted with some of his 1,000-volume comic book collection. Doug, 14, has been a serious collector since he was eight. The files in his closets are sorted by title and issue numbers.

Kidnaping case goes to grand jury

The cases of two Wheeling area men accused in an April 2 kidnaping have been handed over to a Cook County Grand Jury.

Illinois State police investigators said Cook County Circuit Court Judge Albert H. LaPlante Monday found "probable cause" in the cases against Jose Luis Freyre Ruiz, 21, and Fernando Del Vega Parra, 18. Both men are accused of kidnaping two North Shore teenagers at knifepoint from the Twin Drive-In, 1010 S. Milwaukee Ave.

One of those allegedly kidnaped, Kathleen Manella, 18, was hospitalized, after her companion's commandeered car was involved in a collision with another car. The accident permitted state police to capture one of the accused, who then led them to the other. The other person kidnaped was David McEachron.

U.S. Immigration authorities have said that Ruiz is in this country illegally.

Speech teams win state awards

Members of the Wheeling High School individual speech events and debate teams won awards in state-wide competition recently.

Senior Sandi Means placed seventh out of 18 competitors in oratorical declamation and John Shelk, sophomore, placed fourth in extemporaneous speaking out of 18 participants.

Forty teams competed in the debate category and Wheeling's Bill Hale and Charlie Paelinch, both seniors, placed ninth.

Comic book collector, 14, began hobby six years ago

by JOE SWICKARD

Six years ago, Doug Wiltse decided to start saving his comic books instead of throwing them away.

Toay, Doug, a 14-year-old freshman at Prospect High School, is a comic book devotee. His bedroom, at 102 S. Wilshire, Arlington Heights, is a haven for the pulp heroes of print.

Plans, the Fantastic Four, Captain Marvel, Superman, Wonder Woman, Batman and the rest of the incredible host of heroes are sorted by issue number and placed in files in his closets. The rare issues are encased in specially produced plastic bags designed specifically for preserving comic books.

"I like the superheroes a lot. Superman used to be my hero No. 1," Doug said.

But he learned that even super heroes change. "Superman has declined, I think," he said.

Why? "They've taken away the suspense. Clark Kent doesn't look like a gentleman anymore. And they've gotten rid of Kryptonite. Now, he's only vulnerable to black magic," he said.

COLLECTORS, SUCH AS Doug, strive to gather consecutive issue numbers. As valuable as an individual issue might be, it increases when it is part of a series. But as luck would have it, Doug missed the issue when Superman managed to convert all the insidious Kryptonite into harmless lead.

Doug estimates he has about 1,000 comic books. He declined to place a value on his collection, but pointed with pride to such items as his oldest comic, "Fawcett's Funny Animals," that features a bunny with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal heroes.

Doug said the first issue of Superman and the first issue of Action Comics have the highest price among collectors. "They're probably the most famous and wanted. A lot of people want them for sentimental value, too," he said.

He said mint condition copies of those comics demand $1,000 and more.

THE CONDITION of the comic can mean the difference of hundreds of dollars to collectors. According to Doug, the cover is the most important part of the comic.

"I save them in plastic bags so they'll look to 'em," he said.

His mother is understanding of her son's avocation. She was the one who bought the filing shelves for his collection. She also said she should get him some more plastic bags.

She has also been known to question his purchases of new magazines at a clip that once reached $5 a month. Doug said he hoped his parents would come through with some subscriptions as a birthday present. "But, there are 80 comics in the DC group alone."

OTHER MEMBERS OF his family have aided Doug's collection. An aunt in Florida has promised Doug the stacks of comics that had been saved by his cousin years ago.

"I've written some comic strips myself, with the help of my friends. My sister did the drawings, though. It's fun; a hobby for me. I don't think I could make a living at it — thinking up new stories every month," he said of his possible future in the field.

"I try to read all of them. But with 1,000 of them, that'd take up most of my time I need for other things," he said.

Village board wrapup

Bill on election reform opposed

The Wheeling Village Board has passed a resolution opposing an election reform bill now before the state senate.

The bill would place local elections under the jurisdiction of the county clerk, and would require all elections to be scheduled on one of two days during the year.

In the resolution, the board said the village clerks should continue to handle local village elections. It noted that it would be a great inconvenience to voters to have to travel to the county clerk's office.

Moreover, the resolution opposes the combination of local elections with larger partisan races, and states that the cost of holding an election may be substantially increased by this bill.

Copies of the resolution are being sent to elected state officials representing the Wheeling area.

Defer Koeppen lease renewal

Board members have deferred renewal of a lease that would allow Andrew Koeppen to farm five acres of village property.

Part of the property leased by Koeppen will be needed to provide extra parking for a Cook County Circuit District Court expected to be located at the Wheeling Village Hall.

The lease with Koeppen would have allowed property in the rear of the municipal building to be paved for extra parking space. Board members, however, questioned whether it might not be better to locate the parking at the side of the building, thus reducing the distance from the parking lot to the building entrance.

For the past several years, Koeppen has leased 7½ acres from the village. The amount was reduced to five acres this year because of the additional parking. The lease asks $10 an acre for the use of the land.

Officials will review the location of the proposed parking area, and will report back to the board at Monday's board meeting.

Hearings ordered on project

The zoning board has been directed to schedule hearings on a request to rezone eight acres at the northwest corner of Rutland and Wheeling roads for a townhouse development.

The New Era Construction Co., developers of Sandpebble Walk Condominiums, is seeking the rezoning as contractor-purchaser of the property.

The site is adjacent to the Sandpebble Walk development.

Church health fair April 28

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling residents will be able to have their blood pressure, hearing and sight tested April 28 at a health fair sponsored by the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 1111 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

In addition, the health fair will also offer a free diabetes test under the direction of the Shepherd's Nurses, a church nurses group.

The health fair will run from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the church.

Officials have canceled a free blood pressure clinic previously scheduled that weekend at the village hall. Rather than conflict with the Good Shepherd health fair, the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club will reschedule their hypertension clinic for 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 18 at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Village to meet with railroad

area would be able to exit onto the new Wheeling Road extension.

THE PLAN commission has also advocated extending Commercial Drive across the tracks. A proposed roadway on the official village map extends this east-west street from Wheeling Road to Wolf Road.

Village trustees have therefore decided to see if it is possible to extend the roadway before acting on the request to vacate the undeveloped street in exchange for $14,000.

Trustee Ron Bruhn, however, said improvement of the western section of Commercial Drive may be difficult since state motor fuel tax funds cannot be used on a dead-end street. In order to install the street, the village would have to use its own funds.

Passolt said he also plans to discuss a proposed vacation of Railroad Avenue when the Soo Line representatives come to town in the next few weeks. The village is hoping to vacate the street, which is in poor condition, and use funds from the sale of the property to improve other streets in the area.

The railroad records, however, are not clear as to who actually owns Railroad Avenue. If the Soo Line owns the property, then the village does not have to vacate the street.

Requires retention for new buildings

Stormwater control proposal gains approval of zoners

A proposed stormwater-control ordinance that would require most new buildings in the village to provide some water retention has received the blessing of the Wheeling Zoning Board.

Although the zoning board has no jurisdiction over the passage of the ordinance, the commission reviewed the proposal as part of a hearing on reducing density in the flood plain.

In recommending passage of the ordinance, the zoning board said it would alleviate more flooding problems than any changes in the density requirements for flood plain land.

THE ORDINANCE, prepared by consulting engineer Bill Lindley, is designed to keep rainwater where it falls for a longer period of time. By doing this, Lindley said water will travel into streams and basins at a slower rate, thus reducing flooding.

In effect, the proposed ordinance is merely a more restrictive adaptation of the present Metropolitan Sanitary District codes. It would require water retention for any residential project of three acres or more and for any industrial or commercial development.

The MSD now requires retention for any residential project of 10 acres or more and any industrial or commercial development of five acres or more.

In addition, the ordinance would require retention basins to be built to hold water from a 100-year storm, with a release rate equivalent to the runoff from a 1.5-year storm.

The proposed ordinance also emphasizes the importance of water retention by requiring developers to have their flood-control specifications approved before final plans are approved by the village.

IF APPROVED, the new ordinance would not prohibit building in the flood plain, which is allowed under present village codes. Zoning board members carefully examined the proposed ordinance to make sure it does not conflict with the village's flood plain ordinance.

The village board is now studying the stormwater-control ordinance in committee. Trustee William Hein, chairman of the committee, said the matter will be acted upon soon.

As soon as the ordinance is passed, village officials intend to ask upstream communities to enact similar regulations. Lindley told the zoning board that the ordinance will have the greatest effect on Wheeling's flood problems if upstream communities also require stringent water retention.

Zoning board rejects Dundee Road car wash

A car wash proposed for the north side of Dundee Road west of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch has failed to win the approval of the Wheeling Zoning Board.

Zoning board members voted 6-1 against recommending approval of the project, citing various traffic, flooding and planning problems.

Only zoning board chairman Frank Wojek spoke in favor of granting the zoning Tuesday, said that the owner could build a coin-operated car wash under the present zoning classification.

Comr. Hugh Sommerfeld, however, noted that petitioner John Kamysz had earlier testified that a coin-operated car wash was not a profitable business.

IN ARGUING AGAINST the car wash, Sommerfeld said the plan commission several years ago had recommended that the north side of Dundee Road in that area be developed with "light office buildings." He noted that the village hall, post office, church and school are located in the immediate area, with a library facility in the planning stages.

"I just would really like to see us adhere as close as possible to get back to this B-5 light office usage," he said.

Zoning board member Neil Brant said he thought the site had serious problems for traffic. He said it would be difficult for cars to exit from the car wash onto Dundee Road which has a 45-mph speed limit. Brant also noted that a slow-down lane can not be built at the entrance to the property since a bridge over the creek is in the way.

"I shudder to think of a driver coming out of the car wash and making a left turn there," he said.

SOMMERFELD ALSO questioned plans to dig-out sections of the creek bank to provide water retention for the property.

"You just don't cut those banks unless you really know what happens," he said.

Environmental commission chairman William Rogers said problems have developed with a similar excavation of the creek south of Dundee Road. He said the developer of the Town Square Apartments is considering installing a retention wall to separate that excavation from the actual creek because of siltation and debris deposited on his property.

"I think we can use a car wash here in the village, but I think there are better spots," Brant said.

The zoning board, however, did not get to consider a second request for a car wash at the northwest corner of Jeffery and Milwaukee avenues. Petitioner Frank Miramonti, former owner of the Hartmann House Restaurant and the

by JOE FRANZ and LUISA GINNETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

Foster parents share more than a neighborhood

by JILL BETTNER

Neighborhoods are more than just geographical areas of a community or a place to live and park the car. Reflecting the lifestyles and interests of the people who live there, neighborhoods usually have personalities all their own.

Sometimes people on a block find they share more than streets and sidewalks and the playground on the corner. When neighbors discover they feel the same concern for something, that bond brings them even closer.

Such is the case in a neighborhood in the area of White Pine Road and Evergreen Place in Buffalo Grove. The common bond that four families there have is a desire to open their homes to children who might otherwise have nowhere else to go.

They jokingly call it "Foster Parent Row." The Robert Sorensens, 845 White Pine Rd., take in children, along with their next door neighbors the Esaus, another family down the block and the LaCosses across the street.

ALL THE FAMILIES work through different agencies, with some serving as foster parents on an emergency basis.

In the last four years, more than 30 children, ranging in age from two days old to 15 years have stayed in the neighborhood with one of the four families.

The kids who are placed in the neighborhood practically get four sets of foster parents when they move in. The families have set up a clothes exchange, share baby furniture and equipment and frequently get together to discuss any problems that arise.

"People have just been great about giving us clothes and equipment and things," said Carol Sorensen. She added that children placed in an emergency care foster home often come with nothing more than the shirt on their back and may stay as long as six weeks.

THE FAMILIES cooperate in other ways, too, such as babysitting for each others' children. Mrs. Sorensen recalled the time Karen Esau ran over at 2 a.m. to stay with the Sorensen children while a foster child was rushed to a hospital.

"Help is always there when we need it," she commented.

The children who come to the neighborhood have been abused, neglected, orphaned or temporarily removed from their natural parents because of an emergency home situation. Many have physical and/or emotional problems.

Mrs. Sorensen said the question she is asked most often is "Why do you do it?"

The answer, she said, is simple. "There's so much apathy in the world today. You hear about the little old lady

Lake County schools seeking an early tax payment

Dist. 96 is requesting, along with several area school districts, that Lake County implement a State Senate bill allowing local schools to receive tax monies earlier.

The bill provides that tax bills will be estimated in March based on previous property assessments and finalized August 1.

According to Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman, schools in Lake County presently receive tax monies in July or August. If the county implements the senate bill, districts would take in funds both in March and September.

The accelerated payment schedule could greatly reduce the amount of interest paid on tax anticipation warrants or increase the amount of interest gained on possible invested capital, the resolution states.

In addition, the resolution maintains that because taxes would be distributed at the same time every year, school districts would be able to conduct more precise financial planning.

2 grade crossings among issues

Wheeling, Soo Line R.R. plan to discuss problems

The Village of Wheeling is hoping to solve its railroad woes at an upcoming meeting with representatives of the Soo Line R.R.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he will discuss three separate projects with the railroad, including the need for an additional railroad crossing between Hintz and Dundee roads.

The railroad tore out the old crossing behind Wickes, Inc. last year. Since that time, village trustees and commission members have been concerned about ways of crossing the tracks in emergencies.

CURRENTLY, there are no crossings between Dundee Road and Hintz Road. Although there is one fire station on each side of the tracks, officials are concerned about getting emergency vehicles into this industrial area in case of fire or other problems.

Village board members are now trying to get two railroad crossings in this area. Passolt said he will ask the Soo Line about replacing the old crossing behind Wickes and building a new crossing at Commercial Drive.

The board members suggested the crossing at Commercial Drive during a recent committee meeting called to consider a request to vacate the western portion of that street. Commercial Drive is currently developed only east of the tracks, although the western section has been dedicated to the village. A law firm has asked to purchase the property for a client.

Passolt said the Commercial Drive crossing is also important because it would provide a second exit from the industrial area east of the tracks north of Hintz Road.

"Our problem is really one of getting another exit from the industrial area there," the manager said. "It's a real chore for them to get out at Glenn Avenue at quitting time."

By crossing the tracks, workers in the area would be able to exit onto the new Wheeling Road extension.

THE PLAN commission has also advocated extending Commercial Drive across the tracks. A proposed roadway on the official village map extends this east-west street from Wheeling Road to Wolf Road.

Village trustees have therefore decided to see if it is possible to extend the roadway before acting on the request to vacate the undeveloped street in exchange for $14,000.

Trustee Ron Bruhn, however, said improvement of the western section of Commercial Drive may be difficult since state motor fuel tax funds cannot be used on a deadend street. In order to install the street, the village would have to use its own funds.

Passolt said he also plans to discuss a proposed vacation of Railroad Avenue when the Soo Line representatives come to town in the next few weeks. The village is hoping to vacate the street, which is in poor condition, and use funds from the sale of the property to improve other streets in the area.

The railroad records, however, are not clear as to who actually owns Railroad Avenue. If the Soo Line owns the property, then the village does not have to vacate the street.

Balloonist injured

A Barrington woman was injured slightly Wednesday when the hot air balloon in which she was a passenger made a rough landing near the intersection of Ill. Routes 53 and 83 in unincorporated Lake County.

According to a spokesman at Conell Memorial Hospital in Libertyville, the woman, Claudia Wiley, was treated and released. Long Grove firemen said the woman was "shaken" and had been bruised on the head. Her unidentified male companion apparently was uninjured.

Melvin Towner, Long Grove fireman and an eyewitness to the incident, said the balloon appeared to come down with no problem, until it landed. He said the balloon bounced on the ground a couple of times and a gust of wind then blew it over. The incident occurred about 9:45 a.m.

Kidnaping case goes to grand jury

The cases of two Wheeling area men accused in an April 2 kidnaping have been handed over to a Cook County Grand Jury.

Illinois State police investigators said Cook County Circuit Court Judge Albert H. LaPlante Monday found "probable cause" in the cases against Jose Luis Freyre Ruiz, 21, and Fernando Del Vega Ibarra, 18. Both men are accused of kidnapping two North Shore teenagers at knifepoint from the Twin Drive-In, 1010 S. Milwaukee Ave.

One of those allegedly kidnapped, Kathleen Manella, 18, was hospitalized, after her companion's commandeered car was involved in a collision with another car. The accident permitted state police to capture one of the accused, who then led them to the other. The other person kidnapped was David McEachron.

U.S. Immigration authorities have said that Ruiz is in this country illegally.

Speech teams win state awards

Members of the Wheeling High School individual speech events and debate teams won awards in state-wide competition recently.

Senior Sandi Means placed seventh out of 18 competitors in oratorical declamation and John Shell, sophomore, placed fourth in extemporaneous speaking out of 18 participants.

Forty teams competed in the debate category and Wheeling's Bill Hale and Charlie Paelinch, both seniors, placed ninth.

School news notes

Students in the intermediate grades at Kilmer school in Buffalo Grove are planning a musical show titled "Tour of Broadway" to be presented Thursday, May 9.

Performances are scheduled at 2 and 8 p.m.

The production is to include numbers from "Fiddler on the Roof," "The Sound of Music," "Oliver," "South Pacific," "My Fair Lady," "Annie Get Your Gun" and "West Side Story."

Social studies students in Bonnie Byrne's eighth-grade classes at London Junior High School in Wheeling recently culminated a civics unit with a poster contest.

Themes for the competition were patriotism and the rights and responsibilities of an American citizen.

Winners were Ben Thomas, first place, and Anne Spinnell, second place. Runners-up were Jeanne Warsaw, David Voigt and Brad Jarlenski.

Children in Telvia Gable's first-grade classes at Kilmer School, Buffalo Grove, are planting their own garden.

The students will grow scarlet radishes, brown pinto beans, green-fleshed melon, curly lettuce, small herbs, cucumbers, potatoes, blue bachelor's buttons and yellow daisies. They plan to use the flowers for table decorations.

The children have already participated in several tasting parties to get an idea of how their own vegetables will taste.

Students at Stevenson School, Wheeling, were recently treated to a judo demonstration by L. Sachs of the A-Judo School in Palatine and several judo students who attend Field School, also in Wheeling.

The judo students and their instructor presented several warm-up exercises and judo throws.

The annual student science fair was conducted recently at Twain School, Wheeling.

Children in each grade entered projects in the competition. The exhibits were judged by Jack Cerman, Dist. 21 science coordinator.

Zoning board rejects Dundee Road car wash

Only zoning board chairman Frank Wojek spoke in favor of granting the zoning Tuesday, said that the owner could build a coin-operated car wash under the present zoning classification.

Comr. Hugh Sommerfeld, however, noted that petitioner John Kamysz had earlier testified that a coin-operated car wash was not a profitable business.

IN ARGUING AGAINST the car wash, Sommerfeld said the plan commission several years ago had recommended that the north side of Dundee Road in that area be developed with "light office buildings." He noted that the village hall, post office, church and school are located in the immediate area, with a library facility in the planning stages.

"I just would really like to see us adhere as close as possible to get back to this B-3 light office usage," he said.

Zoning board member Neil Brant said he thought the site had serious problems for traffic. He said it would be difficult for cars to exit from the car wash onto Dundee Road which has a 45-mph speed limit. Brant also noted that a slow-down lane can not be built at the entrance to the property since a bridge over the creek is in the way.

"I shudder to think of a driver coming out of the car wash and making a left turn there," he said.

SOMMERFELD ALSO questioned plans to dig-out sections of the creek bank to provide water retention for the property.

"You just don't cut those banks unless you really know what happens," he said.

Environmental commission chairman William Rogers said problems have developed with a similar excavation of the creek south of Dundee Road. He said the developer of the Town Square Apartments is considering installing a retention wall to separate that excavation from the actual creek because of siltation and debris deposited on his property.

"I think we can use a car wash here in the village, but I think there are better spots," Brant said.

Six years ago, Doug Wiltse decided to start saving his comic books instead of throwing them away.

Toay, Doug, a 14-year-old freshman at Prospect High School, is a comic book devotee. His bedroom, at 102 S. Wilshire, Arlington Heights, is a haven for the pulp heroes of print.

Flahs, the Fantastic Four, Captain Marvel, Superman, Wonder Woman, Batman and the rest of the incredible host of heroes are sorted by issue number and placed in files in his closets. The rare issues are encased in specially produced plastic bags designed specifically for preserving comic books.

"I like the superheroes a lot. Superman used to be my hero No. 1," Doug said.

But he learned that even super heroes change. "Superman has declined, I think," he said.

Why? "They've taken away the suspense. Clark Kent doesn't look like a gentleman anymore. And they've gotten rid of Kryptonite. Now, he's only vulnerable to black magic," he said.

COLLECTORS, SUCH AS Doug, strive to gather consecutive issue numbers. As valuable as an individual issue might be, it increases when it is part of a series. But as luck would have it, Doug missed the issue when Superman managed to convert all the insidious Kryptonite into harmless lead.

Doug estimates he has about 1,000 comic books. He declined to place a value on his collection, but pointed with pride to such items as his oldest comic, "Fawcett's Funny Animals," that features a bunny with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal hares.

2 Chicagoans charged with 'contributing'

Two Chicago men were arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a minor Sunday, after their car was stopped by Buffalo Grove police for a traffic violation.

Arrested were Jamie Johnson, 22, and William Johnson, 21, both of Chicago but unrelated, police said. In addition, the driver, William, was charged with having an invalid registration, disobeying a stop light and failure to have a driver's license.

The arrests were made at 5:30 a.m. in the area of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads. The delinquency charges stemmed from the fact a 15-year-old boy, in an apparent intoxicated state, was in the Johnson car, police said.

Beauty contest forms now being accepted

Applications are being accepted by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees for the Miss Buffalo Grove Pageant, scheduled for Aug. 10.

The contest, a preliminary to the Miss Illinois and Miss America pageants, is open to all girls between the ages of 18 and 28. Entrants must be 18 and a high school graduate by Sept. 2, single and never married. They must be residents of Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Aptakisic, Long Grove, Prairie View or north Arlington Heights for at least six months.

Contestants will be judged in swimsuit, talent and evening gown competition by representatives of the Miss Illinois pageant. Poise, beauty, and talent are the three major requirements. The talent requirements are flexible and a girl need not necessarily be trained in a specific field. Many state winners present talent such as dramatic reading, comedy monologue or gymnastics.

Miss Buffalo Grove will receive $300 and the first and second runners-up will receive $100 and $50 respectively.

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees are asking local organizations to encourage girls to enter the pageant.

The deadline for entering the contest is June 25. Further information can be obtained by calling 537-7926 or 541-4327.

Church health fair April 28

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling residents will be able to have their blood pressure, hearing and sight tested April 28 at a health fair sponsored by the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 1111 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

In addition, the health fair will also offer a free diabetes test under the direction of the Shepherd's Nurses, a church nurses group.

The health fair will run from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the church.

Officials have canceled a free blood pressure clinic previously scheduled that weekend at the village hall. Rather than conflict with the Good Shepherd health fair, the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club will reschedule their hypertension clinic for 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 18 at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

PHIA meet May 22

The Prospect Heights annual town meeting has been tentatively scheduled for May 22 at John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. Further details of the meeting, to be conducted by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., will be announced later.

Duncan to preside over school board

Jim Duncan of Buffalo Grove will serve as president of the Dist. 96 Board of Education until the next school board election.

Duncan, 390 Springside Ln., was re-elected last Saturday to his second three-year term on the school board. As head of the board, Duncan replaces former president Dr. Woody Janssen of Long Grove.

Lynaya Back, also of Buffalo Grove, will serve as secretary until next April.

The Dist. 96 school board will continue to meet at 8 p.m. on the second Monday of each month at Kildeer School in Long Grove.

Mrs. Richmond is seeking similar cooperation from other local school districts including High School Dist. 125.

medial reading, remedial math and band. The fee for the summer session has been set at $20 per student.

Summer school planned

A registration day for summer school will be set up in the next few weeks in response to a request for classes by students.

A survey conducted by the district recently indicated a large number of pupils are interested in participating in a summer session to be conducted June 24 through July 19.

The greatest number of respondents indicated they would like to see boys' and girls' sports and arts and crafts courses offered. Varying lesser numbers indicated an interest in language arts, re-

Two hired, two resign

The Dist. 96 school board hired two new teachers and accepted the resignations of two others.

Mary Kay Schumacher was hired as an eight-year-old unit teacher at Willow Grove School at a salary of $8,000-pro-rated. Joan Kingery was hired as an instructor in the six- and seven-year-old unit at Willow Grove at a salary of $10,028.

The school board accepted the resignations of Fred Dittman, eighth grade science teacher at Twin Groves School, and Judith Watson, physical education instructor at Twin Groves.

Bus firm to be reimbursed

School Dist. 96 will reimburse the Ritzenthaler Bus Co. for part of unforeseen gasoline price increases incurred by the company this year.

The district contracted with Ritzenthaler to provide transportation for students this year based on a gasoline price of 12.35 cents per gallon. According to the company, the price of gasoline has risen to 25.79 and may go higher before the end of the current school year.

At the request of Ritzenthaler, the school board Monday night agreed to make up the difference in gasoline costs retroactive to March and until the end of the year.

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman estimated the cost of reimbursing Ritzenthaler at about $500.

Reading program supported

In cooperation with an effort to improve reading in the Lake County area, School Dist. 96 will support the Right-to-Read program.

Delores Richmond, former Dist. 96 school board member, is the local director of the national program. The program seeks to eliminate functional illiteracy in 99 per cent of the population below 16 and in 90 per cent of those over 16 by 1980.

According to Mrs. Richmond, the local Right-to-Read program is in its beginning stages. In supporting the program, School Dist. 96 later may donate the use of classroom or other facilities for tutoring or similar activities. One or more members of the school board may also serve on an area Right-to-Read advisory council.

Eco-group logo contest slated

A contest will be sponsored to select a symbol for the Environmental Action Force of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. The logo will be used on EAF stationery.

Although not all the details are ready, the winning symbol will earn an ornamental shrub or shade tree for its creator. Entries may be sent to the EAF or the Prospect Heights Improvement Association or to Fred Olds, 910 Wildwood Dr., Prospect Heights.

The EAF also has announced that the Citizens For Better Environment group has agreed to help the EAF in its fight against apartment developments in the Prospect Heights area. The Citizens For Better Environment group has offered both legal and fund-raising aid.

The EAF itself may offer assistance to homeowners in the Woodview subdivision of Mount Prospect. The Woodview group is fighting a planned Brickman condominium project along River Road.

Four immigrants deported to Mexico

Four illegal immigrants have been deported to Mexico by U.S. Immigration authorities, after they were arrested last week by Wheeling police.

The four men were passengers in a car stopped by Wheeling police Friday morning because the car was going too slow on Old McHenry Road. The four were Lemus Baltazar, 19, and Gil Reynaldo, 23, both of Half Day; Leon Ramon, 21, of Wheeling, and Murillo G. Cirilo, 45, of Meadow Lane, Wheeling.

The driver of the car, Antonio Torres, 45, of 704 Patton Dr., Buffalo Grove, was charged with having improper tires on a vehicle and impeding traffic. He was a legal resident of this country, police said.

According to police, the Torres vehicle was going 28 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone, causing cars to back up behind it. Police said they determined the situation was dangerous because of the cars attempting to pass.

ALL FOUR FAMILIES work through foster care programs sanctioned by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The state pays for medical, dental, food and some clothing expenses.

Foster care is definitely not a money-making venture for parents. Mrs. Sorensen figures the money allotted by the state amounts to about 15 cents per hour.

"It has to be something you really want to do and it's not for everybody, but I personally feel my husband and I have learned and benefited from our experiences, and it's really helped our own kids to grow, too," she said. "They're finding out not everybody grows up in the suburbs with everything they want."

Money bag taken

A bank night deposit bag with $493 cash was stolen early Tuesday from a car parked at the Resonite Corp., 1033 S. Noel Ave., Wheeling police said.

The money was receipts from Cal's Roast Beef restaurant, 9001 S. Milwaukee Ave., Niles. The cash was taken from the car of Antonio R. Campos, 200 S. Wheeling Rd., Wheeling, between 11 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday.

Campos, who reported the theft at 1:55 p.m. Tuesday, told police the car had been locked and the money bag had been under the driver's seat where it could not be seen from outside the car. It was a Golf Mill State Bank money bag.

Library grants seniors OK to use room

Prospect Heights senior citizens have been given tentative permission to use the Prospect Heights Public Library meeting room on a regular basis.

Prospect Heights Park District officials, who requested use of the room for the seniors, hope the library board's okay will mean a regular senior citizens club will begin operating early in May. Currently, seniors from the unincorporated area have no club of their own and at least 24 of them attend clubs held at the River Trails and Mount Prospect park districts in Mount Prospect, said Ron Greenberg, Prospect Heights Park District director.

Officials anticipate surplus

Preliminary village budget promises taxpayers a break

by JERRY THOMAS

Taxpayers in Elk Grove Village can relax their hold on their pocketbooks. According to preliminary budget figures, the village will receive more money in revenue in the fiscal 1974-75 year than it plans to spend.

In all, the village expects to receive $8.9 million from both taxes and federal revenue sharing funds and initially has estimated proposed expenditures of $6.8 million.

The proposed general corporate budget of $3.7 million shows a five per cent increase over last year's budget with an estimated deficit of $70,813 predicted by Village Mgr. Charles Willis.

Willis said this deficit will not raise taxes nor create the need for new forms of revenue such as a municipal tax.

OTHER FUNDS such as the water and sewer, federal revenue and civil defense funds are up approximately 3 per cent when compared to estimated revenue projections. An approximate 5.2 per cent increase in revenue is projected.

At its first of six scheduled budget meetings Tuesday, the budget committee heard Willis recommend the following:

- A 10 per cent cost of living increase in salaries.

- Adding 14 people to the police department, 13 to the fire department, two to the utilities departments and four part time positions in the corporate budget.

- Hiring of civilians to work with police on non criminal enforcement.

The bulk of the personnel additions are in the police and fire departments.

In the fire department three lieutenant promotions are recommended and 13 additional firemen are proposed to raise the number of men on each piece of major apparatus, including the second paramedic ambulance.

The additional staff would increase salaries and the total fire department budget by 4 per cent over last year's budget.

No manpower is included in the proposed budget for operating a fire station west of Ill. Rte. 53, although it is expected to be built this year. Capital funds for building and equipping a west side station are included in the federal revenue sharing budget.

INNOVATION IS a key word in the police department budget proposal. Willis approved the department request to hire five community service officers, two cadets, two social workers and five patrolmen.

As civilian personnel community service officers would work on non-criminal enforcement, traffic control, citizen complaints, record service and other such services that now take up a patrolman's time.

Willis said the officers would be paid less than patrolmen, under $10,000 a year. "They would handle things like taking a resident's complaint against trespassers, criminal damage to property complaints and the like, that take

Former principal to head Grove school

A former principal in Dist. 59 has been named to succeed Al Stone as principal of Grove Junior High School next year.

James Fay, who has been with the Elk Grove Township elementary school district for 10 years, will be the new principal.

Stone has been named to take over from Al Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel, who is leaving for one year to work on his doctorate degree.

The 44-year-old Fay had been principal at John Jay School in Mount Prospect. He's returning to the district after a one-year sabbatical.

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINNETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

He likes 'superheroes'

14-year-old comic book collector began saving his artifacts about 6 years ago

by JOE SWICKARD

Six years ago, Doug Wiltse decided to start saving his comic books instead of throwing them away.

Toay, Doug, a 14-year-old freshman at Prospect High School, is a comic book devotee. His bedroom, at 102 S. Wilshire, Arlington Heights, is a haven for the pulp heroes of print.

Flash, the Fantastic Four, Captain Marvel, Superman, Wonder Woman, Batman and the rest of the incredible host of heroes are sorted by issue number and placed in files in his closets. The rare issues are encased in specially produced plastic bags designed specifically for preserving comic books.

"I like the superheroes a lot. Superman used to be my hero No. 1," Doug said.

But he learned that even super heroes change. "Superman has declined, I think," he said.

Why? "They've taken away the suspense. Clark Kent doesn't look like a gentleman anymore. And they've gotten rid of Kryptonite. Now, he's only vulnerable to black magic," he said.

COLLECTORS, SUCH AS Doug, strive to gather consecutive issue numbers. As valuable as an individual issue might be, it increases when it is part of a series. But as luck would have it, Doug missed the issue when Superman managed to convert all the insidious Kryptonite into harmless lead.

Doug estimates he has about 1,000 comic books. He declined to place a value on his collection, but pointed with pride to such items as his oldest comic, "Fawcett's Funny Animals," that features a bunny with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal hares.

Doug said the first issue of Superman and the first issue of Action Comics have the highest price among collectors. "They're probably the most famous and wanted. A lot of people want them for sentimental value, too," he said.

He said mint condition copies of those comics demand $1,000 and more.

THE CONDITION OF the comic can mean the difference of hundreds of dollars to collectors. According to Doug, the cover is the most important part of the comic.

"I save them in plastic bags so they'll look top-notch," he said.

His mother is understanding of her son's avocation. She was the one who bought the filing shelves for his collection. She also said she should get him some more plastic bags.

She has also been known to question his purchases of new magazines at a clip that once reached $5 a month. Doug said he hoped his parents would come through with some subscriptions as a birthday present. "But, there are 80 comics in the DC group alone."

OTHER MEMBERS OF his family have aided Doug's collection. An aunt in Florida has promised Doug the stacks of comics that had been saved by his cousin years ago.

"I've written some comic strips myself, with the help of my friends. My sister did the drawings, though. It's fun; a hobby for me. I don't think I could make a living at it — thinking up new stories every month," he said of his possible future in the field.

"I try to read all of them. But with 1,000 of them, that'd take up most of my time I need for other things," he said.

DOUG WILTSE closeted with some of his 1,000-volume comic book collection. Doug, 14, has been a serious collector since he was eight. The files in his closets are sorted by title and issue numbers.

Procedures on absentee ballots hit

William Eliasek contends that teachers were not properly informed about absentee ballot procedures in time to obtain them for the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 school board elections held Saturday.

Eliasek, a member of Schaumburg Education Assn. political action committee, said teachers were misinformed by the district about filing for absentee ballots. The proper information was not received until one or two days prior to the last filing date, he said.

However, of the 43 absentee ballots cast in the election, 29 were picked up during the last three days for filing ballots.

BECAUSE OF THE confusion, about 80 teachers who had indicated an interest in obtaining absentee ballots were unable to receive them, Eliasek said.

Recognizing that the election was scheduled during spring vacation, SEA planned to run an absentee ballot campaign. Eliasek called the district office in March to get information regarding absentee ballots. At that time, he said he was told teachers only needed to sign their names on a request for an absentee ballot.

However, when one teacher presented a list of names at the district office for absentee ballots April 4, she was informed the requests must be individually signed and accompanied by a notarized affidavit before an absentee ballot could be given.

MILTON DERR, associate superintendent, said he heard about the misunderstanding and personally notified Eliasek and John Hansen, SEA president, about the proper procedures on April 9. The last day to file for the ballots was April 10 at 5 p.m.

Derr said Hansen explained the proper procedures at the SEA meeting that evening so that teachers could obtain ballots within the required time.

Thirteen teachers cast absentee ballots. "There is no question that there was a misunderstanding," Derr said. "It was a case of bad communication all the way around. However, there was no attempt to deny anyone a vote."

The school district did not publicize the procedures for absentee ballots, he said, but intends to give more specific information about this voting procedure in the future.

Absentee ballot procedures for school board elections are the same as those for any general election.

"We can't just give ballots out en masse," Derr said.

Eliasek said he was concerned not just as a teacher but also as a resident of Dist. 54 that the poor communications existed.

Elk Grove orchestra, band win top honors

The Elk Grove High School symphonic band and orchestra earned top honors at the recent Illinois State Organization contest.

The symphonic band received superior ratings from all four judges in division one, an honor it has received for the last five years. The orchestra received a division one superior rating for the first time.

valuable time from a trained patrolman," said Willis.

Willis said the department request is one he recommended because it would allow reassignment of non-police services and functions to the civilian personnel allowing for better use of the patrol service.

THE FIVE NEW patrolmen being proposed for the force would be assigned to the investigative services division involving youth and crime prevention.

The fiscal budget's police department total is 3 per cent higher than the last.

Willis also recommended development of additional office space to accommodate proposed increases in both programs and personnel. He suggested that federal revenue sharing funds be used to develop space in the lower level of the municipal building.

Two storage rooms and a little used lunch room should be converted into an office area for community services board, the police investigative, youth and social services division, Willis said.

THE MANAGER proposed no present changes in the village fringe benefits noting that the village is reasonably competitive in most areas but added these could be proposed in the near future.

Willis' recommendations were heard by budget committee members who reserved comment noting they would meet with all department heads to review both their requests and Willis' recommendations.

Federal revenue sharing funds are budgeted in the following way:

- Sanitary system improvements estimated to cost $400,000 to the sewage lift station, Ridge Avenue and Wildwood Shadywood area, that experienced sewage flooding.
- The bus transportation system, $40,000.

Police seek civilian personnel for new plan

Specialized civilian personnel for police work and preventive programs for police and fire departments in Elk Grove Village are some of the programs requested by department heads in the 1974-75 proposed village budget.

Budget committee members Tuesday heard requests for the following programs:

- Hiring of community service officers to provide the police department with specialized personnel to handle non enforcement police functions. This is a new program. According to Village Mgr. Charles Willis, the officer program would free sworn officers for other police duties. It is estimated to cost $41,000 for five officers' salaries and equipment.
- A Fire Prevention Bureau — a program to lessen the opportunities for fires by starting an intensive program of building inspection, public education and program development. Willis recommended $20,000 for the proposal.

• A $400,000 expense is earmarked for a bridge over Salt Creek.

- Municipal and public works building expansions. $220,000 for a fire station and equipment for west of Rte. 53, $223,550.
- Sidewalk improvements at Arlington Heights Road, Park District and Elk Grove Boulevard are estimated to cost $231,000.

WILLIS SAID the village has received

- A pre-fire plan program to inspect and record all industrial and commercial structures as to floor plan hazards, chemical storage and other data needed to aid the department in fighting fires. Willis recommended $5,000 be earmarked for this program.

An officer training program requested by the fire department was not recommended by Willis.

A civil Defense request to create a Scuba program for 24-hour water rescue and recovery service was also not approved by Willis. The Civil Defense department estimated it would need $10,000 for equipment and personnel to begin the program.

ANOTHER CIVIL Defense proposal to provide the agency with an on-the-scene control vehicle to coordinate emergency activities during a crisis was requested by the department but did not receive the manager's recommendation.

Willis approved a proposal to create a social services unit program as a replacement for services previously provided by Community Service on the village's social services agency. This program would provide immediate assessment and early treatment of abnormal social and individual behavior at point of police contact. Cost of this program for two social workers and equipment is $26,300.

Creation of a new intelligence officer program to provide the police department with experts in organized crime activities is also proposed with no cost estimates attached.

Hiring of a junior building inspector, a summer program to employ an inspector for sign, pool fence and fill permits, was also requested.

These programs will be included on the proposed budget when it goes to board members for review. The budget committee will meet April 23, 24, 29, and 30 to review these proposals and department requests. The village board will meet May 6 to discuss salaries.

the committees first look at both.

"This budget in no way shows final figures or programs but will now receive exhaustive review," he said.

He noted that nearly 88 per cent of the budget deals with salaries and contractual services, with little left for programs.

"We will review carefully programs suggested and perhaps come up with new ones," said Spees.

'Thinking' seminar planned

"Adventures in Creative Thinking," a two-night seminar, is planned for May 22 and 23 in Elk Grove Village.

Sponsored by the Elk Grove Association of Industry and Commerce, the two, three-hour seminars will be conducted by Mike Vance of Turning Point Programs.

The seminar was developed by Vance during the past 12 years, seven of which were spent as head of organizational development for Walt Disney Productions. Eight major topics are covered including motivation, creativity, communications, thinking, personal growth, development, management, selling and leadership.

Vance is considered among the nation's leading people-and idea-developer by many leaders in business and education. For two years he served as assistant to the President of the Book of Knowledge, and hosted the television show, "Men at the Top," for several years.

Vance is currently president of Executive Group, a Los Angeles-based firm specializing in working with management clients in idea-and people-development programs.

The seminars will be at the Navarone Steak House, 1905 E. Higgins Rd., at 7 p.m. each night. For more information on tickets, call 437-7944.

Employees don't sit down on job

...Even though village firm makes seats for railroad passenger cars

by BOB GALLAS

Very few employees sit down on the job at Coach and Car Equipment Corp. in Elk Grove Village, even though sitting is their business.

The firm, unique to the Northwest suburbs, is part of a vanishing breed of companies which specialize in the manufacture of railroad car seats, churning out more than 20,000 of them each year along with agricultural seats and even an occasional seat for a military tank.

While the company supplies the railroad's last hope for long-distance passenger hauling, Amtrak, Coach and Car has turned much of its attention to producing a product which is ever increasing in demand — the commuter train seat.

Besides several East Coast commuter lines, Coach and Car also makes seats locally for the Chicago and North Western Ry., Illinois Central and the Milwaukee Road.

THE SEAT-MAKING business has changed drastically from the days of sedate, trojan style train seats, according to Richard Thacker, personnel manager at Coach and Car. Today the design of seats are scientifically studied for comfort and are dressed in wild colors.

Special attention is given to the comfort of the seats. "Long-distance trains aren't competing with buses, but with the private auto — notoriously comfortable and private," said Thacker.

For the commuter train, bright colors and newness, rather than comfort, are emphasized in an attempt to attract the rider and keep him coming back. "You really can't get uncomfortable sitting for 30 minutes," said Art Harder, chief engineer for Coach and Car.

To accommodate passengers on long train trips of two hours or more, seats are designed with all the comforts possible, including upholstered leg rests, reclining backs, fold out trays, head rests that can offer stereo music, and a kidney pad (extra padding in the lower back) for added comfort.

In addition to the passenger, railroad personnel are cared for by the company. "Engineers and men in the caboose have to sit too," said Thacker.

THE COMPANY makes a special seat for the caboose with a very special purpose — to absorb shock.

"Today's powerful engine can be going five-miles-per hour in a matter of seconds," said Harder. "By the time the motion gets back to the caboose, it goes from 0 to 5 m.p.h. almost instantly," Harder added. "The guy in back has to have something that will absorb that shock."

Absorbing shock is the entire purpose of a new seat which the company is just bringing onto the market — a hydraulic seat for farm and heavy equipment.

Since a heavily loaded dump truck transmits virtually all road shock to the drive, the seat acts as a special shock absorber for the driver only. Besides preventing back, kidney and other disorders which result from years of bouncing around in heavy equipment, the seat serves another purpose, according to Harder — safety.

The driver instead of trying to stay in his seat as he's being bounced around, now rides smoothly with a much better view of the road and better control of his vehicle.

BESIDES ABSORBING shock on farm equipment, modern technology made changes necessary in the design of seating. "It used to be that a farmer drove a tractor sitting in a metal seat with holes punched in the bottom to let the water drain out," said Harder. "Now he sits in a plush, upholstered seat in an air-conditioned cab," Harder said.

The company not only builds but has a lot to do with the design and testing of seats. In the "lab," seats are caked with actual field dirt, then subjected to prolonged periods of heat and water abuse to see how the product will hold up during actual use.

A specially built "simulator" allows technicians to see how the seat rides and how it holds up after extended torture. Seats are also subject to heavy weight stress, to make sure it won't give in stress situation such as an accident.

BECAUSE OF the uniqueness of their business, almost the entire seat is made in the Coach and Car plant which employs about 165 people. Steel tubes for commuter train seatbacks, as well as pieces of plywood for agricultural equipment seats are formed there.

Fabrics of all materials and colors are cut and sewn at the plant. The frames and fabric are then merged with cushions and padding to produce the finished product by another vanishing technician in abundance at Coach and Car — the upholsterer.

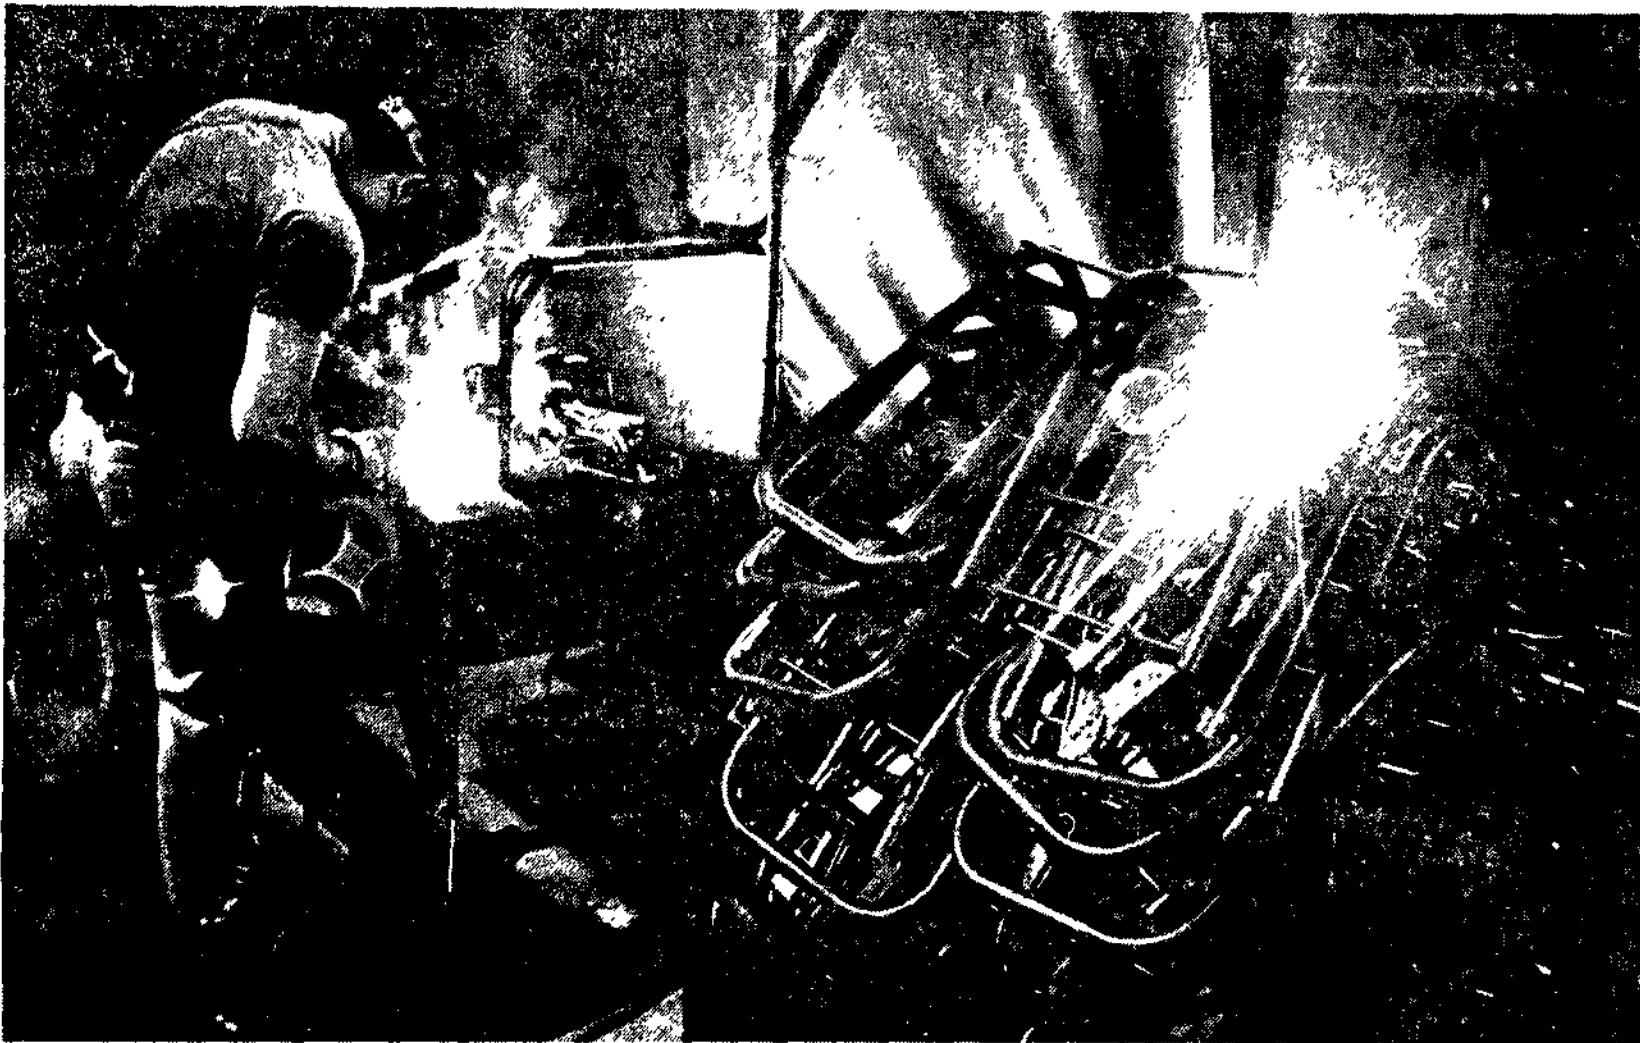

In business for 50 years, Coach and Car came to Elk Grove Village from Chicago about eight years ago and most of its employees still come from the city, an ironic situation, according to Thacker.

"Here we are in the transportation business and all our employees drive to work because there's no train to Elk Grove Village."

If you sat in it, they made it...

SEATS . . . SEATS . . . more than 20,000 of them every year, ranging from caboose chairs to tank seats are produced by Coach and Car Equipment Corp. in Elk Grove Village. Below, a welder assembles already formed pieces of metal that will eventually end up as commuter train seat backs on the East Coast. Right, seamstresses assemble pieces of material to form single seat covers.

Panel approves proposed youth bureau

A proposed regional youth services bureau has been given preliminary approval by a local youth committee, perhaps paving the way for Schaumburg Township to contribute $19,000 for the new idea.

The Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth recommended that township government help the new youth bureau along.

The service will regionalize the hotline, family counseling and health services currently offered at The Bridge in Palatine.

The program has a proposed budget of $37,000 with each township contributing $19,000.

Elk Grove Township has approved the funding within the town budget. Schaumburg will be asking for revenue sharing funds to finance the service.

The final recommendation includes an administrative policy-making board. The board will be composed of three representatives from each township, including the youth director.

Under the final proposal, RYSB will have a hotline director and administrator as one full-time paid position.

THE SERVICE IS proposed to begin June 1.

COY also discussed hiring a part-time office worker for the Youth Employment Service. Currently YES is under the management of youth outreach worker Claudia Tull.

The worker would be needed about 10 hours per week, according to Larry Walker, youth director. Based on a salary of $3.90 per hour, the worker would cost about $1,560 per year.

John Jensen, committee member, questioned the need for that cost with the current use of YES. At this time, 83 youths have applied for jobs under YES and 58 have been placed. He said this averages about $25 per placement, a cost he could not justify at this time.

COY ALSO IS investigating a new name for its programs. According to Walker, as the scope of COY's programs increases, the agency has difficulty obtaining a "clear identity."

He said the program's name must reflect its purpose and an understanding of youth needs rather than a group of concerned citizens.

Among the suggestions proposed at COY's meeting were the Spectrum and the Kaleidoscope Youth Services Bureau. A name such as these would help identify the organization in the same manner as the Bridge in Palatine or the Place with No Name in Hoffman Estates, said Walker.

To attend reading conference

Erwin F. Stevenson, assistant superintendent for instruction in School Dist. 59 will attend the 19th annual convention of the International Reading Assn. which will be held in New Orleans May 1-4.

Stevenson will chair the presentation of a dissertation. A former teacher and principal, he received his doctorate in education at Indiana University.

More than 10,000 teachers, reading specialists, administrators, and other educators are expected for this year's convention which will focus on the theme "The Teacher: Key to Excellence in Reading."

Babe Ruth League tryouts open Saturday

Tryouts for the Babe Ruth League, sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Athletic Assn., will be staged on three consecutive weekends starting Saturday.

Boys 13 through 15 are eligible to compete in the league which is starting its third year in the village.

Those who have signed up are to report at 4 p.m. at Elk Grove High school near the tennis courts. The tryout schedule is:

14-year-olds: April 20 and 21.
13-year-olds: April 27 and 28.
15-year-olds: May 4 and 5.

Two teams will be sponsored this year, each having a minimum of 15 players each. Age breakdowns per team will be a minimum of three 13-year-olds, seven 14-year-olds and five 15-year-olds.

Cost for registration is $30, payable upon making the team.

The athletic association also is looking for adults, 25 or over, who are interested in the one open manager's position or six coaching positions.

Those interested are asked to contact Tony Kees at 439-5541 or mail a resume to 1016 Brantwood, Elk Grove Village.

Palatine, Plum Grove roads and Colfax Street

Study asks three streets be widened to four lanes

The widening of Palatine Road, Plum Grove Road and Colfax Street to four lanes through downtown Palatine is recommended in a traffic engineering study of the central business district.

Improvements at six intersections along Palatine Road and several other downtown intersections are also proposed in the recently completed preliminary traffic engineering study.

The Palatine Village Board will be discussing the traffic study which includes road improvement recommendations and present and future traffic-flow maps at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

THE TRAFFIC study was conducted by Rolfe T. Gustus in conjunction with a central business district redevelopment plan prepared by Wilton T. Battles of Planning Horizons Inc. for the New Palatine Committee. The traffic study cost the village $3,600.

The New Palatine Committee, a group of 12 businessmen, has been working on a downtown redevelopment plan for several months that calls for highrise apartment and office buildings, open space recreational areas, an entertainment area with restaurants, theaters and other activities and a pedestrian mall in the commercial area.

The traffic study proposes the widening of Palatine Road from Northwest Highway to Quentin Road to four lanes, a 10-foot median on Palatine Road between Plum Grove Road and Smith Street is proposed with a possible four-foot median west to Quentin Road.

Other major street improvements proposed in the study are the widening of Plum Grove Road from Washington Street north to Colfax Street to four lanes and widening Colfax Street from Plum Grove Road west to Smith Street to four lanes.

Gustus indicated right-of-way might have to be acquired by the village to carry out some of the proposed road widenings.

IF THE PROPOSED downtown redevelopment plan of the New Palatine Committee is adopted, these streets would form the major vehicular downtown traffic network. The proposed redevelopment plan proposes the closing of sections of Slade, Bothwell, Greeley and Johnson streets in the downtown area to create a pedestrian system.

Intersection improvements along Palatine Road proposed in the traffic study are:

- Palatine and Plum Grove roads: Two through lanes in each direction, right-turn bays and left-turn bays from all approaches.

- Palatine Road and Brockway Street: Two through lanes in each direction and left-turn bays from all approaches, plus right-turn bays from the north and south approaches.

- Palatine and Quentin roads: Two through lanes in each direction from all approaches and left-turn bays from the east and west approaches.

- Palatine Road and Smith Street: Two through lanes in each direction from all approaches and a left-turn lane from the west approach.

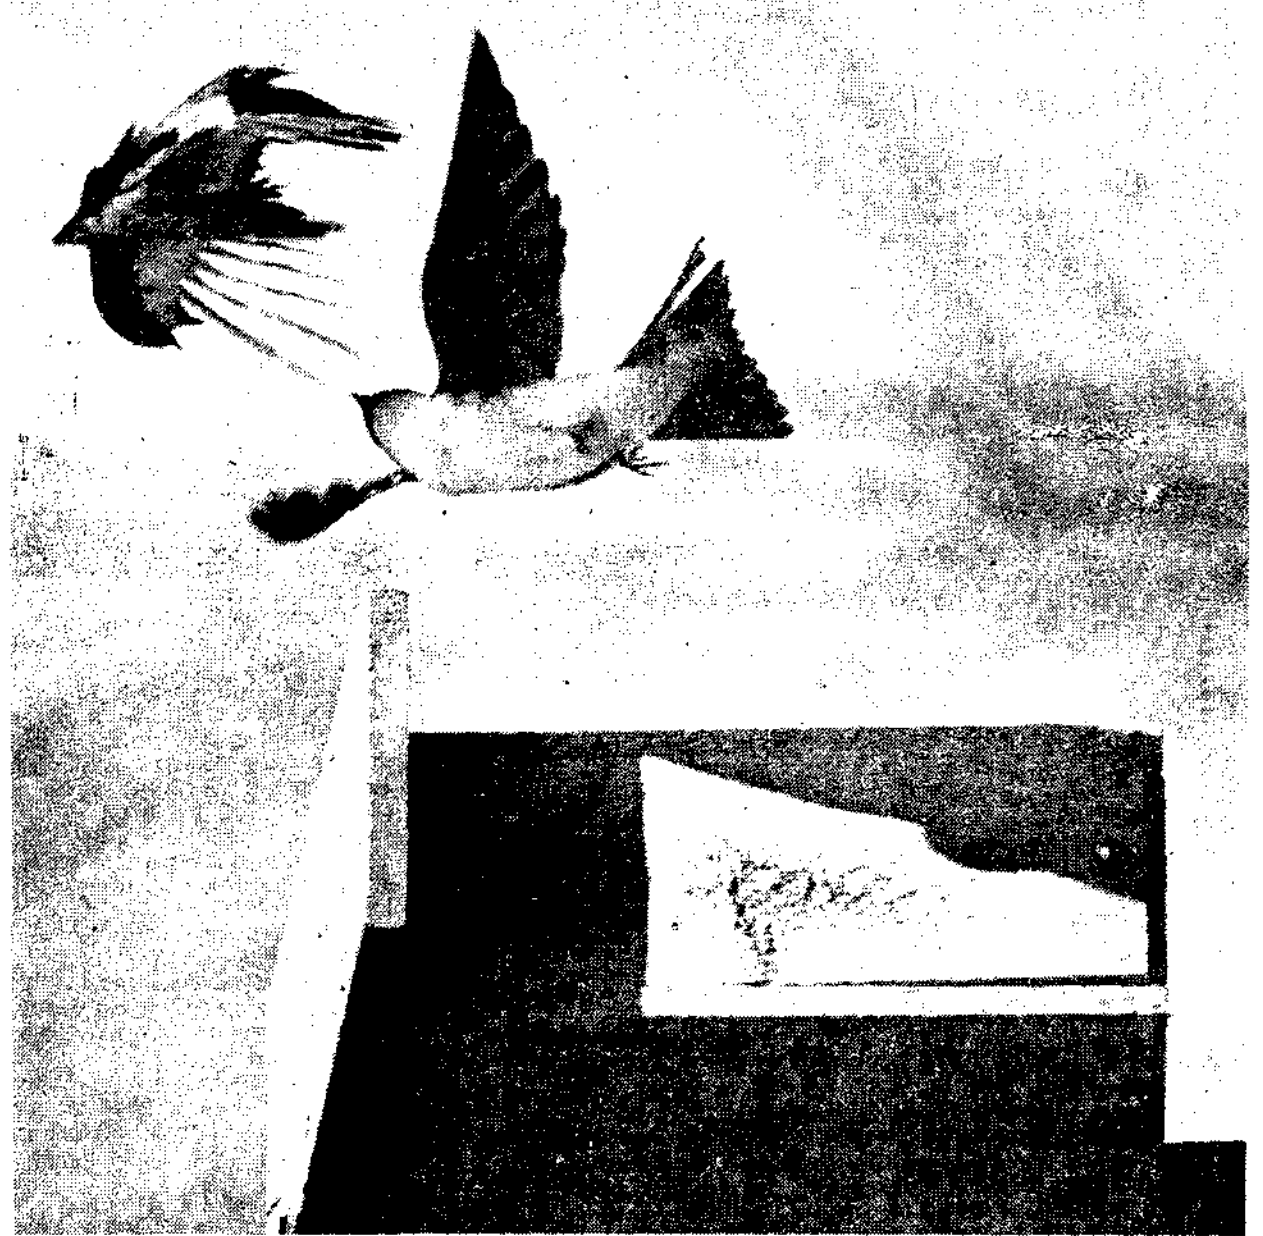

No turning bays are proposed along Plum Grove Road and Colfax Street where the recommended widening will provide two through lanes in each direction.

The traffic study also recommends Brockway Street be operated as a four-lane street from Washington to Colfax streets.

It is proposed that all the major intersections be signalized and interconnected to provide maximum traffic flow downtown. The system would react to train tracks closures by providing alternate traffic flow patterns.

Several recommendations were made

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

Jaycees—always doing something

by JULIA BAUER
If something is happening around town, the Palatine Jaycees will be involved.

Most recently the Jaycees helped organize a drug prevention program called Turn In A Pusher. Its purpose is to remove drug sales from Palatine by providing a telephone line where persons can call anonymously with drug information. If the "tip" leads to a drug conviction, the person who called will receive a $100 to $500 reward.

The local Jaycee chapter also has received a $4,000 grant from the National Institute on Alcohol and Alcohol Abuse to conduct seminars on alcoholism. Ralph Deger, president of the local chapter, believes the real philosophy is a dual purpose goal: to provide community services while giving young members a broad experience in organization and other aspects of management.

"WE DIFFER FROM other chapters just the same as our community differs from other communities," Deger said. Major projects are headed by a different man each year, and the group, like the area, realizes a big turnover factor. There now are about 50 active members.

"A lot of the things we do, like big projects, get done. They lack polish, but that's not really what we're after," Deger said. A Jaycee heading his first big activity has a supportive group to "bail him out if he has problems," without the fear of losing a job or going hungry, he added.

Aside from an aggressive internal program for individual growth, and a busy social calendar, the Palatine Jaycees have been in the limelight for a bevy of community service activities.

THE BIGGEST single project, Operation Threshold, came from a $4,000 grant from the National Institute on Alcohol and Alcohol Abuse.

Seminars involving area representatives of education, industry and social organizations were sponsored at Harper College, involving authorities in alcoholism programs and problems.

The newest aspect of the alcoholism project Threshold is a court mandatory referral program on all alcohol-related convictions.

"It will include the entire court district," Deger said. Communities near Palatine must still be contacted, but Deger is hoping for implementation of the school by the end of May. Four sessions on alcohol use would be required by a person convicted of alcohol misuse, either through driving or misconduct charges.

Other aspects of the alcoholism program include purchase of films for Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 on the problems of alcohol abuse and drug addiction, and a program for local Jaycees.

ACTIVITIES ALSO include:

- Turn In A Pusher. A volunteer phone system for anonymous callers to identify suspected drug pushers, with rewards offered for convictions. The TIP program started two weeks ago, and involves the Jaycees, two homeowner associations, the Vikings Booster Club and the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs.

- Paramedic ambulance fund drive. Organized last year to help purchase a paramedic-equipped ambulance for the Palatine Fire Department. The drive topped the goal last month.

- Youth employment referrals. A new program that will be set up this summer will supply teenagers with day labor jobs and residents with a labor supply. "It would be sort of like 'rent-a-kid,'" Deger said.

- Annual Fourth of July celebration in Palatine, with an art fair, rides, guest speaker, parade and fireworks.

- Baseball field at Samuel Kirk School developmental training center. Jaycees are donating labor to grade and seed the field, designed for open, unassigned baseball games.

- Junior Olympics. Annual event for local youth in field and track events, organized by the Jaycees.

- Doug Lindberg Memorial Park at the Countryside School for handicapped children. Jaycees are installing a patio and planting $400 worth of plants and bushes.

- Annual speed skating contest. Held for youngsters in the winter in Community Park.

- Annual sand sale May 11 (480 tons sold last year).

- Christmas tree sale in Community Park.

- Distinguished Service Awards to a Palatine man and woman each year.

- Santa's phone, organized through school district.

- Distribution of Red Balls during fire prevention week.

- A possible city beautification program for Palatine.

- A Halloween spook house for local youngsters.

- Two baseball outings for children of migrant families each summer.

- Cultural exchange Christmas party for children.

- Youth essay contest for the Fourth of July.

- Contributions to Palatine Amateur Hockey Assn. football league and the Bridge youth services bureau.

Gas in sewers problem still unsolved

Palatine officials won't have a solution to offer Palatine Park homeowners when they meet tonight to discuss the persistent problem on gas-fume leaks within some homes.

Gasoline in the combined sewer system serving the subdivision has been identified as the source of the fumes but village officials have been unable to determine how the gasoline is getting into the sewers. A progress report on steps taken by the village will be given at the 8 p.m. meeting at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

Pressure tests have been conducted on the gas tanks of two service stations near the subdivision southwest of Palatine and Rohlwing roads. William DePue, a firefighter heading the investigation, said no leaks were found at either station. Gas tanks at other stations in the area were tested less than two years ago for leaks after manhole covers blew off because of pressure, DePue said.

AN ABANDONED ARCO station at the southwest corner of Palatine Road and Northwest Highway has been sold, according to DePue. He said if the gas station is reopened the gas tanks, which are now filled with water, would be pumped out and checked for leaks or, if the property is used for something besides a gas station, the tanks would have to be removed.

The public works department also will be monitoring sewers in the area with a television looking for roots or other break where gasoline may be seeping in.

The tests will continue until the problem is eliminated.

As interim measures, the village has installed vented sewer covers on all north-south streets in the affected area and asked residents to keep their traps filled with water, check their sewers for leaks and use a pail or water to flush floor drains at regular intervals.

Residents have been complaining of the presence of gas odors in homes, especially during heavy rains, for the past seven years.

Sandbags available to village residents

Sandbag- and sard will be available to flood-prone Palatine residents on Saturday.

The sandbags and sand are provided free by the village and the Citizen Flood and Clean Streams Committee. Residents will need a shovel to fill the bags. The sand bags must be filled and tied at the site but there is no limit on the number of bags a resident may fill.

The sandbags will be available from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the village landfill on Smith Street south of Northwest Highway and at the village garage on Illinois Avenue. A second distribution date is scheduled for May 4.

The sandbags may be used to block flood water in window wells, recessed drives and other openings.

Comic book collector, 14, began hobby six years ago

by JOE SWICKARD

Six years ago, Doug Wiltse decided to start saving his comic books instead of throwing them away.

Toay, Doug, a 14-year-old freshman at Prospect High School, is a comic book devotee. His bedroom, at 102 S. Wilshire, Arlington Heights, is a haven for the pulp heroes of print.

Flahs, the Fantastic Four, Captain Marvel, Superman, Wonder Woman, Batman and the rest of the incredible host of heroes are sorted by issue number and placed in files in his closets. The rare issues are encased in specially produced plastic bags designed specifically for preserving comic books.

"I like the superheroes a lot. Superman used to be my hero No. 1," Doug said.

But he learned that even super heroes change. "Superman has declined, I think," he said.

Why? "They've taken away the suspense. Clark Kent doesn't look like a gentleman anymore. And they've gotten rid of Kryptonite. Now, he's only vulnerable to black magic," he said.

COLLECTORS, SUCH AS Doug, strive to gather consecutive issue numbers. As valuable as an individual issue might be, it increases when it is part of a series. But as luck would have it, Doug missed the issue when Superman managed to convert all the insidious Kryptonite into harmless lead.

Doug estimates he has about 1,000 comic books. He declined to place a value on his collection, but pointed with pride to such items as his oldest comic, "Fawcett's Funny Animals," that features a bunny with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal hares.

Doug said the first issue of Superman and the first issue of Action Comics have the highest price among collectors. "They're probably the most famous and wanted. A lot of people want them for sentimental value, too," he said.

He said mint condition copies of those comics demand $1,000 and more.

THE CONDITION OF the comic can mean the difference of hundreds of dollars to collectors. According to Doug, the cover is the most important part of the comic.

"I save them in plastic bags so they'll look top-notch," he said.

His mother is understanding of her son's avocation. She was the one who bought the filing shelves for his collection. She also said she should get him some more plastic bags.

She has also been known to question his purchases of new magazines at a clip that once reached $5 a month. Doug said he hoped his parents would come through with some subscriptions as a birthday present. "But, there are 80 comics in the DC group alone."

OTHER MEMBERS OF his family have aided Doug's collection. An aunt in Florida has promised Doug the stacks of comics that had been saved by his cousin years ago.

"I've written some comic strips myself, with the help of my friends. My sister did the drawings, though. It's fun, a hobby for me. I don't think I could make a living at it — thinking up new stories every month," he said of his possible future in the field.

"I try to read all of them. But with 1,000 of them, that'd take up most of my time I need for other things," he said.

Paper drive goal beaten

Members of the Palatine 4-H Rascals club recently went two tons over their paper drive goal of 10 tons and earned $487. The proceeds will be used for future 4-H activities and for 4-H summer camp for Rascal members.

In other activities, Tammi Brumm, a member of the Rascals group, won a Cook County rosette and trophy in speech and drama competition. Tammi was named class champion, with Jeanne Peterson class alternate. Other awards went to Connie Johnson, "A" ribbon, and Debbie Price, "B" ribbon.

to improve circulation at the commuter parking lot south of the Chicago and North Western Ry tracks and between Smith and Maple streets. These included:

- Protected access to Palatine Road by signaling a north-south street between Palatine Road and the parking lot and possibly the intersection of Palatine Road and Rose Street.
- No extension of Wood Street west of Quentin Road.

A grade separated access from the commuter parking lot to Colfax Street was not recommended in the report.

In order to provide a grade-separated crossing with the C & N.W. tracks, either the tracks would be raised (at a very high cost) or a viaduct would need to be built under the tracks," reported Gustus.

Drainage would pose a problem to the viaduct plan since the area currently has poor surface drainage and the viaduct would be a collecting point for all surface water, wrote Gustus. He continued the cost of a pump station and underground drainage and the unlikely success of the project makes it prohibitive.

Building department using new offices

The Palatine Building Department is operating out of new quarters at the village hall 34 S. Brockway St.

The building department completed its move to the second floor former board room of village hall this week. This is the second step of a $23,000 shuffle of space at village hall designed to delay the need for a new municipal building for three or more years. The first step was moving all board and commission meetings from the board room to the Slade Street Fire Station.

The next phase will be the moving of the village manager and deputy clerks into the former building department.

Quentin Bible Church dedication Sunday

Dedication services for the Quentin Road Bible Church will be Sunday at 7 p.m. at the church, 721 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

The Rev. A. Ray Sanford, president of the Florida Bible College, will be the speaker for the service. Formerly named the Chicago Bible Church, the congregation met at Feehanville School in Mount Prospect before purchasing the Quentin Road property in 1973 and building a new church there.

Special music for the dedication will be performed by the Youth Ranch Singers, high school students in the church. A reception will follow the dedication, which is open to the public, and a nursery will be provided.

The Rev. James Scudder, a graduate of the Florida Bible College, is the founder and pastor of the local church.

'Moved out of small-town era'

Officials urge long-range planning for city growth

by TONI GINETTI

Rolling Meadows, as Ald. Kenneth Retzke puts it, has "moved out of the small town era."

Progress has created a city of bursting boundaries as residential, commercial and industrial developments migrate to the Northwest suburban area. In less than two decades Rolling Meadows has grown from a town of small frame houses in a land of farms to a community thriving financially on the income generated by its business and industry.

In the midst of the growth, the city has maintained on a year-to-year basis a level of services to keep pace with the expansion. But the boom in growth anticipated in the next decade has prompted some city officials, most notably Retzke and City Mgr. James Watson, to call for permanent long-range planning for future development.

IN A BUDGET statement presented to city officials last week, Watson noted the city could expect in the next five years "dramatic and significant developments which will demand the extension of all city services."

He urged the reactivation of a long-range planning committee, once an advisory board to the city council, to project policy and service needs the city may soon require.

With the council's unanimous approval, the committee has been formed, although its members have yet to be selected by Mayor Roland J. Meyer.

Meyer has not been a strong advocate of the committee. He has said that because changes in revenue income directly affect project goals, planning committees should not be relied upon to set city goals. He has said if major income sources are ended, such as the federal revenue sharing program, or if changes are made in the state sales tax-rebate system, which provides the city with almost one-third its total revenue, long-range goals might have to be abandoned.

The scope of planning might then have to provide instead for new sources of revenue, including a possible city real estate tax levy, Meyer has said.

BUT RETZKE says long-range planning can prepare for just such situations.

Careful study of available revenues would be an integral part of the committee's work, he says.

"You have to predict your revenues," the 5th Ward alderman says. "If we look a year or two from where we are at now we will have to have some idea of where the money will be coming from."

Retzke, who says he would "most definitely" like to serve on the committee, thinks the city needs to get away from "the day-to-day attitude" toward spending.

"In the years I have been an alderman I have seen the city budget take tremendous growth. We have to give careful consideration to income like revenue sharing — money from the federal government for use locally — because that will not be a permanent thing. It could be ended any time after the five years (the government has legislated for it) and it should not be included in the regular budget income."

Outlines of long-range projects would also put city aldermen in better touch with what city department heads see as pressing needs, Retzke says.

"For example, Chief (Thomas) Fogarty has been saying for some time that our present firehouse may be outdated. This in my estimation would be a long-range planning thing because I don't think we would put into one budget year all the money needed to do the whole job. We would have to determine where the best location would be, do we need one or two more firehouses, and questions of this nature."

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

Park merger surveys to be mailed

Residents of the Plum Grove Countryside Park District in Rolling Meadows will be receiving questionnaires this weekend to determine if the district should merge with the Rolling Meadows Park District.

Countryside Park District Board Pres. Ernest Martin said Wednesday the surveys, which had originally been scheduled for distribution earlier this month, will probably be given to homeowners in the area this weekend. Martin said a delay in compiling information necessary for the poll put off the earlier distribution.

Some 500 surveys will be distributed in the park district, which encompasses most of the northwestern corner of the city between Hicks Road, Kirchoff Road, Plum Grove Road and Winnetka Avenue. Martin said residents will have until May 22 to complete and return the surveys. The results will be discussed by the park district board at its May 22 meeting.

THE SURVEY IS being conducted to gauge residential support to dissolve the Countryside Park District to enable the Rolling Meadows Park District to annex the Countryside area. The annexation has been sought by the larger city park district for some time in order to provide the district an avenue of expansion westward with the city.

The annexation can be approved only after a referendum in the Countryside area or by a motion of the Countryside park board to disband. Martin has said the board's actions will depend on the results of the survey and residential opinions on the possible annexation.

If the Countryside area is annexed to the Rolling Meadows district, tax rates in the area would climb from 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation of a home to about 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation, more than double the current park district tax rate in the area.

The increase would mean an additional $24 in taxes on a home assessed at $10,000. However, residents of the Countryside area would be entitled to the programs provided by the Rolling Meadows district at residential instead of non-residential rates.

PARK DISTRICT facilities and programs would also be greatly increased, since the Countryside district currently has only one park at Euclid Avenue and Vermont Street.

The Rolling Meadows Park District is currently land-locked from the western areas of city expansion by the Countryside district and the Palatine Rural Park District.

Serious discussions have been conducted recently between the Rolling Meadows district and surrounding districts to establish an annexation corridor to the $5 million-assessed Countryside area. Talks between the district and the Salt Creek Park District, which borders the Countryside and Rolling Meadows districts, had been held early this year. Those negotiations subsequently broke down and the Rolling Meadows district is now consulting with the Palatine Rural district to obtain an annexation corridor to the Countryside area.

The local scene

Color guard meet

The Coronets Drill team will sponsor the Midwest Color Guard championship show at Rolling Meadows High School this weekend.

Forty-six squads from around the United States will compete in the contest which was won last year by the Mariners Color Guard of Greendale, Wisconsin.

Open class preliminaries begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. On Sunday competition will begin at 1 p.m. Admission is free on Saturday and $2 on Sunday.

Mary DeBruler new welcome hostess

Mary DeBruler is the new welcome hostess in Rolling Meadows. Mrs. DeBruler will head the welcome program sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and local businesses to acquaint new residents of services and organizations in the city.

She will visit with residents distributing information on the city and coupon booklets and introductory savings at local stores and businesses.

Large cat sought: it may be rabid

The parents of Susan Bucher of Rolling Meadows hope a large yellow and white cat can be found soon to determine if the animal is rabid.

The girl was bit while playing in the front yard of her home at 2303 Sigwalt Tuesday afternoon. Anyone with information should call the Rolling Meadows Police Department.

Stricter code enforcement OKd

The Rolling Meadows Electrical Commission has voted to more strictly enforce city ordinances which ban the sale of electrical appliances that lack the Underwriters Laboratory (UL) seal of approval.

The commission Tuesday voted to more strictly enforce the code, which is part of the city ordinances. Commission members during the meeting debated whether to enforce the ordinance more rigidly or delete it, but subsequently agreed to take a harder stand on enforcement of the code.

The UL seal is placed on electrical appliances which are tested by the firm for electrical safety.

Enforcement of the ordinance will mean stores will not be allowed to sell items not carrying the UL seal. City electrical inspector Robert Linquist said some items not bearing the UL approval have been found in local stores. Their sale will now be prohibited.

Police invitational pistol match April 27

The third annual statewide Rolling Meadows Police Department invitational pistol match will be held April 27 and 28 and May 4 and 5.

The match is open to all law enforcement officers in the state. Some 131 trophies will be awarded in individual and team shooting events. Individual fee is $2 and team fee is $1.

The match will be held both weekends at the police pistol range, 3600 Kirchoff Rd. In charge of the match is Patrolman Andrew Herbert, rangemaster.

Local FISH chapter will meet April 26

A general meeting of the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Chapter of FISH will be held at 8 p.m. on April 26 at the Presbyterian Church of Palatine, 800 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

FISH volunteers and those interested in learning more about the program are invited to attend. FISH provides a variety of services to people in need of help on a 24-hour basis. The services are available by calling 991-0349.

Persons wishing to make a donation to the program to cover the cost of the answering service, printing or postage may send them to Charlene Ehlers, treasurer, at 334 S. Boonville St., Palatine.

Further information about the FISH chapter, which was formed in January, may be obtained by calling Renee Lipham, 359-6086; Winifred Blake, 359-1528, or Nancy Barkham, 359-6260.

DOUG WILTSE closeted with some of his 1,000-volume comic book collection. Doug, 14, has been a serious collector since he was eight. The files in his closets are sorted by title and issue numbers.

Comic book collector, 14, began hobby six years ago

by JOE SWICKARD

Six years ago, Doug Wiltse decided to start saving his comic books instead of throwing them away.

Tooy, Doug, a 14-year-old freshman at Prospect High School, is a comic book devotee. His bedroom, at 102 S. Wilshire, Arlington Heights, is a haven for the pulp heroes of print.

Flash, the Fantastic Four, Captain Marvel, Superman, Wonder Woman, Batman and the rest of the incredible host of heroes are sorted by issue number and placed in files in his closets. The rare issues are encased in specially produced plastic bags designed specifically for preserving comic books.

"I like the superheroes a lot. Superman used to be my hero No. 1," Doug said.

But he learned that even super heroes change. "Superman has declined, I think," he said.

Why? "They've taken away the suspense. Clark Kent doesn't look like a gentleman anymore. And they've gotten rid of Kryptonite. Now, he's only vulnerable to black magic," he said.

COLLECTORS, SUCH AS Doug, strive to gather consecutive issue numbers. As valuable as an individual issue might be, it increases when it is part of a series. But as luck would have it, Doug missed the issue when Superman managed to convert all the insidious Kryptonite into harmless lead.

Doug estimates he has about 1,000 comic books. He declined to place a value on his collection, but pointed with pride to such items as his oldest comic, "Fawcett's Funny Animals," that features a bunny with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal hares.

Doug said the first issue of Superman and the first issue of Action Comics have the highest price among collectors. "They're probably the most famous and wanted. A lot of people want them for sentimental value, too," he said.

He said mint condition copies of those comics demand $1,000 and more.

THE CONDITION OF the comic can mean the difference of hundreds of dollars to collectors. According to Doug, the cover is the most important part of the comic.

"I save them in plastic bags so they'll look top-notch," he said.

His mother is understanding of her son's avocation. She was the one who bought the filing shelves for his collection. She also said she should get him some more plastic bags.

She has also been known to question his purchases of new magazines at a clip that once reached $5 a month. Doug said he hoped his parents would come through with some subscriptions as a birthday present. "But, there are 80 comics in the DC group alone."

OTHER MEMBERS OF his family have aided Doug's collection. An aunt in Florida has promised Doug the stacks of comics that had been saved by his cousin years ago.

"I've written some comic strips myself, with the help of my friends. My sister did the drawings, though. It's fun, a hobby for me. I don't think I could make a living at it — thinking up new stories every month," he said of his possible future in the field.

"I try to read all of them. But with 1,000 of them, that'd take up most of my time I need for other things," he said.

Paper drive goal beaten

Members of the Palatine 4-H Rascals club recently went two tons over their paper drive goal of 10 tons and earned $487. The proceeds will be used for future 4-H activities and for 4-H summer camp for Rascal members.

In other activities, Tammi Brumm, a member of the Rascals group, won a Cook County rosette and trophy in speech and drama competition. Tammi was named class champion, with Jeanne Peterson class alternate. Other awards went to Connie Johnson, "A" ribbon, and Debbie Price, "B" ribbon.

mettee used to go through all the departmental budgets, at least a portion of the aldermen used to get exposed to the needs and wishes of department heads." Retake said "Now, until we vote on a budget you really don't know until a month or two in advance what the aims and goals of a department are."

The current budget package proposed for fiscal 1974 already reflects expanding service needs in the city, including the hiring of several additional police officers, firemen and public works employees. Watson has also sought in the budget a $150,000 appropriation for the elimination of two problem sewer system lift stations to be replaced by a sanitary sewer extension. If the project is not performed in the current budget year, the cost of it could double next year, Watson says.

The proposed budget, a package of almost $4 million, also calls for the start of work this fiscal year on a seventh well for the city. Some $200,000 has been allotted in the budget for the well, although that expenditure is expected to be proportioned through several fiscal years.

Watson has said that along with forming the long-range planning committee, he would like to begin earlier preparation of the yearly city budget. This year the final city budget proposal was officially presented to the city council only last week. It is scheduled for approval Tuesday, only eight days before the start of the fiscal year.

Builder Gleich, village targets of county probe

by PAT GERLACH

Builder Elmer Gleich and the Village of Schaumburg will be joint targets of a Cook County State's Attorney's investigation. The Herald learned yesterday.

The investigation will center on Gleich's failure to follow plans and specifications approved by the village board for a 90-unit condominium building at Meacham and Schaumburg roads, said Asst. State's Atty. Marianne Twist.

The probe will be supervised by Kenneth W. Gillis, chief of the official corruption task force, she said.

IT RESULTS FROM complaints from four condominium unit owners of heating problems allegedly resulting from Gleich's failure to install strip heaters as indicated in his plans, she said. The owners complain of not being able to raise temperatures in their apartments above 60 degrees.

Miss Twist said Herbert Debs, Harry Epstein, Merle Jones and Kenneth Wolmer reported the situation to the state's attorney's criminal housing division last week.

The four filed a complaint in Cook County Circuit Court Chancery Division in February in an attempt to force Gleich to remedy the heating problem and complete the building at 101 Bar Harbour Dr.

"We are curious about the position of the village in a situation where plans have not been met," Miss Twist said.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS have said that the building meets minimum building codes even though Gleich failed to follow the plans.

Gleich has promised Building Comr. Joseph Julian that if the building is not entirely occupied by Nov. 15, he will heat vacant units in order to insure proper temperatures. Presently only 26 units are occupied.

He had earlier been threatened with a citation if he did not tell the village how he intends to remedy the problem. Julian now says he is satisfied with Gleich's reply and "no citation will be issued at this time."

Gleich contends that revised plans eliminating the heaters were reviewed by the building department, although a search of records has failed to provide records of a revision.

Wanna help neighbor buy a lightpole?

Residents of older sections of Hoffman Estates soon may find their neighbors soliciting them to help buy a street light pole.

Persons now living in the area southeast of the Higgins-Roselle roads intersection already have asked the village to consider paying maintenance costs and electric bills for street lights if the residents buy the poles and lights. Village Engineer John Hossack said Wednesday the prospect is interesting.

"We are encouraging them to come in with a proposition and try it out," said Hossack, who noted the village recently paid $1,500 for the pole and street light at Gannon Dr. and Golf Road. That pole is 30 feet tall, and those the village residents would purchase privately would be only 25 feet tall, and therefore might cost less, said Hossack.

In new sections of the village, builders have been required to pay for installation of street lights on their own property, but no such requirements were set for the areas first developed.

Village officials have periodically discussed a street light installation program for all areas of the village not yet lighted, but have not moved ahead with the plan because of the cost. Also, there is concern that financing the work with village taxes would take a disproportionate share of budgets for a comparatively small number of residents. Some officials have questioned the validity of asking all residents to pay for lighting in only certain areas.

One possible solution would be to finance the lights with special assessments on the homeowners to be served by them.

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $28 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

Parks won't duck goose pond squawk

Hoffman Estates park commissioners will not duck residents' squawks about messy waterfowl fouling up clean sidewalks and patios and chasing little children near South Twin Lake.

The park board referred the fate of the numerous ducks and geese Tuesday night to its building and grounds committee, which will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Vogeley Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd. The residents said they would attend Tuesday to air complaints again.

A small group of residents asked for curbing of the waterfowl population so that life could return to normalcy by the lake. Two women residents said they practiced waterfowl zero population growth by smashing recently laid eggs.

THREE OTHER area residents pleaded that the ducks and geese not be harmed, but be allowed to remain where they are. All residents were asked to leave the fowl alone until the park district reached a decision.

"We want to get rid of all of them," said Lore Lemerand, 414 Lakeside Plaza. "They're just like rabbits. They reproduce like wild-fire."

Mrs. Lemerand added she would like to see the curbing of the fowl population done "nicely." She noted her child is eye level with some of the geese and she is afraid to let the child out alone. She said the sidewalks and patios are constantly messed up by the fowl.

"They've (fowl) had my patio for four years. I should have it for at least one," Mrs. Lemerand said.

Dirinda Maddy, 161 Harper Ln., told the board the geese are very aggressive. "Four of them took off after my little girl, and she fell down and skinned her knee. She's scared to death of them."

BOARD PRES. Fred Weaver said the feathery creatures had not been placed at the lake by the park district, but Hoffman Estates residents had deposited "Easter lefovers" there, and the fowl propagated.

Arlene Kavalakis, 174 Harper Ln., supported the animals, saying, "I'm one of the culprits. I buy feed for them. They're not hurting anyone. They're marvelous little creatures."

Lynn Schneider, 177 Harper Ln., said "They won't bite you unless you chase them."

"It would be just an empty hole there if you got rid of them,"

Peskin attorneys file notice of bribe conviction appeal

Bernard M. Peskin has officially initiated legal action to appeal his conviction April 4 on charges of bribing former Hoffman Estates officials for speedy zoning for a Kaufman and Broad, Inc., development.

A notice of his intent to appeal the conviction is on file with the clerk of the Seventh U. S. District Court in Chicago. Peskin is scheduled to be sentenced by presiding U. S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr May 28. A federal jury found him guilty of five bribery counts, one of conspiracy and one of tax evasion, and innocent on two other bribery charges and a second tax charge. Six exvillage. Although Assistant U. S. Atty. Anton officials pleaded guilty in the 1968 scheme.

Valukas, the prosecutor, declined to comment on Peskin's appeal, he said generally criminal appeals are resolved in from three to nine months.

AFTER A TRANSCRIPT OF THE three-week trial is prepared for the U. S. Court of Appeals, which is expected to take about four weeks, Peskin's defense attorney, Thomas P. Sullivan, is to file a legal brief outlining his grounds for seeking a reversal of the verdict.

Prosecutors then will be given time to respond to Sullivan's brief, and file one of their own. Sullivan then may answer the prosecution's brief before the case is scheduled for oral arguments before a panel of three appeals court judges.

Although Sullivan could not be reached for comment, his assistant, Carol Thigpen, said the precise grounds for appeal have not yet been determined. She noted the defense had filed numerous objections and motions during the trial, and any of them might be selected for the appeal. The defense also objected to Judge McGarr's instructions to the jury before it began deliberations.

Boy dies after sniffing foot deodorant from bag

A 14-year-old Hoffman Estates boy died late Tuesday night about a half hour after he and a friend sniffed foot deodorant sprayed into a small plastic bag.

Joseph Buchholz, 141 Flagstaff Ln., was pronounced dead on arrival about 10 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. The official cause of death is unknown. An autopsy by the Cook County Coroner's office is pending at the county morgue.

The Buchholz boy collapsed in his friend's bedroom about 9:30 p.m. The friend told police that young Buchholz passed out after sniffing a third bagful of deodorant fumes.

The friend ran from the house to the nearby Fire Station No. 1 to summon an ambulance. The boy did not have a telephone in his home. An ambulance was dispatched to the residence and then transported the boy to the hospital.

The friend, who was also taken to the hospital for examination, was not injured.

He told authorities that he and the Buchholz boy had inhaled deodorant fumes before.

The body was to be taken yesterday to the county morgue from Northwest Community Hospital.

The Buchholz boy was an eighth grader at Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg.

New bus policy: behave or walk

Students causing trouble on Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 buses can now be removed from those buses for at least one week, according to a new school district policy.

The revision was developed by an ad hoc committee established in March to find solutions to the discipline problems on buses. Although the committee is investigating the entire transportation policy, major revisions were made only in enforcement procedures.

The new enforcement procedure is a three-step policy for serious or repeated infractions of discipline rules. The first step requires the driver to explain to the student why his action is dangerous.

IF THAT DOES NOT eliminate the problem, the driver must write a discipline slip and turn it in to the school principal. The driver, the principal and the student will meet together to discuss the situation. If a second notice is necessary, the child is suspended from the bus for a minimum of one week. Parents are contacted for each discipline slip.

The third step is expulsion from the school bus if the problem continues. William Colburn, assistant superintendent for business, said this does not conflict with the state school code which says a student who lives more than 1 1/2 miles from school should be transported by the school district.

The policy also says that a child may be removed permanently from the bus at any time, depending on the severity of the problem.

Proposed youth unit makes gain

A proposed regional youth services bureau has been given preliminary approval by a local youth committee, perhaps paving the way for Schaumburg Township to contribute $19,000 for the new idea.

The Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth recommended that township government help the new youth bureau along.

The service will regionalize the hotline, family counseling and health services currently offered at The Bridge in Palatine.

The program has a proposed budget of $75,000 with each township contributing $19,000. Elk Grove Township has approved the funding within the town budget. Schaumburg will be asking for revenue sharing funds to finance the service.

The final recommendation includes an administrative policy-making board. The board will be composed of three representatives from each township, including the youth director.

Under the final proposal, RYSB will have a hotline director and administrator as one full-time paid position.

THE SERVICE IS proposed to begin June 1.

COY also discussed hiring a part-time office worker for the Youth Employment Service. Currently YES is under the management of youth outreach worker Claudia Tull.

The worker would be needed about 10 hours per week, according to Larry Walker, youth director. Based on a salary of $3 per hour, the worker would cost about $1,560 per year.

John Jensen, committee member, questioned the need for that cost with the current use of YES. At this time, 83 youths have applied for jobs under YES and 58 have been placed. He said this averages about $25 per placement, a cost he could not justify at this time.

COY ALSO IS investigating a new name for its programs. According to Walker, as the scope of COY's programs increases, the agency has difficulty obtaining a "clear identity."

He said the program's name must reflect its purpose and an understanding of youth needs rather than a group of concerned citizens.

Among the suggestions proposed at COY's meeting were the Spectrum and the Kaleidoscope Youth Services Bureau. A name such as these would help identify the organization in the same manner as the Bridge in Palatine or the Place with No. Name in Hoffman Estates, said Walker.

Consulting firm to prepare mass transit plan for area

A mass transportation system proposal will be prepared for the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area by Real Estate Research Corp., a Chicago consulting firm.

"We intend to submit a proposal and are now in the midst of accumulating information although all of the requirements have not yet been finalized," said Jim Roberts, of the firm.

Roberts said he met this week with Fred Dietrich, Schaumburg mass transportation committee chairman, to discuss aspects of the examination.

Dietrich's committee has been asked to study mass transportation needs and prepare recommendations for consideration by the village board.

Recently, Dietrich met with Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia M. Hayter to explore possible joint village cooperation in examining local mass transit needs.

Hoffman Estates has not committed itself to cooperating in a study, although Mayor Hayter and several trustees have informally indicated a willingness to consider participation.

Dietrich's committee has received proposals for contract service from the Schaumburg Transportation Co., where service would be provided for an annual fee. Metron Systems Inc., of Mount Prospect has proposed a $7,500 study, which would include Hoffman Estates.

The Metron proposal calls for village purchase of equipment.

Mass transportation committee members also are waiting for a response from Northwestern University concerning possible proposals or recommended consultants.

German students do well

Nine Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates High School students placed in the top 10 per cent on a national German examination this year.

The examination is sponsored each year by the American Association of the Teachers of German and is designed to measure a student's progress in understanding, reading and writing the German language. Students in the top 10 per cent are eligible for competition for national prizes including a trip to Germany.

The nine students and their test scores are Monica Bode, 99; Ralf Berrey, 99; Guy Detwiler, 99; Suzann Kopp, 98; Mary Ann Pakosta, 97; John Rodgers, 95; Kathy Buesch, 94; Jim Wingate, 91; and Frank Martini, 90.

If a man snaps a camera shutter at you, smile — you may wind up in the Hoffman Estates Park District slide presentation.

Bill Hinkens, superintendent of recreation, has been traveling to various parks to capture the park district on film.

The color slides will be combined with an audio tape in an informational presentation for civic groups.

Bather to bare facts in retrial

Jim Willis, a Hanover Park resident who was arrested last year for sunbathing nude in his backyard, is scheduled for retrial this morning in the Schaumburg branch of the Circuit Court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Willis, 50, of 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., won the right to retrial after a rehearing on a conviction of the disorderly conduct charge.

He originally was charged with public indecency and disorderly conduct after he sunbathed nude in August to provide a test case on the legality of sunbathing in the nude.

The public indecency charge was dismissed after Judge James Maher Jr. ruled Willis did not stage the incident to sexually arouse anyone.

The self-proclaimed sunbather has said because God made man originally nude, there is nothing wrong with nudity.

Elgin man charged in fatal accident

A charge of involuntary manslaughter will be brought against Alberto Codillo, 574 Ann St., Elgin, and will be presented to a Cook County grand jury.

Codillo appeared Wednesday in the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court for arraignment on the manslaughter charge, improper lane usage and driving while intoxicated, brought by Schaumburg Police after a fatal accident Jan. 30 on Golf Road west of Jones Road. The case was ordered to be brought to the grand jury. Codillo's auto allegedly crossed the centerline and struck head on a car driven by Arturo Dela Fuente, 28, also of Elgin. Dela Fuente was dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Only Hendricks objects to new fee

Most trustees favor cost hike for vehicle stickers

by MARCIA KRAMER

Mount Prospect motorists can expect to pay $15 next year for a village vehicle sticker.

The finance committee of the village board tentatively endorsed raising the fee from the present $10 rate, and other board members contacted by The Herald in general concurred with the move.

The increase would still have to be officially approved by the village board. It would not affect 1974 stickers.

Only Trustee Richard N. Hendricks opposed the increase, sticking to his proposal that a $2.50 discount be given to motorists who purchase stickers early, and that the fee otherwise remain $10. "I'm opposed to any increase in the vehicle license fee," he said.

HENDRICKS' PLAN to offer a break to motorists was rejected by the village board last month, as other trustees contended it could cost the village as much as $50,000 a year.

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten, chairman of the finance committee, said an increase in the rate from $10 to $15 annually could raise $100,000. A boost in the fee to $15, he said, "would not be outrageous."

Funds raised through the sale of vehicle stickers are used for road repairs. Under a change in the ordinance being considered by the finance committee, however, a wider range of uses would be available, including traffic signals and police salaries.

One member of the finance committee, Trustee E. F. Richardson, favored an increase in the sticker rate, but only to $12, contending "the motorist is burdened enough right now."

Trustee George B. Anderson suggested charging $19 for early purchasers, then $15 for motorists who buy the stickers after the cutoff date. He said, however, he first wanted assurance that all residents who are required to buy stickers are in fact buying them. "I don't like to impose a tax just to make government bigger," he said.

OTHER TRUSTEES and Mayor Robert D. Teichert have endorsed the $15 proposal. Teichert said "Fifteen dollars does not disturb me as such." He said the village is faced with "the old story — do without or find more revenue."

The sale of vehicle stickers, he said, "is not a bad source of revenue. It certainly is one that can be used, and I don't think it creates that big a burden."

Trustee O.T. Gustus said he is "totally in favor of it. We have kept our wheel

Reaction mixed over increase in car sticker cost

Mount Prospect residents have reacted with mixed feelings toward the possibility that the cost of village auto stickers may go up from $10 to $15 a year.

Several residents contacted at random by The Herald seemed to take the proposed increase in stride with other rising costs while others believe the present $10 rate per car is already excessive.

"I can't even pay the $10," moaned Kim Kelly, 1560 Dempster St. She added as an afterthought: "If Nixon's not involved, go ahead and raise it: I don't really care. My husband wouldn't like it, though."

A 34-year-old mother of two said she would prefer the cost remain $10, but acknowledged: "With the cost of everything going up, I'm not surprised."

LEE JURKA, 108 N. Louis St., agreed. "Everything's going up," he said. "The cost of doing business in the village is going up. I suppose it's a necessity." For Jurka's two-car family, the new rates would cost $30 a year versus the current $20 fee.

Funds raised through the sale of vehicle stickers are used exclusively for road repairs, but village trustees are considering an ordinance change that would allow the money to be used for road-related expenses as well, such as

St. Zachary's annual Port of Call will take visitors from the jungles of Africa to Greenwich Village this year. The four-night event will be held April 19, 20, 25 and 27 at the school, 567 W. Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

Six extravaganzas will be featured: "Jungle Madness," starring Tarzan, Jane and the animals; "New York, New York," with the people who come to Ellis Island and go to the East and West sides of town; "Mountain Do," featuring Lil' Abner and Daisy Mae; S.S. Caribbean, where a classroom becomes a yacht taking visitors on a cruise and includes a sing-a-long; "Blame it on Ms. Eve," a tribute to women's lib boasting such notables as Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King, with a little bit of Carrie Nation and woman suffrage thrown in for good measure.

The sixth show room is simply called "The Strip." Organizers are saying little about the show other than, "Let your curiosity get the best of you. You have to see it to believe it."

Zack's Pizzeria will be open for those who like a little food with their entertainment.

Port of Call will be open from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. all four days. Tickets at $5 each can be purchased in advance by calling 827-0974 or 956-7020.

Exhibits planned

Special lobby exhibits are being planned for the Mount Prospect Public Library, 14 E. Busse Ave., during National Library Week April 21-27.

Extra story hours also have been scheduled by the children's department. No sign-up is needed for these special sessions which will be at 10 a.m. Monday, 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, 10 a.m. Wednesday and 10 a.m. Friday.

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS WITH Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

Parks, PHIA split over cash for Rob Roy

The Prospect Heights Park District and the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn are on an apparent collision course over the impending park referendum.

A committee of the PHIA, the Environmental Action Force (EAF), has decided to circulate petitions which call for opposition to the park district referendum unless the referendum contains money for a "significant participation" for the purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course.

The EAF petitions originally called for a "participation" of at least $1 million.

Such a demand would not have been acceptable to the park district in all probability as its bonding power is only about $15 million and its own planned improvement program calls for an expenditure of $11 million. It is doubtful whether the reworded petitions will be acceptable either.

THE EAF and the PHIA (through a special town meeting) have adopted as a major priority the maintaining of Rob Roy as open space. Kenroy Inc of Skokie currently is seeking annexation and rezoning for 4,500 apartments in Mount Prospect.

The park district under state pressure to remodel or close down its Lions Park pool has drawn up plans for pool renovation, a community sports center and various park improvements. The park district hopes to hold its referendum sometime in May.

If the park district were to include money for Rob Roy in its referendum $300,000 would be about the maximum unless the pool renovation and community center plans are junked as the PHIA and EAF seemingly want.

EAF member Robert Fortman, who drew up the first "million-dollar" version of the petition said of the park district: "I think they have to be slapped in the face. I will personally vote against any referendum that doesn't meaningfully include funds for Rob Roy."

HIS PETITION, in part states: "We are convinced that park district business as usual cannot be continued while the Rob Roy emergency exists. Any referendum which does not have the Rob Roy problem as its major commitment will be considered negatively by us. The petition is now being circulated among Prospect Heights residents."

A&P conversion plans snagged

Plans to convert the former A&P grocery store in downtown Mount Prospect into a banquet hall have encountered a financial snag.

However said Chris Samatas, the younger half of the father-son team proposing the restaurant, the plans are not dead. "We haven't given up the idea," he said. "We just found out we cannot buy the property."

Samatas and his father Paul had hoped to purchase the A&P store as well as neighboring shops in the small shopping center at the northwest corner of Main Street and Central Road. They would then operate the restaurant from the renovated A&P site and leave the other stores to their present occupants.

Samatas said however, the cost of the property was too high and the revised strategy is to hope that whoever buys the property will lease the A&P store to the Samatases. In the meantime the two developers are seeking another possible site in the village for the facility.

The Samatases have proposed a 200-seat restaurant specializing in banquets tentatively called Palais Versailles. If the A&P site is used no rezoning would be required but building and health requirements would have to be met.

Dist. 26 wrapup

Sheyker elected board president

Michael Sheyker was elected president of the Dist. 26 School Board Tuesday and William Haase was elected board secretary.

Sheyker, who was elected to his first full term on the board last year, replaces Lloyd Demel who served as board president for the past two years. Haase, also elected to his first full term last April, succeeds Sylvia Lurie, who was elected to her first full term on the board Saturday.

The reorganization of the board came after the official canvass of Saturday's election results was completed.

Final tabulations showed caucus backed Frank G. Smith with 148 votes, Mrs. Lurie, also caucus endorsed, with 123 votes and Gene A. Nelson with 115 votes.

Smith replaces Marsha Lupton on the board. She did not seek reelection.

The board voted to send Mrs. Lupton a letter commending her for her work on the board. Sheyker also voiced his praise for Demel's service to the district.

Sheyker and Haase will hold their offices until next April. Demel was chosen Dist. 26 representative to the Northwest Educational Cooperative.

Payroll pact awarded

The board voted to contract with Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago for payroll and financial accounting services next year.

The estimated cost of the data processing services is $238 per month for payroll and $360 per month for financial accounting. The board said attorneys advised it that bidding was not necessary on the project because the contract involves payment on a monthly basis.

The action to contract with a company to provide data processing service to the district was made necessary due to the recent disbanding of the Northwest Educational Cooperative's computer operation. Dist. 26 and other NEC members have been receiving data processing service from NEC for the past few years.

Another EAF member, Richard Wolf, persuaded the group to delete the $1 million figure as "we don't want to be a million dollars away from the park district." Wolf will speak with some park board members this week to explain the EAF's stand.

Police, village closer on salary accord

Mount Prospect policemen and the village's negotiating team returned to the bargaining table Wednesday night, reportedly two percentage points apart in arriving at a salary agreement for the 1974-75 contract.

Two sources indicated to The Herald that the village has offered an 8 per cent pay hike, up 1 per cent over its original offer of 7 per cent, and that the policemen are seeking a 10 per cent raise, 3 per cent lower than their reported opening request of 13 per cent.

Representatives of both sides indicated Wednesday an agreement may be reached during Wednesday night's session. "I'm convinced we're going to get settled tonight," said Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. Warren Fischer, president of the local chapter of the Combined Counties Police Assn., was equally optimistic.

"I anticipate a settlement tonight," he said. "We're hoping there will be."

Results of the session were not available because the discussions are taking place in executive session. Other village employees reportedly are receiving a 7 per cent pay hike.

THE NEW FISCAL year begins May 1, but Fischer discounted the likelihood of a police strike if the contract is not settled by then. "It's a little early to say," he said, "but we have no intention of striking at this point."

He suggested two alternative tactics — a work slowdown or picketing of the village — rather than a strike.

Village officials have an ace up their sleeve in the event a strike is threatened. A tough ordinance has been drafted that recognizes the right of employees to engage in collective bargaining, but prohibits strikes by public employees.

If the ordinance is adopted, it would give the village authority to fire any employees who walk off the job. A similar ordinance was used by the City of Waukegan in dismissing about three-quarters of its police force during a walkout in 1970.

Negotiations over the police contract are the only undetermined factor in the village's 1974-75 budget, which was given preliminary approval by village trustees Tuesday night with virtually no discussion.

The $7,979,615 budget will have no effect on village taxes, according to village officials. The document is on public display in the village clerk's and finance offices in the village hall, 112 E. North-west Hwy.

tax down for years when everything else is inflating." He described vehicle stickers as "probably the best place at this time to get the additional funds we need for city services."

Trustee Patrick J. Link, a member of the finance committee, also endorsed a $15 rate, calling it "an appropriate figure."

No decision has been made in regard to the $5 vehicle sticker rate for senior citizens over 65 years of age.

A boost in rates to $15 would put Mount Prospect among neighboring suburbs charging the highest amount for vehicle stickers.

A SURVEY BY The Herald of surrounding suburbs showed that Arlington Heights vehicle stickers cost the most — $15 if purchased early and $20 after the cutoff date. Other costs: Glenview, $15 for cars with more than 35 horsepower, and $7.50 for those with less; Park Ridge, $14; Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Moline and Wheeling, $10; Palatine, $8 if purchased early, $9 after the cutoff (next year $1 lower in each category); Hoffman Estates, $7.50; Schaumburg, $7.50 if car license and sticker are purchased by Feb. 15; Elk Grove Village, $5; Barrington, $5 (considering an increase next year to $8); and Rolling Meadows, $3.

Reaction mixed over increase in car sticker cost traffic signals and police salaries. They anticipate an extra $100,000 could be raised by increasing the cost of vehicle stickers $5.

Yvonne Schulze, 20 S. Maple St., said she considers the proposed cost hike "terrible. Ten is more than enough," she asserted. "Everything goes up except my paycheck." Sixteen-year-old Nancy Tesmer of 1724 Bonta Ave., whose family has three cars, concurred. "I think $10 is too high already. I work hard for my money. I don't think $15 is reasonable."

Bridget Hogan, of 115 S. Can-Dota Ave., reluctantly accepted the cost increase. "Everything's going up, I know this," she said. "It's all right with me."

These are the three things to consider when you are in the market for a communications system. First there is the equipment. Is it quality? Will it last? Is it the right communications tool for your situation?

Then there is the price. Does it include maintenance and a full guarantee? Are there hidden costs? Do you pay for maintenance whether you need it or not?

Last and most important is service. You are dependent upon your communications equipment. If it fails, who will fix it? How long will you have to wait? What will it cost? Will it be done right the first time?

Your local telephone company, a part of the Centel System, wants you to know what you should be getting for your communications dollar. Once you know the facts, you'll realize Centel is the complete communications company.

Legislators vow hazard label data

Some relief may be ahead for residents of the Woodview subdivision of Mount Prospect, which has been designated a "special flood hazard area" by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

U. S. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., have notified Village Trustee Patrick J. Link that they're working on Link's request for data that went into HUD's decision to single out the area. The "special flood hazard area" designation requires that homeowners obtain flood insurance before a mortgage loan will be issued, in accordance with a federal regulation that went into effect March 2.

Link also reported receipt of a letter from Ann Duker, state flood insurance coordinator, who is conducting her own inquiry into HUD's decision.

Mrs. Duker noted that the Woodview area "does appear as prone to a 100-year flood, so while it has not experienced flooding recently, there is a 1 per cent chance it will be flooded each year. It is at this level," she explained, "the federal government has decided to require the insurance."

As Mrs. Duker put it, the government "is caught, unfortunately, between people wanting to sell in an area that hasn't recently been flooded and people wanting to buy knowing whether or not the structure is flood-prone."

A Herald article April 3 describing HUD's policy and its likely effect on the Woodview area "does not contain any technical errors," Mrs. Duker said, but "does convey a negative attitude." The article indicated that homeowners may encounter difficulties selling their homes because of the flood hazard designation.

Propose builders be licensed

An ordinance requiring developers who build in or contiguous to Mount Prospect to be licensed was proposed this week by Michael H. Minton, unsuccessful candidate for village mayor in 1973. Minton said the ordinance in general would require developers to file an application including an affidavit stating their intent and purpose in building locally.

He indicated it was directed primarily at Kenroy Inc., Skokie, which has petitioned the village to rezone 200 acres at the Rob Roy Golf Course for 4,500 apartment and condominium units. The firm has been under investigation by the U. S. Attorney's Office for alleged involvement in a zoning kickback scheme involving the Edgewater Golf Course property in Chicago.

Two Kenroy officials and a stenographer from the company attended the village board meeting Tuesday night when Minton described the ordinance, but did not address the board. Minton said he would submit a complete copy of the ordinance prior to the next board meeting.

Sidewalk contract awarded

The village board awarded a $28,571 contract to Drew Construction Co., Arlington Heights, for sidewalk improvement and installation this year. Other bidders: Provencal Builders, North Riverside, $29,481; F&V Construction Co. Inc., Chicago, $31,335; Blauw and Sons Cement Contractors, Palatine, $31,899; Capitol Cement Co., Chicago, $32,800; North Shore Cement Inc., Skokie, $33,453; and SFN Construction, Chicago, $35,016. The village director of engineering, Bernard H. R. Hemminger, estimated the project would cost $31,120.

Departing commissioner honored

A certificate of merit was presented by the village board to William Demmert, who recently resigned from the drainage and clean streams commission. Demmert was member of the group when it compiled the village's flood control program, including the $2 million bond referendum for flood control.

Another certificate of merit was drawn up for John Martino, who recently resigned from the zoning board of appeals, however Martino was not present to receive the document.

Mayor declares fireman's week

Mayor Robert D. Teichert has proclaimed the week of May 6 to 12 "fire service recognition week" in Mount Prospect, "as a tribute to our skilled and courageous firemen." He urged residents to attend an exhibit of fire equipment May 11 at the Randhurst shopping center.

The mayor has proclaimed the week of April 21 to 27 as sanitarians week, "in honor of those little-recognized leaders in environmental health." Sanitarians are concerned with education and inspection ensuring lawful food service and manufacturing; processing of milk, meat and vegetables; housing, vector control; radiological health, and water and air pollution.

Village annexes parcel

The village board Tuesday night annexed a 3½-lot parcel between Prairie Avenue and Meier Road, north of Lincoln Street, on the west side of the village.

Final approval was expected for annexation of a small shopping center on Algonquin Road near Briarwood Drive, but a vote was deferred at the request of the petitioner, Nathan Geller. Geller reportedly wants to obtain a liquor license from Cook County for a restaurant under construction in the shopping center prior to annexing to the village. Because of the delay, a second scheduled annexation, the 45-acre Farrow apartment development, 602-610 Algonquin Rd., was postponed because the property is not contiguous to the village.

Citizens band radio and compass stolen

A citizens band two-way radio and a compass were stolen Monday night from a car parked at the Randhurst Shopping Center, 999 N. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect, police said.

The items, owned by Linda Avery, 2206 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights, are valued at $210. They were stolen from the locked car between 7 and 9:15 p.m.

Coin collectors can keep abreast of new issues and values, every Thursday in the HERALD.

Proposal from Des Plaines

Village rejects boundary settlement

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines officials will head back to the drawing board in an effort to resolve their ongoing boundary dispute along Elmhurst Road.

The Mount Prospect Village Board Tuesday night, as expected, unanimously turned thumbs down on a revised boundary settlement proposed by Des Plaines, and suggested that Des Plaines officials reconsider the original agreement worked out by the two towns.

Rejection of the Des Plaines plan was anticipated after the village board, meeting in executive session last week, decided to seek another negotiating session with the neighboring suburb. Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert characterized the proposed boundary agreement as an attempt by Des Plaines to "aggressively" annex property that Mount Prospect officials believe should be in Mount Prospect.

UNDER THE agreement worked out earlier by representatives of both suburbs, Elmhurst Road would have been the border line, with Mount Prospect remaining on the west and Des Plaines on the east, and the boundary would extend west along Oakton Street with Mount Prospect remaining north, and Des Plaines south.

That plan had been proposed by Des Plaines, and was officially approved by Mount Prospect village trustees. Des Plaines officials then suggested the revised plan rejected by Mount Prospect in which Oakton would have been removed as a boundary line, allowing either suburb to annex property north or south of Oakton.

Mount Prospect village trustees vigorously attacked Des Plaines' modified plan. Trustee George B. Anderson said Mount Prospect "isn't really gaining anything. In fact, we're back to where we were. I don't think it's a good move at all." Trustee O. T. Gustus said it "negated all agreement completely."

Both suburbs are scrambling to annex property along S. Elmhurst Road for tax purposes, and have in some cases, duplicated annexations. Discussions between officials of the two towns are intended to reach an out-of-court settlement, prompted when Des Plaines sued Mount Prospect for annexing property previously taken in by Des Plaines.

Library grants seniors OK to use room

Prospect Heights senior citizens have been given tentative permission to use the Prospect Heights Public Library meeting room on a regular basis.

Prospect Heights Park District officials, who requested use of the room for the seniors, hope the library board's okay will mean a regular senior citizens club will begin operating early in May. Currently, seniors from the unincorporated area have no club of their own and at least 24 of them attend clubs held at the River Trails and Mount Prospect park districts in Mount Prospect, said Ron Greenberg, Prospect Heights Park District director.

6 women to attend library law day

A six-woman delegation from the Mount Prospect Public Library will attend this Wednesday's Library Legislation Day in Springfield.

The sessions with state legislators are sponsored by the Illinois Library Assn. and the Illinois State Library. Proposed library legislation in four areas will be explained. They are the library systems appropriation, library services to institutions, school library services and library service to the blind and physically handicapped.

Attending the sessions from Mount Prospect will be Mrs. Emanuel Star and Mrs. Arthur Brady, both board members; Mary Jo Hutchings, head librarian, and Mable Laubenheimer, Virginia Doyo and Peggy Yeoman, all library staff members.

Girl's apartment burglarized - again

For the second time in three days, Linda Zierfuss' apartment at 1520 Dempster St. was burglarized Monday, Mount Prospect police said. The first time, nothing was stolen, but this time, five pieces of costume jewelry valued at $10, were taken.

Police said the front door of the apartment had been pried open. In the first burglary on Saturday, the patio door was found open.

Arc welder stolen

An electric arc welder, valued at $475, was stolen during the weekend from a basement storage room at 601 Huntington Rd., Mount Prospect police said.

Police said the 250-pound welder would probably require two persons to carry it. The storage room latch had been pried off. The building is part of the Lakeside Condominiums.

Burglary foiled

Two youths were frightened off Tuesday night as they apparently were burglarizing a Mount Prospect garage, police said.

A neighbor, who called police, said one of the youths realized they were being watched and they ran off. The youths, described as about 15 years old with one having a brown jacket and shoulder-length brown hair, had entered an open garage at 807 S. Elm St., the Jack Sissors residence.

Although nothing was taken, police said a bottle of liquor had been relocated within the garage. The incident occurred at 7:25 p.m.

Police also reported an attempted burglary at 1550 W. Dempster St. The door to Gary Woller's apartment was pried open sometime Monday night, but the burglar did not break the latched safety chain. Nothing was stolen from the apartment, police said.

Trailer fire causes damage of $1,500

A trailer fire Monday afternoon caused an estimated $1,500 damage to the James Isley residence, 500 W. Touhy Ave., unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Mount Prospect firemen, who extinguished the 1:47 p.m. fire, said the fire started in a couch, although the cause is undetermined. No one was home at the time.

The fire was restricted to the living room area, firemen said, and damage was to contents only.

Senior-citizen housing site gains approval from HUD

A one-acre site located near downtown Arlington Heights has been approved for senior citizens' low-rent housing by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The site, located between Miner and Wing streets, west of Highland Avenue, was chosen by Arlington Heights officials earlier this month as the future location of 119 units of subsidized housing.

"We had an inspection of the site last week with members of HUD," said Victor Walchirk, director of the Cook County Housing Authority. "They have advised us that it appears to meet all priorities for senior citizen housing."

He would not say when construction of the project might begin.

Walchirk added that the county housing authority is expecting to receive a formal approval from HUD in the mail soon.

HUD requires that housing for the elderly be located close to shopping, medical, transportation and other facilities important to the day-to-day life of senior citizens.

THE SITE is made up of six parcels and houses are located on five of them. The majority of the homeowners have agreed to sell to the CCHA, which will purchase the property with federal money.

Walchirk said the next step after receiving formal approval is to start developing the senior citizens' housing project, but declined to elaborate.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the CCHA will assume responsibility of purchasing the site, building and leasing the facilities.

The CCHA will act for the village because Arlington Heights does not have its own housing authority.

Hanson added that CCHA will probably negotiate immediately on purchasing the property. "There should be no delay," Hanson said, of when the housing will be built. "I imagine that plans will be made right away."

Parks to charge for tennis play

The Arlington Heights Park District will begin charging for reserved tennis court time at six community parks and some of the outdoor courts at Forest View Tennis Club.

The fee will be 50 cents an hour for the 11 courts. The fee for the tennis club outdoor courts will be $4 an hour, which will entitle players to the use of the club locker and shower facilities.

The park board of commissioners, in making the announcement, said this policy would enable residents to set aside specific courts for play. The courts, when not reserved, will be open to free play on the regular first-come-first served basis.

The other courts in the district will remain available to the public at no charge.

VFW will host parade

The Arlington Post No. 981, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will host the annual Memorial Day parade and service in Arlington Heights on Thursday, May 30.

Persons interested in participating in the parade or service are asked to send a letter to Edward R. Doyle, 1221 S. Pine Ave., Arlington Heights, 60005, no later than April 30.

by JOE FRANZ
and LUISA GINETTI

A Chicago auto leasing firm has been illegally allowed to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers for the last several years apparently to avoid paying the city's higher prices.

A Herald investigation has revealed that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., 3300 W. Grand Ave., purchased 207 Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers this year and 235 in 1973. Village Clerk Verna Clayton told The Herald the village has been selling stickers to Grand Spaulding since before she took office in 1971.

Buffalo Grove stickers cost $10 each, considerably less than Chicago stickers which range in price from $20 to $50, depending on the horsepower of the car.

KONSTANT SAVICKUS, head of the ordinance enforcement division of the City of Chicago law department, said Wednesday it is "definitely" illegal for a Chicago based firm to purchase vehicle stickers outside the city limits. He said Grand Spaulding could be fined from $25 to $200 for each sticker that has been illegally purchased.

Village stickers are required for cars and trucks owned by residents and local businesses. Grand Spaulding does not keep any of its cars or trucks at a location in Buffalo Grove.

Information gathered by The Herald has been given to inspectors in charge of license registration who said they plan to make a complete investigation. City officials said, however, they can take no action against Buffalo Grove because it is out of their jurisdiction. Information has also been given to the U. S. Attorney, and the Cook County State's Attorney.

LEN KRAUSE, president of Grand Spaulding, said late Wednesday, the firm's legal counsel advised him that purchasing Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers is legal because it owns property in the village.

William Brown, vice president of Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, who signed all the applications for the stickers, refused to comment Wednesday on dealings between his firm and the village regarding the sticker purchases.

Brown refused to say how many years his firm has been purchasing stickers from the village. Grand Spaulding was granted zoning for a dealership in Buffalo Grove in 1971, but it has not been built.

The firm recently has brought a site plan for the dealership before village officials for approval. The agency is planned for the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

At first, Brown told The Herald that Grand Spaulding has dealerships in Chicago and Buffalo Grove, but refused to give the address of the Buffalo Grove operation. He said the Buffalo Grove branch dealership existed for four years, but later denied ever saying that to reporters.

SEVERAL CARS with Buffalo Grove village stickers were seen by Herald reporters at the Grand Avenue location. When asked if the stickers purchased from Buffalo Grove should have been bought from the City of Chicago, Brown said, "That's insane."

When asked to confirm that Grand Spaulding purchases its stickers from Buffalo Grove, Brown said, "The village

Man arrested in Skokie for steak house robbery

Robert B. Alvarez, 24, was arrested by Arlington Heights police Tuesday afternoon in Skokie for the Aug. 1, 1973, armed robbery of the Ponderosa Steak House, 830 W. Algonquin Rd.

Alvarez is being held in the Cook County jail in lieu of $2,000 bond pending an April 26 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court. He was charged with armed robbery and aggravated battery.

Alvarez was arrested by five Arlington Heights detectives and members of the Skokie police department as he left his apartment to take a dog for a walk. He was taken without a struggle.

Police said Anthony Garnett, 27, also was involved in the robbery. Garnett is now being held in Albuquerque, N.M., on armed robbery charges in that city.

The assistant manager of the steak house was robbed and beaten with a blunt instrument as he left the restaurant with $2,700 in receipts.

The robbers reportedly posed as repairmen to lure the employee to the side of the building where they attacked him.

Heads homes unit

Paul Hauer, executive secretary of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights, has been elected president elect of the Illinois Assn. of Homes for the Aged.

The association works closely with state agencies on matters for elderly homes, said Hauer.

Cubs receive awards at dinner ceremony

Boys from Cub Scout Pack 135 received awards during the recent Blue and Gold Dinner at the First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights.

Those receiving awards were James Dalacker, wolf badge and gold arrow; Robert Larson, Doug Broehl, Steve Bellumini, wolf badge; Ron Schleser, Gregg Lindskog, David Ischinger, James Boushley, bear badge and gold and silver arrow; Rich Anderson, Walter Bellumini and Greg Rodriguez, bear badge and gold arrow.

Mike Dunavin was awarded the artist and craftsman awards; Greg Larson and Bill Fasth, craftsman award.

Ron Schleser, David Ischinger, Brian Fischer, Scott Larson became Webelos scouts.

Village may limit sump pump pipes

Neighborhood flooding problems have prompted the Village of Arlington Heights to consider limiting the legal length of sump pump drainage pipes.

With the advent of plastic pipes, many homeowners have been extending their sump pump outlets so far from their house as to dump their water into their neighbor's yard, says Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

To combat the problem, Hanson has proposed that discharge pipes be no longer than 10 feet long and that the water be directed "so as not to create a nuisance on any adjacent property."

The proposed ordinance would give the village a way to settle the disputes between neighbors that have arisen in the past, and are expected to increase with the coming spring weather, he says.

2-week Christmas break for schools

Students and teachers in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 schools can look forward to a full two-week Christmas vacation in the 1974-5 school year, as provided for by the new school calendar adopted by the Dist. 25 board.

A two-week Christmas break happens about once every six or seven years when Christmas day falls in the middle of the week, Supt. Donald V. Strong said.

The 1974-5 calendar provides 181 class days for students and 185 work days for teachers, including institute days.

Classes for the fall semester will begin Aug. 29 and will end on June 13.

Students for the first time will commemorate Casimir Pulaski, the Polish military commander in the American Revolution in the 1770s on March 3, 1975. The commemoration is mandatory by the state, but schools may observe Pulaski in any manner they wish. Pulaski Road in Chicago was named after the commander.

Park officials will attend

Meeting on Nike base fight in Washington next week

Representatives of the Arlington Heights Park District will meet in Washington, D. C., early next week with U. S. senators and representatives of the Army to discuss the controversy surrounding the Arlington Heights Nike Base.

The meeting, tentatively scheduled for Monday or Tuesday, will be held in the offices of Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th. According to a Crane spokesman, Sen. Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Charles Percy will attend, as well as a representative of Secy of the Army, Howard Callaway.

Park board Pres. Charles Cronin said Thomas Thornton, park director, and board vice president Kay Muller will attend for the district.

Ed Murnane, a spokesman for Crane's office, said the meeting would provide the opportunity for all parties to make their positions known and understood first hand.

The park district and the Army have been engaged in a war of nerves for several years over the fate of the base at Central and Wilke Roads. The park district hopes to build a $1 million golf course on the site.

THE PARK PLAN received a setback recently when the Army announced plans to move five Reserve units to the site from their present Chicago headquarters.

The park district had hoped the announcement earlier this year that funding for the Nike-Hercules missile program had been eliminated would have made the entire facility in excess of federal needs.

Almost 70 acres of the base have been declared surplus by the federal government. The park district gained title to a 13-acre section outside the fence last summer. An application for 52 acres, formerly set aside for Navy housing, will be made shortly by the district.

Cronin said, "It's encouraging that they are going to set this meeting up. . . I hope it will be well worth the trouble." He said Thornton was designated because of his technical knowledge of the proposed golf course. Mrs. Muller was selected, he said, because of her "good handle on the background of this question."

THORNTON SAID he was pleased with the announced meeting. He said he hoped the park district would gain from it.

Mrs. Muller said, "I think the fact that people are talking brightens the picture considerably."

She added, "People here are aware of the tremendous value of this land. The Reserve center would be an inefficient use for it. This is how it is viewed by the park district and by the people."

Senior citizens' panel plans health-care project

Programs providing health care to the elderly are being planned by the Arlington Heights Senior Citizens Commission as its first service project.

John W. Gianopoulos, chairman, suggested to the commission that a "meal on wheels" program, where hot meals are brought to the homes of participating senior citizens, be planned.

He also suggested that a program on general medical aid such as dental check-ups and medical insurance be considered, perhaps with the cooperation of junior colleges and medical institutions in the area.

Health care programs will be planned first because results from a recent senior citizens questionnaire revealed that health care is the main concern among the elderly, Gianopoulos said.

The questionnaire was distributed earlier this year to households in the village in an attempt to reach the estimated 4,300 persons 60 years or older.

More than 900 senior citizens responded to the survey and the majority of the group listed health care as the prime concern. Other concerns in order of importance, are income, housing, transportation and food and nutrition.

Senior citizens also cited problems in education, employment, spare time activities, security and legislation.

A public hearing will be held on May 21 during the regular commission meeting for residents who did not fill out a questionnaire and for those who wish to air problems.

The senior citizens commission will hold a special meeting on April 30 to discuss other programs for the aged.

Discussion today for Greenbrier group

Members of the Greenbrier Civic Assn. in Arlington Heights will discuss problems in their subdivision with the village president and board members in a may-or-s round table discussion today.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Robert Madsen, president of the homeowners group, said they will discuss several problems troubling Greenbrier residents, such as cars drag racing and speeding in the neighborhood.

The two parties also will discuss the current procedures of the village caucus in selecting candidates and the form of government.
